Palestine's Pilgrim Fathers

By Betty Ross

PART IV.

(We consider this series of articles by Miss Betty Ross an invaluable contribution towards the history of the Jewish regeneration of Palestine.—Editor.)

A great deal is at present being written about the "haluzim" of today and Palestine's future, but for the first time the story of the early beginnings is presented. This deals with the pioneers, who, fifty years ago, left their homes in various European countries and went to the Holy Land to live, prompted by the yearnings of the Jewish soul for its birthplace.

The ordeals, the sufferings, the martyrdom and heroism of these Jewish Pilgrim Fathers will one day be recognized as a glorious chapter in the history of our people. Miss Betty Ross, a journalist who needs no introduction to American readers, had the rare privilege of living among these makers of history for many months during her recent visit to Palestine.

From the lips of these grand old men, only a few of whom are still alive—she gathered the story we are presenting to our readers. Because of her constant contact with the settlers in these earliest Jewish colonies, the accounts Miss Ross so vividly presents are permeated with the atmosphere and background of pioneer days in the Holy Land.

Life in the little village on top of the hill had commenced in earnest. It was called Zicron-Jacob "in memory of Jacob," the late father of Baron Rothschild, their benefactor. Hammarin, the old Arab name, meaning enchantment, had passed on, but not in spirit. For there was an enchantment about this colony which was surrounded by the glorious range of Mt. Carmel, overlooking that gleaming sapphire which was the Mediterranean.

Everything there seemed in tune with the Infinite, the long days when the sun smiled beautifully over everything, those nights when diaphanous skies beamed with tenderness. This was the land that God loved. He showed it in every cloudless sky and every sunset, when that sphere of gold disappeared gently into the welcoming waters.

As they went about their daily tasks, a song was singing in the hearts of the colonists. Things were finally working out. Little by little their dreams were being realized. Life was kind—it seemed kinder every day.

This spell seemed to be about their Arab neighbors too. They evinced no hostility towards them, and never tried to take advantage of the pilgrim's position in a land where customs and languages were strange to them.

From the very first days, when the pilgrims had been stranded in Haifa, destitute of everything save hope, the Arabs had been kind. Their storekeepers had told them to buy all the food they needed in their shops—they would wait for payment. Sometimes they took a bit of jewelry or something in return, but they never denied them food or lodging, for most of the families had rented rooms in Arab households.

Now in the country, too, the Arabs were helpful. They sold oxen to the colonists, who had brought out horses with them from Roumania. When the colonists made rude wagons and carts the Arabs were alarmed and ran away. They had never before seen anything like this! They taught the men how to sow and plough the land, and even sent their wives to help them in the fields during harvest time. They taught them how to reap and husband their crops.

Perhaps the spirit of brotherhood in which the colonists lived unconsciously influenced their Moslem neighbors. Perhaps, five times a day, as they answered the muezzin calling them to prayer from the minaret, by turning their faces towards the East, towards Mecca, their Holy City, the Arabs uttered a prayer to Allah that the spirit of content and unity in which their neighbors lived might never be disturbed.

Maybe because of the one-ness of their purpose in the land of Abraham, or because the same dream lived in every heart, or because their sufferings had knit them together, the colonists and their families lived in a spirit of love and loyalty that the years were never to break nor material circumstances ever to alter.

They were more than friends in those days, more than comrades. Brothers all, because they had the One Father.

Their sincere feeling for each other had been demonstrated many times. In terms of sorrow and rejoicing. There had been sorrows enough when their children died. Usually a fond neighbor carried the child in his arms across the stubby fields to the cemetery. He was followed by the parents and the sorrowing elders, each of whom had brought a little stone for the mound that was to mark the grave.

Rejoicing?

The word alone always brought back the memory of the happiest event they had known in Palestine.

Baba Goldstein's wedding!

That was romance. That was love, born and flourishing in their Utopia.

Baba had come over from Roumania with her parents and their brood of children. Young Goldstein had come with his married sister and her family.

The two had met in Haifa, shortly after they landed. She was young, fair, filled with idealism. He was youth, robust, sturdy of heart. In a short time love called them both. Their parents and the other families smiled on the romance. He had little to offer her in material goods. He had not even a full share of land in the colony that was to be founded. But he had been promised a plot large enough for a home. And he must build that home himself.

What more could Baba want from life than love and a home, with all the promise that picture stirred up?

They were engaged. The wedding would take place in several months.

But the days and months that followed brought anything but hope to the young lovers. Those were bleak days, when the men left for the colony without the women. Everyone suffered then, the men grimly fighting the soil, facing starvation daily. The women and children were in Haifa, alone and cheerless, gradually selling their valuables and household goods to send food to the men. The Central Committee in Roumania had ceased sending funds. When their last furnishings were sold. . . No one dared dream of that blank future, that tragic finale for which they seemed to be doomed. . . .

Love, with all its buoyancy and disregard for material things could not hold its head high amidst all this. Love, that trips lightly over flowerbeds, could not wade through pools of mire. Face to face with realism so stark, it must come down to earth, must meet life on an equal footing.

Sad were the colonists that the romance must be halted. For the present, it could go no further. Who thought of marriage when the morrow was so uncertain? Love had lost before it had begun.

But several months later a ray of light came into their lives. They received the cable that Baron Rothschild would help them colonize. The flood-gates of feeling, so long suppressed, were thrown open. Joy raced through all hearts.

Their material troubles were over. Now Baba could be married. Life once more awaited the youthful pilgrims. Now they could go through the years hand in hand.

Pogroms in Roumania

BY I. YEVIN

Pogroms in Roumania—no other word can be applied to what is now going on at the Roumanian Universities. Day after day, Jewish students are set upon and beaten, the lecture halls have been transformed into battlefields.

The first thing that strikes you about the University building in Bucharest or Jassy is that it is surrounded by soldiers, military patrols walk up and down, armed—it is like a besieged fortress. Inside you meet with armed gendarmes in the corridors, everything is carefully watched—the atmosphere is tense like in a hospital where someone—the life of the University, education itself, perhaps—is on its deathbed. Everyone is walking on tiptoe, anxious, waiting any moment a new outbreak may come.

This is how it used to be done—generally with the assistance of the police. At the entrances the Jews were separated from the non-Jews. The non-Jews were allowed to enter and the Jews were kept outside until sufficient had assembled. Then they were admitted. As they came in, the body of Christian students waiting for them would rush at them and hell was let loose.

But the Jewish students were not to be shut out in this way. With bandaged heads and blackened eyes, they continued to come to the lectures. So the Christian students tried it another way. They waited for the Jewish students outside the University now, and not in a body, but singly. As each Jewish student was surrounded by a mob of his fellow-students, they offered him the alternative of being thrashed within an inch of his life or of signing a document that he voluntarily withdrew from the University and would not attend any more lectures. Many faced with this alternative have signed the declaration, and the movement for Jewish exclusion from the Universities advanced another step—so many Jewish students the less.

It is not only the Jewish students who suffer from this organized hooliganism at the Universities. The Professors and lecturers are terrorized and intimidated. The University officials are at the mercy of the anti-Semitic student bodies. The University Senate is dictated to by the "Pretorians" of the anti-Semitic students and fear to stand out against them. The appetite grows with what it feeds on, and finding their campaign of terrorism succeeded at the University, the students extend it to the streets outside. Jews passing in streets are insulted and beaten, Jewish houses are set upon, Jewish shops are looted, the offices of newspapers which dare to protest against their actions are wrecked.

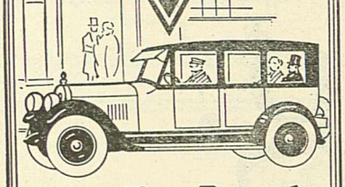

The anti-Semitic Government of Roumania sees in these "patriotic" students the bulwark of so-called Roumanian nationalism and a means of keeping it in power despite the continuing defeats it is suffering in the country. Prof. Cuza is the nominal head of the anti-Semitic students' organization, but it is openly rumored that the actual head is the Minister of Education, Prof. Angelescu.

When, plucking up remarkable courage, the University Senate decides to expel the ring leaders of the disturbances, the Minister of Education vetoes the decision and the hooligans stay on. When the Council of Professors intervenes on behalf of the Jewish professor, Dr. Reiner, who is insulted by his students and compelled to keep away from the University for fear of his life, the Minister of Education asks for a statement from the students and they supply a memorandum on the Jewish peril, and the matter is closed. The professors have to do their work under impossible conditions of espionage and terrorism, knowing that anything they do or say will be reported by the students to the Minister of Education.

What do the anti-Semitic students want?

No longer the numerus clausus of which they talk. The new examination system introduced by the Minister of Education has proved an effective bar to the majority of Jewish would-be students, and at present the number of Jews at the Universities is in exact proportion to the number of Jews in the total population of the country.

There is open talk now of a "numerus nullus"—no Jews at all at the Universities. And it may be that the methods of hooliganism will succeed in bringing about this. When one has to choose between the University and one's life, one sometimes thinks discretion the better part of valous. Many of the young Jews who are seeking a University education prefer to go abroad for it and to be safe with their lives. The Roumanian Universities are gradually being rid of their Jews and no doubt very shortly the one or two Jews who will be left will be as much a rarity as some of the museum specimens.

The Government has one answer to all intervention made on behalf of, not so much the Jewish students as such, as of the principle of freedom of education—"we can do nothing. The situation has got out of control. The police and the gendarmerie are with the students." (This is in so many words the actual reply made by the Secretary of State for the Interior, M. Tartarescu.)

The fact is that the Government's statement is untrue. If the ringleaders who incite the disturbances were removed and the body of the students who follow them were shown that they could not indulge in their hooliganism with impunity—if some of them were expelled and punished according to the law for their participation in the disturbances, there would soon be a stop to the movement. Since Professor Cuza, the inspirer and leader of the anti-Semitic movement in Roumania, was removed from his post at Jassy University, everything has been quiet there.

But the Government is thankful for the disturbances for political reasons; they give it an excuse for hanging on to office, and in general, a growth of Fascism which the student movement really is, means a growth of support for the Government, which sees in Fascism its own policy. So it stands by, and lets success go to the heads of these young men and drive them on to wilder excesses, if anything, fanning the flames. The military patrols are at the Universities for one purpose only—not to protect the Jewish students, but to give immunity to those who attack them, to prevent a counter attack by the Jews or by the liberal students who would come to the help of the Jews. They are there to see that the "patriotic" students are not disturbed in their "patriotic" work of splitting Jewish heads.

The only aid the Government gives the Jews is to supply ambulances to carry them away when they have been laid out. The ambulances stand by while the fighting is going on, waiting. . . .

The Jews of Roumania are stirred to their depths. Even the Union of Roumanian Jews (Uniunea Evrellor Roumani), which has always strived to live at peace with the powers that be, which has never been to aggressively Jewish in its stand, has lost patience and has gone out in opposition to the Government.

It has published a long denunciation of the Government, which, coming from this most moderate body of Jews which has always found excuses for the Government, reads like an indictment.

"Under the terrible impression of the unceasing insults heaped upon the Jewish men and women students who are being cruelly beaten, the Union," says the proclamation, "protests against the inertness of the Government.

"For four years the Government has expressed condemnation of these excesses, declaring that they are anti-national, but they have gone on. Although the Government has stated that its first duty is to uphold law and order and to protect the lives and property of all its citizens, it has shown itself incapable of protecting the homes and the property of its Jewish citizens.

"During the last four years the Jews are persecuted, beaten and wounded in the Universities, the secondary schools, elementary schools, theaters, concert halls, restaurants, trains, tramways, while walking in the streets and even in their own homes. During these four years many synagogues and cemeteries were desecrated, hundreds of Jewish houses were plundered, thousands of windows broken, property being destroyed to the value of millions. In spite of this, the hooligans are being allowed to continue to commit their acts of violence in broad daylight without even being interfered with. The pogromists are not arrested, they are not punished in any way, nor are the Jewish victims compensated for their loss.

"In view of the incapacity or even the malevolence of the Government, the Jewish population addresses itself to the conscience of the people, to the leaders of the political parties, to the representatives of Roumanian civilization, that they should demand definitely of the Government that it should respect the laws and ensure order, lest it should come to this, that the Jewish citizens are declared to be outside the protection of the laws of the country."

The fact that the Union of Roumanian Jews, always regarded as among the most loyal supporters of the Government, has been compelled by the state of affairs to go over to the Opposition, is illuminating as indicating the pass to which things have come.

The position of the Jewish students is simply intolerable. One of them, Jancu Klein, pictures his experiences, typical of those of all his fellows, in an article published in the "Ostjuedische Zeitung" of Czernowitz.

"Why have you beaten me?" the article is headed, and "What have I done that you should beat me?" the student asks, addressing his tormentors. "As soon as the Dean left the lecture hall, you threw yourselves upon me, shouting angrily," he writes. "I am no fighter. I have not studied boxing, I do not carry cudgels, and I have had no experience of hooliganism. I have given up all my time to study-Why have you beaten me? What have I done to you?

"My colleagues of yesterday, the Hackenkreuzler of today, beat their fists into my face, they brandished their cudgels over my head, they kicked at me, but when I asked them why they did this, they did not answer me. Thirty against one, thirty of them beset me and beat me, because I wanted to study, to drink at the fount of learning.

"And you, my Professors, you who are training the new generation, why did you read lectures to me about the holiness of the tenth of May (The Day of Roumanian National Union), about the greatness of the Roumanian flag, why did you speak to me of liberty and peaceful co-operation between all Roumanian citizens?

"Our country is overgrown with poisonous weeks, there are stagnant pools which send up a noisome deathly smell, we breathe poison in the air, where are you, gardeners who have not done your duty, why do you not weed the garden?"

Where are the gardeners to weed Roumania of her overgrowth of anti-Semitism, to resolve into order this chaos where Jewish life and property have ceased to count, where Jews have no right of education, where the wildest deeds committed in the name of "patriotism" go unpunished because they are directed against the Jews.

Random Thoughts
By
Chas. H. Joseph

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY CHARLES H. JOSEPH

I received news of Horween, the new Harvard coach, sooner than I expected. The ink had scarcely dried on my inquiry regarding him when "Sid", one of my colleagues on the Brooklyn "Chronicle", had this to say. Maybe "Sid" knows what he's talking about, maybe he doesn't:

"Naming of Horween, whose only coaching experience since his graduation five years ago has been with the Chicago Cardinals, a professional eleven, came as a great surprise in the Crimson camp. Horween, the son of Russian Jewish parents, associated very little with members of his faith while a student. Although a member of a prominent Christian fraternity, if our memory is correct, his name was "Horwitz" before he left Chicago for Harvard more than a decade ago. What a blow to the aristocracy of "Jawn" Harvard to have its pet hobby, football, under the tutelage of a Jewish lad."

"Sid", my boy, you may be right but someone else tells me that Horwitz, or Horween, was a member of the Harvard Menorah Society. Come along fellows, tell me all about it!

In the interest of truth I must use up much space this week to portions of letters received from the Rev. John Mark Levy, Hebrew Christian missionary in Jerusalem. I have been quite severely maligned because of the publication of a statement sent to me by the Christian League of Jewish Friendship, Washington, D. C., to the effect that Colonel Kisch, head of the Zionist organization in Jerusalem, had found pleasure in the activities of the Reverend Mark Levy's missionary group. There was much excitement and much cabling back and forth and finally there emerged this quite definite cablegram from Colonel Kisch:

"Mark Levy's statement false. Emphatically informed him impossible to adopt sympathetic attitude toward his movements."

Well, I thought that rather clear. Not much opportunity for misunderstanding where Col. Kisch stood. Now for the Rev. Mark Levy's explanation:

"Dear Mr. Joseph:

"I have just returned to Washington after my visit to Jerusalem and R. Shelley has called my attention to your comments on a statement of mine. . . . The following is the explanation of the 'much pleasure' expressed by Colonel F. H. Kisch with the statement of the Anglican Bishop of Jerusalem, given to the Hebrew Christian Congregation of Jerusalem. The Bishop (Rennie McInness) had been regarded by the Zionists in Palestine as pro-Arab and anti-Zionist, and the statement of the Bishop referring sympathetically 'to a Jewish spiritual and cultural center in Palestine' gave general satisfaction to Zionist circles in Palestine. Bishop McInness, as representing the British Church authority in Palestine, naturally has much influence in Jerusalem and the 'much pleasure' expressed by Col. Kisch was aroused by the unexpected news that the Bishop is not anti-Zionist. Throughout our interview Col. Kisch was most courteous. He naturally cannot, without clearer knowledge endorse the Hebrew Christian viewpoint; but the statement makes clear the important fact that the Anglican Bishop at Jerusalem does not wish Jews who accept Jesus as the promised Messiah to become nationally disloyal either to the old homeland or in the lands of exile. It is possible, as Rabbi Stephen S. Wise recently declared, to accept the teachings of Jesus and yet remain a loyal Jew (Dr. Wise did not say that; he was misquoted —C. H. J.). Hebrew Christians accept his teachings as a whole and not in part and we believe the majority of them have been separated from their own people by the unscriptural belief that it was not possible to show loyalty to Him and be loyal at the same time to our nation of Israel. Personally I believe that the Anglo-Saxons are the descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, and it is not by accident that the British Nation has mandate power over Palestine at this particular time. As descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes, the Anglo-Saxons are unconsciously in conjunction with Judah, fulfilling prophecy in the present restoration of God's covenant people to the land promised Father Abraham."

Rev. Levy supplemented this with another letter which contained this paragraph:

"I did not intend to imply for one moment that Col. Kisch endorsed the Hebrew Christian position. He and others gave me the impression that I had done Zionism a service in obtaining the Bishop's statement. I regret if I read too much into what was said. But Col. Kisch will verify the truth of my statements."

Now I am sure everybody is satisfied.

I am sure Mr. Hurt that you would prefer to have the thought conveyed in your recent letter condensed for use in this column where it may reach almost five hundred thousand readers than to have used at length in any one publication. You say:

"In these days when race prejudice in our academic institutions is a grave and growing issue, it is encouraging to the friend of inter-racial concord to receive sincere assurance of impartiality toward the Jew from a university wherein bitter anti-Semitism might consistently be supposed to exist."

Mr. Hurt then recites that "such assurance" came to him from the administrative head of Taylor University, in Upland, Indiana; a school under Methodist control, and over which the Ford millions cast their "sinister shadow." The location of the college is a "citadel of Ku Kluxism, where Klan membership is said to be 100 per cent. Its president, the Rev. John Paul, is an uncompromising Fundamentalist. The community sentiment is strongly anti-Semitic. The pastor of the local church (says Mr. Hurt), at the request of certain parishioners, called upon a newly established tradesman and informed him that if either he or his wife were Jewish or Catholic the family would not be permitted to remain in town. Mr. Hurt does not vouch for this but quotes it as a report that came to him. Not long ago this university was conspicuously featured in an illustrated article in the "Dearborn Independent." E. O. Rice, the Taylor business manager, is a former functionary of the Ford bank in Detroit. Altogether the Ford-Taylor connection appears to be reasonably clear. So it seemed to Walter Hurt "desirable as a point of sociologic interest to learn how a school administration under such influence and in such an environment would react to the Jewish problem. So he writes to the President, Dr. Paul, whether "the Taylor administration deemed Jews desirable as students and whether they were accepted for matriculation without numerical restriction, and here is Dr. Paul's reply:

"It happens that very few Jews have been in Taylor, for the simple reason that they have not found occasion to choose this as the place for their college course. I feel we are a bit poorer in the variety of our student body by not having more Jews. Any young people of the Jewish race content to subscribe to the code of conduct in Taylor University and tolerate its spiritual and evangelistic activities would be welcomed unembarrassed and there would be no limit put on the number who should be admitted."

or Mendelssohn. "We can well dispense with these compositions," says St. Joseph's calendar, "so utterly out of place in the presence of the Sacramental Saviour in Whom neither of these two men believed, one being an infidel and the other a Jew. Save the organist the embarrassment of refusing and yourself the humiliation of being refused."

Under these conditions Jesus himself would be refused. As he was a Jew and didn't believe of himself what the Franciscan Fathers believe.

A writer in the daily press says that with the decrease in immigration the complexion of the East Side, New York, will change. "Modern apartment buildings are already going up on Delancey Street, new school buildings are being erected, and last, but not least, the younger generation reads American newspapers printed in English. That's where the final victory comes in." However, it will be of interest to that writer to know that the Jewish Daily Forward, a Yiddish newspaper, has a circulation daily of over two hundred thousand copies!

That's a sad confession President Lowell, of Harvard, makes when he suggests that the reason for the decrease in church attendance is due to the decrease in antipathy and bitterness among the various sects. Sounds very much like the reason the average Jew gives for the "softening" of Jewish solidarity—absence of outside persecution and hatred. That which must be developed through solely negative influences can't be worth developing.

Lying as fine art. Here is a splendid example. Mr. Ford attempts through his dummy editors to explain in the last issue of his magazine why he has attacked the Jews. Listen to the way he insults the intelligence: It is in the form of an interview:

The question is asked: "I have heard that the articles were first inspired by a personal pique of some sort?" Here is the answer: "That was one of the stories circulated. It was said in one report that financial pressure was the cause of it. Another report said that disappointment in Madame Schwimmer's representation was the cause of it. There were many such imaginative attempts to account for the articles. But there is not a shred of truth in any of them. The work did not arise out of dislike, prejudice, revenge or anything like that. It arose out of the solemn conviction that the time had come for someone to clear the air by speaking out, by speaking such things as any American could confirm by his own conversation. That was the sole reason for the articles being printed. It can be further said that the greatest restraint was practiced in all that was presented."

Yes, Mr. Ford's dummy writers, "it can be further said, etc.," but not believed, because it is a lie out of the whole cloth to say that you exercised restraint when you hired scavengers to dig into every garbage can to unearth anything vile that might be found of Jewish origin. Then you hired bums to stand on the street corners to "put over" the filth in your newspaper. Mr. Ford, do you think the public are fools to believe such trash as you permit your editors to write or are you so completely gullible as to swallow it line, hook and sinker.

Rodef Shalom Sisterhood

RECIPROCITY WEEK

20th Anniversary of Sisterhood

The 20th anniversary of the Rodef Shalom Sisterhood will be observed in the program to be given for Reciprocity Week, April 10th to 17th. The Sisterhood was organized in April, 1906, by Mrs. Josiah Cohen, who became its first president. On the occasion of Dr. Goldenson's and Rabbi Fineberg's sermons on April 10th and 11th, respectively, the Temple altar will be beautifully decorated in honor of the occasion.

Rabbi William Fineshriber

On Monday, April 12th, at 8:00 P. M., the long-looked for address of Rabbi Fineshriber will be given in the Temple auditorium. Rabbi Fineshriber comes from Philadelphia, where he now occupies the pulpit of the late Rabbi Krauskopf. His charming manner and his eloquence have won for him enthusiastic friends throughout the country wherever he has spoken. Today he is one of America's most honored rabbis.

"A Song in Chinese Tapestries"

The Operetta, "The Chinese Nightingale", has been well called "A Song in Chinese Tapestries", and is as beautiful to see as a gorgeous handwoven tapestry. It is by far one of the most artistic portrayals given by the Rodef Shalom Sisterhood. It will be produced April 15th, at 2:15 P. M., in the Temple Assembly Room. Vachel Lindsay wrote the play and Mrs. James Henry Greene, a gifted local composer, set it to music.

Miss Marjorie Cook Porterfield, of Northwestern University, is coming to Pittsburgh just to interpret the story of the musical phantasy.

Among the artists taking part will be the following: Miss Dorothy Cohen, Miss Maxine Cuden, Mrs. Edward B. Lee and Miss Joan Greene, daughter of the composer. The singing group will include Mrs. Chauncey Parsons, Mrs. Abe Caplan, Mrs. Joseph Diamond, Mrs. Gertrude S. Thomas, Mrs. Max Spann, Mrs. Jean McCrory Neumann, Mrs. Walter Rosenbaum, Mrs. Arthur B. Switer, Mrs. Sarah Jamison Logan and Mrs. Will Earhart.

RABBI WILLIAM FINESHRIBER
Who will be the speaker April 12th, during the Sisterhood Reciprocity Week, in the Temple

Before the curtain rises there will be a group of violin numbers by Miss Mabel Ferral, violinist member of the Chaminade Trio ,of Pittsburgh.

Girl Scouts

In honor of its 20th anniversary, the Rodef Shalom Sisterhood presented to each of the Temple Girl Scout Troops an American flag and the respective scout flag. These troops are No. 115, under Captain Miriam G. Wolfson, and No. 114, under Captain Leah Wolf.

Child Study Class

On this Saturday afternoon, at 2:15 P. M., in the Temple Falk Memorial Library, the Sisterhood Child Study Class will be addressed by Dr. Luba Robin Goldsmith. Dr. Goldsmith has been medical advisor to women students at the University of Pittsburgh for many years and is therefore well qualified to speak on Matters pertaining to sex hygiene. Dr. Goldsmith's subject will be "The Adolescent". Discussion and an opportunity to ask questions will follow the talk, and many problems of young mothers will be solved. All interested are urged to be present.

Hadassah

The regular monthly board meeting will be held in Kaufmann's private dining room on Wednesday afternoon, April 7th, at 2 o'clock sharp. It is very important that all members of the Board be present.

Hadassah members are urged to reserve Tuesday evening, April 13th, to hear Mlle. Maxa Nordau at the Carnegie Lecture Hall. This is an unusual opportunity to hear the great daughter of a great man. Mlle. Nordau is an artist of unusual ability, as well as a lecturer who has made her influence felt during her stay in this country.

The next meeting of the Culture Group, under the chairmanship of Mrs. I. H. Levin, will be held in Kaufmann's private dining room on Tuesday afternoon, April 13th, at 2 o'clock.

The Jewish Home for Aged

The Jewish Home for the Aged takes this means of acknowledging with sincere appreciation the receipt of a very splendid donation of 28 Shawls and 30 Caps, the results of the labors of the Service Sewing Circle.

Mrs. John A. Koler, of the Schenley Apartments, is the president of this very worthy and practicable organization.

Junior Hadassah

The regular meeting will be held Sunday afternoon, April 4th, at the Reception Room, Hotel Schenley, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Barnett Davis, who has recently returned from Palestine, will speak of her experiences there. Always an interesting and inspiring speaker, Mrs. Davis' talk on the Holy Land should prove both instructive and enjoyable.

The Nominating Committee, consisting of Florence Marcus, chairman; Lena Friedman, Irma Fleischer, Mrs. S. B. Levine and Ruth Solwitz, will give their report. At this time nominations from the floor will also be in order.

Members of Junior Hadassah have been invited to attend a lecture given by Professor Smertenko at the Carnegie Lecture Hall on Wednesday evening, April 7th. His subject will be "Nordic and Jewish Prejudices".

Another lecture of interest to members will be that given by Mlle. Maxa Nordau on Tuesday evening, April 13th, at Carnegie Lecture Hall. This lecture will be under the auspices of the Senior and Junior Hadassah and the Zionist Organization.

Miss Mildred Yochelson, general chairman of the Spring Festival, announces that plans are progressing rapidly and that the affair promises to be most successful. The Festival will take place on Wednesday evening, May 12th, at the Morrowfield Hotel.

The committee has secured the roof garden for the dancing. There will be two separate dance floors, allowing plenty of room for the many who will care to dance and doing away with crowding. A well-known orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music. The ballroom of the hotel, beautifully decorated, will house the many various booths. Of these the "Gift Shoppe" should prove especially attractive to the mothers. The many useful and decorative articles to be found there, for the most part, will be contributions made by members who are skilled in needle and craft work.

An unusual feature in the management of the affair is the Men's Committee, headed by Mr. A. H. Vixman, who will not only help complete arrangements, but will be on hand to supervise personally every activity of the Spring Festival on the evening of May 12th.

Russian Art and Culture Circle

Alexander Cooper, Esq., delivered a most fascinating lecture on the subject of "Personality" at the last meeting of the club, held Sunday evening, March 28th. The subject, usually classed as an abstraction, was made real and vital by the interesting observations which the speaker related to illustrate his major premise that personality and power to become an interesting person are within the reach of everyone if one will but look for them.

The next meeting will be held at the club's headquarters in the Washington Trust Building. At this meeting Mr. Elmer Kenyon, secretary of the Drama League, will speak on "Current Modes in Modern Drama". Mr. Kenyon has made a thorough study of the drama and his lectures are always replete with interesting facts.

The Music Committee is planning for another musicale to be held in the near future. Announcement of further details will be made later.

College Men's Club

A meeting of the College Men's Club was held in the Fort Pitt Hotel on the evening of March 24th. About fifty members were present.

A paper on "The Theory and Practice of Osteopathy" was read by Dr. W. E. Farbstein, and talk on "Regular Medicine" was delivered by Dr. I. L. Ohlman. An interesting discussion followed.

Ladies' Hospital Aid Society
Sewing Committee

The Tuesday all-day sewing for the Montefiore Hospital is very well attended and splendid work is being turned out. The following members of the committee attended sewing this week: Mesdames B. B. Wechsler, Louis Goldman, L. Mogul, D. Makrauer, Lazarus Simon and L. Symons.

This committee, by their efforts, furnish all departments of the hospital with the necessary linens that have to be made specially, such as operating gowns, patient's gowns, etc.

All materials are furnished by members of the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society and friends of the Hospital at the annual linen ingathering held at Thanksgiving time.

Mrs. B. B. Wechsler, chairman of this committee, takes this means of thanking the "Afternoon Seven Club", composed of Mesdames Jack Levey, Louis Bennet, Sam Wheeler, Emil Steiner, David L. Simon, Abraham Stein and Samuel Passakoff, for a new electric machine donated to the Hospital.

Volunteer assistance for the Tuesday sewing would be appreciated by the chairman of the committee.

The regular meeting of the Sisterhood was held Tuesday evening, March 23rd, at the Community House. Mrs. Barnett Davis, president, presiding. Plans were discussed for the coming spring festival, the date and place to be mentioned later. Mrs. J. Feldstein, who is general chairman of the festival, will name her committee later.

Mrs. Saul Rothman reported the following names donated to the Flower Fund: Mrs. L. Robbins and Mrs. David Busis.

The following donated to the Ark Fund: Mesdames I. L. Scheinman, in honor of her 25th wedding anniversary; B. Davis, J. Feldstein, F. Rosenberg and Samuel Osgood, for the recovery of her husband.

Mrs. I. Robb and her committee reported the following new members: Mesdames H. Gross, Mollie Cohen, Goldie Welcher, N. Alpern and Max Unger.

A very interesting report was given of the successful entertainment and reception given by the Sisterhood at the Rittenhouse in honor of the return of Mrs. Barnet Davis. A capacity audience was present. Mrs. Rebecca Hepner was the soloist.

Rabbi B. A. Lichter delivered the invocation and gave special thanks for the safe return of Mrs. Davis. Mr. Morris Krakoff favored the audience with a violin solo, which was appreciated by all. Miss Marjorie Lieberman

Harris, chairman, gave a tea at her home on Northumberland Street, to her committee on the annual card party, which will take place at Kaufmann & Baer's, on Tuesday, April 20th. Practically the entire membership of the committee was present and all were very enthusiastic in reporting splendid responses in the disposing of tickets as well as of obtaining numerous patronesses. CARD SOCIAL UNDER AUSPICES OF HEBREW INSTITUTE FACULTY OF McKEESPORT, APRIL 13th

The Teacher's Organization of the Hebrew Institute announces that all plans have been completed for a huge card social which will be held at the Hebrew Institute, corner Wiley and Huey Avenues, McKeesport, on Tuesday evening, April 13th. The announcement is of particular interest, since this will be the first social affair held at the institute which has not yet been formally opened.

The proceeds are to be used for the purchase of a piano which the teachers will present to the Institute at its formal opening. Under the general chairmanship of Miss Cecile Goldberg, the various committees have been working very enthusiastically, and arrangements indicate that this will be the largest and most elaborate card social ever held in McKeesport.

In addition to door prizes and table prizes, feature entertainments will be presented. Regarded as an outstanding social gathering for both men and women, the response of the community has been quite marked. The interest of neighboring communities is also in evidence and a large attendance from these is expected. The sale of tickets has been so promising that accommodations are being prepared for more than 500 players.

The committee extends an invitation to the entire Jewish Community to back them by reserving the 13th for the affair. Not only will the attendants enjoy a pleasant evening, but they will contribute to a deserving fund.

Committees are as follows: Tickets, Sol Mercur, M. Mermelstein, J. Weisberg; entertainment, E. Samuels, H. Amper, L. Walfish; prizes, A. Rack, Ann Broder, S. Amper; refreshments, I. Messer, F. Messer and R. Walfish. The charge is 50 cents and tickets can be obtained from any of the above committees.

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN IN THE EAST END FROM APRIL 4th to APRIL 14th

After a study of the education situation in the East End, it was found that there are over 1,200 children of Hebrew School age in the following districts: East Liberty, Bloomfield, Point Breeze and Homewood. Of this number, only about 400 receive Hebrew education daily. About 400 attend various Sunday Schools. The rest are not receiving any Hebrew education whatsoever. This is an appalling situation and spells danger for the future of the Jewish community of the East End.

In order to remedy this situation, the Board of the School, jointly with the B'nai Israel Sisterhood, have decided on a new intensive campaign for Jewish education, to last from Sunday, April 4th, to Wednesday, April 14th.

Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter of the B'nai Israel Congregation, will speak in his holiday sermons on the education situation in the East End, and urge the parents to register their children in the B'nai Israel Institute immediately after the Passover holidays.

Pamphlets on Jewish education have been sent out to all the parents of the East Liberty district, and committees of the school and of the B'nai Israel Sisterhood will visit all parents of unschooled children, and bring to them the message of Jewish education.

Registration for new pupils will open Wednesday, April 7th, and classes will be organized to take care of the new pupils.

RABBI B. R. BRICKNER, OF CLEVELAND, O., TO SPEAK AT BANQUET OF HEBREW INSTITUTE, B'NAI ISRAEL BRANCH

Rabbi B. R. Brickner of the Euclid Avenue Temple of Cleveland, Ohio, has accepted the invitation of the banquet committee of the school to speak at the second annual banquet on Thursday evening, April 15th, to be held at the B'nai Israel Social Hall.

Rabbi B. R. Brickner is one of the leading Rabbis and speakers of the country. Although still a young man he is occupying the pulpit of the Euclid Avenue Temple, of Cleveland, Ohio, formerly occupied by Rabbi L. Wolsey.

His visit to Pittsburgh is of great interest to Pittsburgh Jewry, since this is his first visit here.

The committee has also been fortunate in securing the famous singer, Cantor Joseph Morgenstern, of New York, who is known as one of the leading Jewish balladists. His rendition of Jewish folk songs is highly artistic and fully interpretive of Jewish feeling. His program for the evening will consist of Jewish folk-songs, on different phases of Jewish life, and will be announced in the coming issue of this paper.

Mrs. Barnett Davis, president of the B'nai Israel Sisterhood, who recently returned from an extended trip to Europe and Palestine, will be the guest of honor of the evening. She will speak on educational institutions in Palestine.

EDITORIAL

Clarence Darrow was here this week, and among his other activities, addressed a Jewish group. The Jews of the country have always been sympathetic with Darrow. He is a liberal. So are most Jews. He is an individualist. So are most Jews. He is intolerant of sham and humbug. Under a covering of dry wit with rapier-like adroitness, he punctures much of our Babbitt philosophy that is pure one hundred per cent American. He evaluates America as an Ideal much higher than Congress, or the Elks, or the Rotarians, or the members of the Legislatures of Kentucky or Tennessee. He actually believes in what the founders of the country believed, which is quite rare in an American. He does not take the position that America came into being idealistically considered in order that everybody that so desired might have the opportunity of riding in a Ford car.

Darrow Comes to Town

He seems to have a strange, weird notion that this is meant to be a haven for the oppressed, for those who would have an opportunity to think as they please, to worship as they please, to do as they please, so long as they do not interfere with the other fellow's thinking, and worshiping and pleasure. But, of course, Clarence Darrow, God forbid! is not a hundred per cent American. You see his family came to the country rather late—not until 1650! So, in a measure, he is still one of those "furriners." Naturally he cannot look at these Americanization movements, nor can he view as sympathetically as the real Nordic Americans the attempts to put up the bars against others who want to come over here and have the same chance to live in the fullest meaning of the term, as those who have been over here, let us say, for the past fifty or sixty years. For Darrow is more or less of a recent comer.

He doesn't believe that the reason for America's being is that everybody should be made to believe that the Trinitarian conception of God is the right conception; or that geology must be studied in the Bible and anyone who tries to learn something else about the subject outside the covers of the Bible should be deported. He has rather a foolish idea that most persons don't know much about anything; and that if they live long enough and grow wiser with their years that they will wake up one fine day and discover they know nothing. Of course we have plenty of professional Know Nothings in this land of the free. We have had ever since we can remember. The Ku Kluxers are professional Know Nothings, who imagine that this country was discovered by an Italian for them. It is lucky for Columbus that he got here when he did, for he surely would have been prevented from landing by our present Immigration Laws. But in the event that he had managed to squeeze through Ellis Island, the Ku Kluxers would have frowned upon him, because he was not 100 per cent Protestant Gentile.

So we are glad that there are Darrows in the world with their queer ideas of human liberty. It makes life more tolerable. And incidentally prevents the passage of laws making it obligatory that we must cut our hair exactly the same way, think exactly the same way and regiment our whole standard of living. Yes, we are thankful for the presence of the Great Liberal, who has consecrated his life to freeing his fellows from the shackles of an Intolerant Fundamentalism that in its colossal ignorance imagines that it has the secret of right living, right thinking and right dying. And insists that others shall live and think and die and go to the same place they are bound for.

Thank you, Mr. Darrow! You are badly needed in this country. We are glad you came to town and gave us an opportunity to know you.

When the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Davis, was in Pittsburgh the other day he spoke to a group of Jewish men and women on the subject of immigration, including a statement on the matter which is very close to his heart, the registration of aliens. There seems to be a very confused idea as to exactly what's it all about. Listening to the Secretary one becomes impressed with the value of the plan, but in listening to those competent to speak in opposition we are not so convinced of the merit of the proposition. It affects the Jews as well as others. Louis Marshall has been one of the strongest opponents.

Registration of Aliens

The United States Chamber of Commerce has placed itself officially on record as opposed to it. Of course all the pronounced liberals of the country are against it. Oswald Villard held a debate in the "Forum" last month with Professor Fairchild on the question and when one finished the arguments pro and con, one felt just a bit undecided as to which had won. It is an important question and it's a pity that so little light has been shed on it. One can easily understand what great abuses are possible under such a system of registration. One can understand what graft is possible under such a scheme. One can appreciate what an army of petty officeholders will be required to handle the situation. One can visualize the abuse of authority that is likely to occur when men have authority to deal with the foreign groups in this country.

Mr. Davis is very much in earnest about it and he really believes that the registration plan will be of value to the alien as well as to the nation. One of the most clarifying statements with reference to the question is contained in an editorial in the New York "World," to which we invite the attention of our readers, particularly those who have asked our opinion in the matter.

> "The House Committee on Immigration has just held hearings on the scheme to compel registration of aliens. The scheme, it will be recalled, is advocated by the Secretary of Labor. Its purpose is to reduce the number of aliens unlawfully residing here, and its details, as the Secretary has explained them, include local registrars, to be selected from Postmasters, clerks of courts, school-teachers and similar classes; cards to be issued to the alien,, for which he would be charged a small fee; finally, his assignment to 'a competent source of training.' Where this competent source of training is to be found and what it is to train him for have not been explained.
> "Naturally enough, the plan met opposition at the hearing. Spokesmen stressed the injustice of it, and with their arguments we are in full accord. But the plan is not only unjust; it is silly. The Secretary of Labor seems to have forgotten that for all reasonable purposes we have registration of aliens already. When the immigrant enters this country he is required to tell his age, financial status, proposed place of residence, etc., and this information is recorded. Afterward, if question arises about him, he can easily be traced and investigated. That is, if he has entered lawfully. But, say proponents of the Secretary's scheme, how about the alien who entered unlawfully? That is precisely the point: How about him? Does anybody believe that this scheme will bag him? Suppose the Secretary's plan can be made to work. Suppose our Postmasters, clerks of courts and school-teachers leap at this chance to do extra work; suppose all the 3,087 counties in the United States do their share, without a single instance of indifference; suppose, even that the competent source of training is finally located. Will a single unlawfully entered alien enroll himself to be forthwith deported? To ask the question is to answer it. Unless a gigantic new special police force is provided, what this scheme means is that the alien who entered lawfully, and who is not our primary concern, will be harried unduly, laid open to blackmail by his enemies and persecution by local busybodies; while the bootlegged foreigner, the object of all this fuss, is not even scathed."

Isa Kremer is a Jewess. Is the name unfamiliar? It shouldn't be. She possesses a marvelous soprano voice and is undoubtedly one of the greatest singers of ballads in the world. For some years she was known as an artist who was proficient in the art of singing in Yiddish. But her fame and her scope of work have greatly increased, until in some cities, standing room is at a premium when Kremer comes. She will be in Pittsburgh next Monday evening. If you have never heard Isa Kremer, you have a real treat in store. Go to hear her. She is more than worth while.

Falks to Play Final Game

When the Falk Memorial team stacks up against the well known Valley Scholastics, of Munhall, on the Wilmerding "Y" floor Tuesday, it may prove fatal to the former team. Falk has played some of the best teams in Western Pennsylvania, suffering only six setbacks in 40 games.

Captain "Ernie" Schwerin has proved the season's sensation. He has played a marvelous game.

Alpert and Sable are also two floor artists. It would be unfair to leave Losman out, although he was on the injured list part of the season.

With most of the regulars in the lineup on Tuesday a victory is looked for.

Irene Kaufmann Settlement Music School Notes

On Sunday afternoon, May 2nd, at 3 P. M., the third annual music contest will take place in the Auditorium of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. The contest is open to anyone who plays the piano, violin or can sing. Each group will be divided into three classes: Elementary, Intermediate and Advanced. The best performers in each class will receive suitable prizes. In order to qualify, each entrant will have to be heard and passed on by Anna Laufe Perlow, in charge of the Music Department. The judges of the contest will be members of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Music Committee. The winning contestant will give a recital on Sunday, May 9th, at which time the prizes will be awarded.

The faculty of the Music School has been augmented by the addition of Therese Kroll Pergament, who will teach the piano. Mrs. Pergament is one of the finest pianists in the city and is a member of the Tuesday Music Club. She has received her training under such famous musicians as William P. Kroll and Raphael Saumell, of New York.

A radio concert is to be given by the faculty of the Music School on Tuesday, April 27th, on Station WJAS, Pickering's. The program will consist of selections representing the different types of Yiddish music—traditional, stage and folk. There will also be a brief talk on the Yiddish folk songs.

MLLE. MAXA NORDAU

Daughter of Late Dr. Max Nordau, to Speak Here April 13th

Mlle. Maxa Nordau, distinguished French artist and writer, daughter of the late Dr. Max Nordau, is to talk here on the intimate traits of her father on April 13th. She appears under the joint auspices of the Zionist Organization and the Senior and Junior Hadassah at the Carnegie Lecture Hall at 8:15 P. M.

The world at large knows her famous father as a merciless critic and devastating philosopher, but the Max Nordau as he was to his family and with his intimate friends is an altogether different character and little known and understood by the public.

Speaking in New York at a reception accorded her soon after her arrival, Mlle. Maxa Nordau revealed this hidden part of Dr. Nordau. It was a portrait of human character which the eminent French artist revealed. Over and above the skeptic and mordant critic, Max Nordau was always a builder, an idealist with a fervent hope in the future; his basic philosophy was the fundamental goodness of man. When one considers, in the light of the daughter's reminiscences of of her father, the great constructing force he injected in Zionism, the devotion which he brought to it, one realizes the more forcibly the significance of that other side of Max Nordau, so little known or understood, the part which, perhaps, gave him the courage and strength to expose the decadence of Europe as he did.

When Mlle. Nordau speaks of her father she alluded to him in his days of glory, when princes and statesmen consulted him; when his farseeing and keen insight into European situations rendered him a factor to be reckoned with in political events. But Mlle. Nordau does not avoid speaking of her father in the days of his adversity when he rose to the sublime height of placing his conscience above the dictates of an earthly fatherland and paid as a result, along with Romaine Rolland, the price exacted by a chauvinist patriotism—banishment from France. In this light she reveals her father in his declining days, standing a lion among the lambs; his strong body and dominating mind towering above the pettiness to which he was subjected by those who succeeded him in power.

Mlle. Nordau sails for Europe a few days after her appearance here and Pittsburgh will have the opportunity to gain acquaintance with an unusual personality—a personality that is the product of the surroundings and training of her famous father and the influence of every great European art center.

The message she brings to American Jewry she articulates in purest English, combining the vigorous enunciation of the Anglo-Saxon with the soft intonation of the French.

Tickets for the address will be mailed to the members of the Zionist organization as well as to the members of the Senior and Junior Hadassah. On that evening, April 13th, tickets may also be purchased at the box office of the Carnegie Lecture Hall.

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN'S HEBREW ASSOCIATION

The appointment of Millard Fisher to head the Athletic Committee at

Millard Fisher

Chairman of the Athletic Committee, Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association

the new Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association building is a very popular choice. Mr. Fisher will be remembered as one of the star forwards on the old Zionist Council Basketball Team some years ago. He has evinced a constant interest in athletic matters, and is known as a successful organizer and leader. The other members of Mr. Fisher's Committee are as follows:

Michael Meyers, Benjamin Lubic, Miss Jennie Raphael, Nathaniel Spear, Jr., Jerome Seder, Jacob Shulgold, Harry Rosenberg, Miss Rose Brattman, Jacob Abrams.

Gymnasium Equipment Installed

All of the equipment for the gymnasium has been put in place and this only emphasizes the tremendous size and beauty of this part of the building. In addition to the baskets for the large basketball court there are baskets installed for the two auxiliary courts. The bleachers have also been erected. An attendance of a thousand or more is amply provided for. This gymnasium together with the beautiful swimming pool will be among the popular activities during the summer months when the educational features cannot be taken advantage of on account of the vacation season. It is planned now to have the swimming pool opened before June 1st and remain open during the summer months. A capable swimming instructor will be in charge.

When the athletic department of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association is properly functioning, teams will be organized. There is enough talent in Pittsburgh among the Jewish young men and women to develop teams of sufficient excellence to cope with the best athletic teams in the district.

A swimming team and a basketball team will be organized early in the fall. Other sports will naturally be partaken of in due season.

GREAT RUSSIAN SOPRANO COMING TO CARNEGIE HALL

Isa Kremer, who appears at Carnegie Music Hall on Monday evening is probably one of the most far-heralded dictionists on the concert stage today. Singing a repertoire in English, French, Russian, German Italian, Polish, Roumanian, Greek and Yiddish, she brings these songs to us full freshened from their native heath. Many tributes have been paid this superb little artist upon such score, by not only the leading critics of Europe, but as well of the United States and Canada. In France, for example, it was M. P. de la Pommeray of the

Isa Kremer

Paris press who commented: "Her French is very clean-cut and clear. Many of our singers would do well to imitate the precision of her diction."

In New York, Theodore Stearns has observed: "Her diction particularly in English and French, is positively beautiful." Which sentiment is shared in Los Angeles by the noted critic, Bruno David Ussher, who writes: "Her diction in itself is clear, to the point of fascination." And Emil Enna, addressing a critique from Portland, Oregon: "Whether singing in Italian, French, German, English or Russian, her diction is always clear and impeccable."

There is a witchery in it, in this happy faculty of making herself understood or "felt" whether the language used at the time happens to be your own or of foreign origin. Programs in many languages are not often that way. Too frequently they resolve themselves down to feats of linguistic calisthenics, reducing an audience into a state of desire that the artist would please decide on one language or another and have done with it.

Not so with Isa Kremer, for the simple and convincing reason that she is herself a child of Europe, where one is not really neighborly unless one shares the intimate accents of neighbors—and each boundary offers an inviting tongue of its own. At home in the universal language of Art and adding thereto the diversified dictions of the border nations of her own Russia, she brings a naturalness to her songs, which need but the piquancy of a rare personality to speed them, as fresh as dew-besprent violets, to the bosoms of grateful audiences.

This is one reason why Isa Kremer has been accepted with open arms in America—and the accent of her success is genuine.

Commander Jacob H. Klein, Jr., executive officer of the naval air station here, has been held for three years. He was ordered to report to the New London, Conn., submarine division. Officers at the air station said his transfer was purely a matter of routine. Klein was one of the four American officers who made the trans-Atlantic flight in the dirigible ZR-3, now the Los Angeles, and took many test flights in the ill-fated Shenandoah. He was in command here last September when the Shenandoah was wrecked in a storm in Ohio resulting in the death of Commander Zachary Lansdowne and thirteen of her crew. He had charge of the Navy Department probe into the accident.

Marie Trommer, New York artist and art critic, is showing four of her paintings, "Spring" and "Autumn," done in oils, and "In the Ramapo Hills" and "From My Window," painted in water-colors, at the exhibition of the Independent Artists, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. "Backwards," a water-color by Miss Trommer, selected by a jury of noted artists, was on view at the Alamac Hotel until March 4th.

Miss Ruth Orndoff, 16-year-old school girl of Chicago, won second place in a national contest for the editorship of the official magazine of the Camp Fire Girls.

PENNSYLVANIA REPRESENTATIVE OF DENVER HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES BRINGS MESSAGE OF GRATITUDE

Miss Adele Charsky, Pennsylvania representative of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives at Denver, Colorado, brings a message of gratitude to those who have been sponsoring the cause through all of the years of the Hospital's service to suffering humanity.

In addition to taking care of two hundred patients in the hospital, Miss Charsky advises that the B'nai B'rith Infirmary Building, the gift of Districts No. 2 and 6, and to be equipped by District No. 4, for the care of far advanced cases of tuberculosis, which, while it will greatly improve the service which the hospital can render its poor sick patients; will also increase the running expenses of the hospital, making the need for funds even more urgent than heretofore.

The work of the National Jewish Hospital cannot be measured by the ordinary method. During the 25 years since the hospital opened its doors, it has harbored 5,000 patients and has saved more than 4,000 who have been either cured or greatly improved. It has not only rescued these men and women, but it has restored them to economic independence and has reunited with their own many sole supporters of families which otherwise would have become pensioners of relief societies. It has built up to normal childhood hundreds of helpless little ones. The hospital thus stands in the first rank of Jewish philanthropy—it helps the poor and sick to help themselves.

The National Jewish Hospital is not a Denver Institution. It belongs to Denver less than it does to any of the cities of our land; it is the property of all of the Jews. It was located in Denver, not because Denver was eager for a national hospital, but because the poor afflicted from every section went there, were sent there, and are there and crave for loving care and cure. A portion from an address delivered by the beloved Rabbi and founder of the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, Dr. William S. Friedman, is here quoted: "Denver is carrying the burden—a blessing that belongs to all and in which each should have a part. Like unto the prophet of old the hand of the Lord is upon the National Jewish Hospital, which is set down in the midst of the valley which is full of dry bones. From the four winds, from thousands of American Jews has come the spirit which has breathed upon these stricken ones that they may live, an exceeding great army. They have come up out of their graves and have been restored to their own. All honor to the men and women in every city and hamlet of our land who gives to this cause with unstinted willingness. They form a Holy Brotherhood, a Chevra Kadusha, who find their reward in the satisfaction which the world cannot give and which the world cannot take away."

College Girls' Inter-Denominational Conference Successful

The College Girls' Inter-Denominational Conference was held March 15th, 16th and 17th, in the Pennsylvania College for Women, the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the University of Pittsburgh. Miss Miriam Schonfield, as the Jewish Representative, opened the conference at the mass meeting held at Pitt on Monday, with her address on "Religion in Life." Six different Christian denominations and the Jewish were represented. On Tuesday and Wednesday group discussions were held in the three colleges. Miss Schonfield's subject during the discussions was "Tolerance and Peace." On Wednesday evening during the banquet, which marked the close of the conference, Miss Schonfield's inspiring words were on "Justice." Another Jewish speaker during the banquet of the conference was Miss Esther Margolis, a student at the University of Pittsburgh ,and who is also a teacher of both a Sabbath and Sunday School class. It is felt by all who took part that the conference was a great success toward the aim of a better understanding among all the college students of the various creeds.

Banner Lodge No. 399, K. of P.

At the special convention, held Thursday evening, March 25th, additional plans were announced for the annual banquet to be held in the near future. Following the meeting an entertainment was held under the direction of Messrs. Louis Goodman and Ralph M. Snitzer. The entertainment was in the form of a vaudeville show, and introduced some of the cleverest amateur entertainers in this city.

Those who participated in the program were Mr. Jack Rubenstein, clarinet soloist, with Miss Edith Barmen accompanist; Mr. Jack Morgan, Charleston dancer; Mr. Peter Cooper, violin solo; Miss Mathilda Berkowitz, acrobatic and novelty dancer; Mr. Frank Wechsler, impersonations and character dancing; Mr. Jerry Tagress and his Coral Gables Orchestra, and the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Glee Club, composed of the following: Messrs. Tulie Cohen, Samuel Rosenberg, Harry Cohen, Ralph Snitzer, L. L. Abelson, Tulie Davidson and Joseph Morov. Refreshments followed the entertainment.

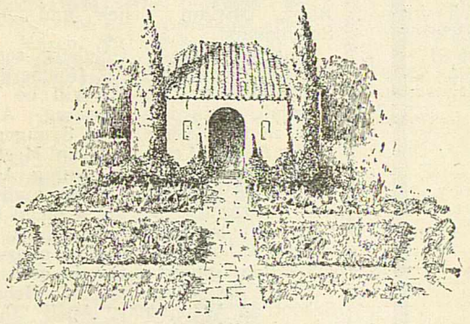

The Banquet Committee, which is working earnestly in the hope of repeating the success of last year, will announce details shortly.

IN MEMORIAM

ABRAHAM M. HAST

At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Rodef Shalom Congregation convened on the evening of February 24th, 1926, the following minute was unanimously adopted, to be presented to the family of the deceased:

We deeply mourn the death of our esteemed co-worker, Abraham M. Hast, so suddenly called to that land in which tears and sorrows are all unknown. With profound reverence we pronounce this tribute to his memory, whose life and example inspired fresh hope and courage to his survivors in the great social, philanthropic and educational endeavors which he served so faithfully.

Possessed of a charming personality, he shed light and joy in every avenue of his life. Born of parents who surrounded his early years with the traditional influences of a real Jewish home life, and who endowed him with an intense love for all that was good and inspiring in the field of Jewish and humanitarian activities, he exercised those splendid attributes with a zeal that won the admiration of this entire community.

Arriving in this country from the City of London when a young man, modest and retiring of disposition, he cultivated those inspirations of his youth, and became identified with the leading institutions in our community which were dedicated to noble and eleemosynary purposes. His activities in these fields of human endeavor at once attracted attention, and he was soon chosen as a trustee of these institutions.

He worked earnestly and sincerely in behalf of the widow and the orphan, and was especially active in the administration of the Gusky Orphanage and Home. Nor were his labors confined to these alone, for soon he was induced to become a Trustee of this Rodef Shalom Congregation, in which he earnestly participated in the manifold duties incident to that position. He was an ardent devotee of any and all associations whose objective was the pursuit of knowledge. Well equipped as a leader in the realm of thought, he used his powers to guide others in what he believed to be the right direction for their highest good.

Withal humorous and of a social and happy nature, he aided in all efforts for the development of the loftier side of social culture. His life was one continuous path of honesty, integrity and candor. He believed in doing good, and the recollection of his labors in that direction will inspire others to emulate his example.

In humble submission to the inevitable demand of death, we have consigned our friend to the care of Him, Whose Ways are inscrutable and Whose Mercy is universal.

His native modesty, his love for all that was great, his constant devotion to the higher aims of life, command our sincere respect. The music of his life has ceased; his pleasing voice has died away; his picture has faded from our presence; his voice has ceased to exhort, and yet the recollection of his quiet but influential participation in behalf of the loftier aims of life will ever linger and will stand permanent among the most treasured pages of our Congregational, social and philanthropic archives.

To his bereaved widow and children we extend our earnest hope that in reviewing the beautiful record of his career they will find consolation for the sorrow which falls on all alike when the golden cord of life is snapped asunder and a loved one is enshrouded in the mystery of mysteries.

In honoring his memory we honor ourselves, for we know that long after many of us have departed, his praises will be sung, his name honored, and his memory blessed.

"Despair was in our last farewell,
As closed thine eye;
Tears of our anguish may not tell
When thou didst die;
Words may not paint our grief for thee
Sighs are but bubbles on the sea
Of our unfathomed agony."

Beloved friend!

YOUNG LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY TO HOLD CHARITY MOVIE AND CONCERT

The Charity Movie and Concert to be given under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Relief Society at the Liberty Theater, Penn and Shady

Elias Breeskin

Avenues, East Liberty, on Sunday evening, April 11th, has aroused widespread interest and enthusiasm.

The Young Ladies' Relief Society was organized in 1905 for the purpose of doing philanthropic work in the city, such as taking care of crippled and under-nourished children, and assisting the Montefiore Hospital in many ways. The first horse-drawn ambulance of this hospital was furnished by the society and in 1920 was replaced by the present motor ambulance. Two years later a sum of money was given to be used in the clinic of the hospital.

The movie and concert on April 11th is being planned to raise funds to meet the amount which the society pledged during the recent Montefiore Hospital Drive.

In addition to a comedy, a feature film, "The Checkered Flag", which has never before been shown in Pittsburgh, will be presented on the screen.

The society has been fortunate in securing the services of several artists who have won recognition for their ability.

Mr. Elias Breeskin, who will be heard in several violin selections, won particular fame in the United States when he toured as assisting solo artist for two seasons with Enrico Caruso. He has endeared himself to the music loving public by being both a popular concert star and phonograph artist. He is well known in both continents, having played for royalty in many European countries.

Caroline Hoechstetter Himelblau, who needs no introduction to local audiences, will render several vocal solos. Mrs. Himelblau will be accompanied by Mr. Abraham Litow, who is also well known in this city as a soloist, accompanist and teacher.

Elizabeth Eisner, who is a promising young dancer, will give a solo dance.

The following committees have been appointed by the president, Freda Abramson: Miss Fan Marcus, general chairman; Maye Middleman, chairman of program; Mrs. Anna Sparks, chairman of patronesses; Miss Elsie Mendelblatt, chairman of tickets; Miss Dora Peresman, chairman of publicity. Social Committee: Miss Hattie Zasloff, Miss Bess Hill, Miss Ruby Price, Miss Minnie Weis and Miss Mary Levy. Door Committee: Mrs. Anna Sparks, Mrs. Jennie Ravich Kopsofsky, Mrs. Fan Steinlauf, Miss Betty Long and Miss Kathryn Futterman.

A very fine program is being arranged, announcement of which will appear in next week's issue of the Criterion.

LOUIS MARSHALL CONTRIBUTES $50,000 TO UNITED JEWISH CAMPAIGN

Gifts of $105,000 Announced; Unless Help Comes Speedily, It will be too Late, Marshall Declares

New York, March 24 (J. T. A.)—Gifts amounting to $105,000 to the United Jewish Campaign were announced yesterday by William Fox, chairman of the New York drive. A donation of $50,000 by Louis Marshall, a gift of $30,000 from Paul Baerwald, and gifts of $25,000 each from Jacob J. Newman, Henry A. Dix and Gregory Benenson, totaling $105,000 were announced by Mr. Fox.

Mr. Marshall, who is honorary chairman of the drive, accompanied his gift with a letter in which he gave a description of the misery now suffered by the Jews in European countries and urged the Jews of the city to give unstinted support in service and money to the effort that is being made to raise New York's quota of the fund. If the Jews of Europe perish, Mr. Marshall declared, the blame will rest on American Jewry. "Unless help comes speedily, it will be too late," Mr. Marshall wrote.

Mr. Baerwald, who is senior member of Lazard Freres is treasurer of the New York drive. Mr. Newman, a New York banker, was formerly of New Orleans. Mr. Dix, two years ago, turned over his business to his employes. At that time he also made a gift of a large piece of property in Mount Kisco to the Young Women's Hebrew Association as a summer home for the organization. Mr. Benenson is a real estate operator.

JEWISH RELIGIOUS MARRIAGE CONTESTED IN CHICAGO COURT

Chicago, March 25 (J. T. A.)—Contending that marriages by a rabbi are legal without the formality of a license, Attorney Jacob Legion Tenney appeared before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath with Mrs. Miriam M. Paskind, 72 years old, who had just filed suit for separate maintenance from Benjamin Paskind, 76 years old.

Judge Sabath issued an order restraining the aged husband from evicting his wife from her home.

Thousands of Jews are married without licenses, Attorney Tenney said, and a decision on the Paskind case will affect all such marriages. Paskind claimed that the religious ceremony was not legal and he wanted the judge to annul his marriage. There will be a decision in a few days.

E. E. Freeland Co. Move to Larger Quarters

E. E. Freeland Co., formerly located at 116 Ninth Street, are now located in their new and spacious quarters at Penn Avenue and Water Street, where they are prepared to give even better service than in the past on nursery stck, seeds, etc.

In a few days they will be prepared to show the most complete display of nursery stock ever offered in Pittsburgh. All stock is high-grade and healthy and ready for immediate planting. Nothing is so satisfying during the summer months as a growing plant, bush or tree and they may be purchased here at reasonable prices. They require very little attention and are a constant delight to the sight and the sense of smell.

The director of athletics at Harvard University announced last week the selection as football coach of Arnold Horween, '21, of Chicago, who was captain of the 1920 Crimson eleven, on which team he played full-back. He was also captain of the informal Harvard eleven in 1917, during the war. Coming to Cambridge, the son of Jewish parents, immigrants from Russia, he had to fight his way to the top and he carved such a niche in the Crimson hall of fame right next to the pedestal erected by his brother, Ralph, who preceded him, that all following players had a mark to shoot at.

The fourteenth annual convention of the United Synagogue of America will be held in Baltimore, Md., at the Emerson Hotel on April 18th and 19th, after which date the delegates will journey to Washington and there continue deliberations the following two days.

Jewish Religious Schools Committee

At the recent convention of the Federation of Jewish Religious School teachers of Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, held in Scranton, Pa., on March 12th, 13th and 14th, some of the most prominent rabbis and Jewish educators in the United States took part in the program. Mr. Ben Rosen, of Philadelphia, gave an excellent paper on "What the Community Can Do to Foster Jewish Education". Rabbi Phillip Bookstaber's lecture dealt with "High School Work". Rabbi Alter F. Landesman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., took for his subject, "The Small Town Religious School with Special Reference to Its Curriculum". Rabbi Harry Stern, Uniontown, Pa., gave the lecture on "Jewish Self-Criticism" during the Saturday morning services at Temple Israel. The Field Supervisor, Miss Miriam Schonfield, gave a very beautiful model lesson on the presentation of the 23rd Psalm, and supplemented it with instruction to the teachers on how to prepare and teach a lesson. During the convention, the Field Supervisor visited Rabbi Artz's and Rabbi Heller's Religious Schools in Scranton. Johnstown was represented by five delegates and Canonsburg by one. Beaver Falls was represented by Mr. Meyer Berkman, the Treasurer of the Federation, and the Superintendent of the Beaver Falls Religious School. Mrs. Chas. Buerger represented the State Religious Work. Miss Miriam Schonfield, the former President of the Federation, represented the Southwestern District of Pennsylvania.

In Lewistown, the most recently opened Religious School, much progress is being made. A fine Purim program was given by the school. Plans are being formulated for a community house, which is to house the religious school and other activities. The school is sponsored through the Lewistown C. J. W., whose active president is Mrs. Lewis B. Dates.

The Hilltop community, which has always taken a keen interest in its Religious School, honored one of their teachers, Miss Anne Berman, who resigned from the school to take up her duties in the Religious School's field directly under the Field Supervisor. On Sunday evening, at a meeting of the Parents' Organization, Mrs. Henry E. Weil, their president, in behalf of the community, presented Miss Berman with a beautiful gift as a token of their appreciation of her services. During the meeting Mr. Nathan Dubbs, the Superintendent of the School, demonstrated the method of conducting an assembly for the children on Sunday morning. Preceding the meeting, Mrs. Henry E. Weil tendered a dinner to the entire school staff in honor of Miss Berman. Miss Frances Alderman, formerly a teacher in the Center Avenue Religious School, has taken over Miss Berman's class at the school.

Pupils are now being prepared for Confirmation in the various schools. Mr. Martin Silverman and Mr. Nathan Kann will serve jointly with Miss Schonfield, Field Supervisor, in carrying out the programs for Confirmation.

The Beechview School was visited by the Field Supervisor on Sunday morning, March 21st.

The Canonsburg School reports great progress in their work this year, with a High School Department in view for next year, which will be conducted by Mr. I. Davis, one of the local teachers.

A meeting of the Southwestern District of Pennsylvania Religious Schools Committee was held at the Congress of Women's Clubs on Thursday afternoon, March 25th. Mrs. Louis Amshel, chairman, presided.

Three hundred and fifty teachers and superintendents attended the recent Teachers' Dance held at the Morrowfield Hotel.

All Sisterhoods, Mothers' Clubs and Councils under the Southwestern District Religious Schools Committee will please send in at once the names and addresses of their new officers to Mrs. Louis Amshel, 1661 Beechwood Boulevard, Pittsburgh, Pa.

STATE THEATRE

For those who like clean comedy in their motion picture entertainment, there is a film of the highest quality now playing at the Warner Bros. State Theater, Fifth Avenue, Downtown. It is "Oh! What a Nurse!" starring the popular comedian, Sydney Chaplin, who, since the great successes of his two big pictures, "Charlie's Aunt," and "The Man on the Box," has rapidly come to the fore until he is now recognized as one of the screen's leading funny men. Patsy Ruth Miller takes the leading feminine role.

"Oh! What a Nurse!" is a fitting successor for John Barrymore's great picture, "The Sea Beast," which has just closed an engagement of four weeks at the State, the picture proving one of the most popular ever shown in Pittsburgh. While an entirely different sort of photoplay, "Oh! What a Nurse!" is just as great a comedy as "The Sea Beast" was drama, and patrons of the State may well look forward to an afternoon or evening of the greatest entertainment when they visit it.

Patsy Ruth Miller

A pleasing feature of the program is the music by Ralph Harrison and His Midnite Sons, appearing permanently in the theater. This splendid body of musicians has been secured through the efforts of Manager Foerste, who has brought the State to the present high esteem in which it is held by the motion picture public.

Another recent innovation at the State is the midnight show, which is held every Sunday night, beginning at 12:05 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at the box office of the theater all week for this performance.

DAVIS THEATER

Easter Week at the Davis Theater is to be a time of real merry-making, for it will commemorate the tenth anniversary of the founding of the National Vaudeville Artists, Inc. In addition to the usual two-a-day performances, there will be an extra Midnight Show, starting at eleven o'clock Friday, April 9th, the proceeds of which will all go to the Sick and Death Fund of the Vaudeville Actors' Association. At this performance there will be attractions from nearly all the theaters in town.

The Sherwoods have an orchestra which is perhaps the most versatile group of performers on the stage. Roy Cummings, one of the funniest fellows in all the show world, will have Irene Shaw to aid him in his capers in a skit called "One Afternoon." A miniature musical comedy, called "The Love Doctor," will be played by Frank Dobson with Nina Penn and various other caperers. Bob Hall, the "Extemporaneous Chap," is to be here, too. Ethel Davis will have Earle Brown at the piano, when she presents her "Refreshing Song Chatter." Other acts and motion pictures of recent news events will complete the bill.

NIXON THEATER

Sam H. Harris, by special arrangement with the Theater Guild, will present Richard Bennett and Pauline Lord, who are co-starring in Sidney Howard's delightful American comedy, "They Knew What They Wanted," at the Nixon Theater for one week beginning Monday night, April 5th. This is said to be the Guild's outstanding artistic and financial success, winner of the coveted Pulitzer Prize and backed by a year on Broadway, not a commonplace excursion even in New York.

Mr. Harris succeeded in keeping intact the company that propelled this colorful comedy to its unbroken run of a solid year in the theatrical capital. The whole company has consented to make this grand tour, assuring playgoers here of exactly the same performance which was generally applauded all last season at the Klaw Theater, New York.

In support of Mr. Bennett and Miss Lord are Glenn Anders, Charles Kennedy, Allen Atwell, Leonard Loan, Monroe Childs, Edward Pawley, Virginia Gregory, Frankie Zito, Elsa Norwood, Raymond O'Brien and others.

CAMEO THEATER

Laughter is the most infectious of all human experiences.

An incident during the filming of "The Cohens and Kellys," the Universal-Jewel which is entering on its fifth week at the Cameo Theater, proves it.

Harry Pollard, the director, was making a scene in which Charlie Murray draws the laughter from a large group of extras. The set was surrounded with a fence to keep visitors away and the scene was ordered shot.

Scene from "THE COHENS AND THE KELLYS" A UNIVERSAL JEWEL, FEATURING GEORGE SIDNEY, CHARLIE MURRAY AND VERA GORDON

Inside, extras laughed their heartiest, while outside, people passed by on their business. As the laughter struck their ears they smiled, for no logical reason at all. While they were within hearing of the mirth, they beamed, but as soon as they got too far away, the contagion of joy left them and they became serious again in their pursuit of the fruits of life.

REGINALD DENNY UNIVERSAL STAR

The very contagion of laughter is one of the reasons for the popularity of comedy-drama such as "The Cohens and Kellys."

This picture was produced with an all-star cast headed by Charlie Murray, George Sidney and Vera Gordon. Others in the cast are Kate Price, Jason Robards, Olive Hasbrouck, Nat Carr, Mickey Bennett and Bobby Gordon.

One of the most popular teams in the hearts of movie fans will be seen at the Cameo Theater, commencing next Saturday, when Reginald Denny appears in "Skinner's Dress Suit," a Universal-Jewel, with Laura La-Plante, his leading support. Not since "The Fast Worker," have they been in pictures together and requests for their joint appearance have been so numerous that Carl Laemmle, President of Universal, instructed that they be cast jointly. Some of the supporting players include Hedda Hopper, E. J. Ratcliffe, Arthur Lake, Lionel Brahm and Lucille Ward.

CAMERAPHONE THEATER

When the screen's big mystery melodrama, "The Bat" makes its local bow at the Cameraphone Theater, East Liberty, for one week beginning next Monday, the problem of its audiences will be to detect the identity of the title character as the film progresses. Thrill after thrill, with everybody fooled to the top of their bent—that is the thunderbolt awaiting the placid fans who may suppose they will get one of those easy movie plots to solve.

As remembered for a perennial stage success and as now presented on the screen as a Roland West production. "The Bat" is a fascinating detective problem, with everything in it calculated to interest the most jaded of audiences. "The Bat" is one sensation after another, with no solution bubbling up until the moment the story gives its secret up.

Romance shines undefeated throughout all the troublesome plots and counterplots. There is not one single minute that the spectator's spine is not called upon to rise and shiver, and his throat to rattle in frightful gasps of joy.

Scene from ROLAND WEST'S production of "THE BAT"

Although tens of thousands have seen the stage version of "The Bat" in its several years career, the secret of its real culprit as finally revealed by its authors, Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood, has been well kept. The public has refrained from giving away the solution to members who have not seen it, and it is expected that the same loyalty to good entertainment will prevail when the big film production of the play comes to this city.

OLYMPIC THEATER

The perfection of underworld detail in Harold Lloyd's initial Paramount release, "For Heaven's Sake!" in the Olympic Theater this week, is one of the outstanding features of this new comedy which is being hailed as another genuine achievement for the bespectacled comedian.

When Lloyd was in New York last year, he spent a great deal of his time in the lower Bowery. As a result of his observations and intensive study of this picturesque atmosphere, he had a thorough knowledge of the conditions under which his characters were to come to life on the screen, when he started filming "For Heaven's Sake!"

The slum set in the picture is a faithful reproduction of a section of a big city tenement district, and while New Yorkers will assert it is part of their own Bowery, there are other cities that might claim it as a faithful portrayal of part of their territory.

"For Heaven's Sake!" presents Lloyd in an entirely new and original characterization—that of a millionaire clubman whose attempt to uplift the hardboiled inhabitants of the underworld involves him in a series of exciting and laugh-provocking adventure.

Jobyna Ralston heads the competent supporting cast.

EIGHT POPULAR VICTOR ARTISTS

Pittsburgh always eagerly looks forward to the coming of the Eight Popular Victor Artists, and the fact that this interesting group of entertainers has not been here for two seasons, will make it doubly welcome at Carnegie Music Hall on Monday evening, April 12th. With four new members added to the original members of the Eight, the concerts this season are said to be better than ever before. The organization now includes Henry Burr, tenor; Billy Murray, tenor comedian; Frank Banta, pianist; Monroe Silver, monologist; Carl Mathieu, lyric tenor; James Stanley, baritone; Stanley Baughman, basso, and Sam Herman, xylophonist.

HARRIS THEATER

At the Harris Theater next week the program of popular priced vaudeville and feature photoplays will be headed by Earl Hampton and players in a rollicking comedy called "Meet Dad" and "Fifth Avenue," the screen presentation. Jeanette Childs sings unusually well. "Those Deere Girls" come in a song characterization act. Burns & Francis have an act called "Perfect Nonsense." Other acts, a comedy and news features will complete the bill.

LOEW'S ALDINE THEATER

The world's most electrifying plot of excitement, now masterfully transferred to the screen, "The Bat," is the feature screen attraction. It is a comedy-mystery-drama by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood.

Allen White's Collegian Band, an organization of youth, pep and harmony, head the list of stage attractions in the gala Easter program next week. The Pittsburgh Stogies Trio will present a new program of pleasing harmony and sweet melodies. Gilbert C. Friar has arranged a special Easter Overture which will be offered by Loew's Concert Orchestra. Walter Hiers in an Educational Comedy; news and Topics of the Day, and the Masked Players Contest films will complete the program.

SHERIDAN SQUARE THEATER

The vaudeville feature photoplay combination at the Sheridan Square for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week will be featured by the first appearance of Henry Catalano and the three Sturm Sisters, and Hal Bishop in an up-to-date production, "A Timely Review." The screen feature will be Reginald Denny in "Skinners Dress Suit." Brems, Fitz & Murphy Bros., who call their act "Just in Fun." Rhoda & Brochell have a musical variation. Evelyn & Daisy will present a bicycle act. Other features will also be shown.

For the last three days the Earl & Rial Revue with Bob Earl and Gertrude Rial and six other singers anl dancers will present a fast-moving and beautifully-produced review. Jones, Morgan & Rush have a fun skit called "Among the Sirells." Arthur Jarrett and Company have a farce called "Cupids Close-ups." Other acts and a screen feature will also be shown.

GRAND THEATER

That cupid has a particular way of defying conventions, especially when it is a case of love at first sight, is one of the thoughts underlying the romantic and humorous story of the photoplay, "The Man Upstairs," featuring Monte Blue and Dorothy Devore and booked to be presented in the Grand Theater throughout next week starting Monday, April 5th.

As an extraordinary added attraction engaged for Easter Week, the Royal Welsh Fusileers Male Chorus of Sixteen will appear on the stage at the Grand. This is Wales' most famous choir and this will mark their first appearance in Pittsburgh at popular prices.

A Mazie comedy under the title "A Snitch In Time," will also be on the bill, along with the News Weekly, "Topics of the Day," and special symphony orchestra and pipe organ music. Performances will be continuous from 10 A. M. until 11:30 P. M.

MANOR THEATER

"The Keeper of the Bees," from the story by Gene Stratton-Porter, will be shown at the Manor Theater, Saturday, April 3rd. A comedy and the serial "Casey of the Coast Guards" will also be shown.

"Sea Horses" is the attraction for Monday and Tuesday, April 5th and 6th. Jack Holt, Florence Vidor, George Bancroft and William Powell are featured. A Lige Conley comedy, "Cheap Skates," and News will also be shown.

On Wednesday, April 7th, a racing picture featuring Elaine Hammerstein and Wallace MacDona'd will be shown. "Isn't Life Coo-Coo." is the comedy.

"New Commandment" will be shown at the Manor, Thursday and Friday, April 8th and 9th. The cast includes Ben Lyon, Blanche Sweet, Holbrook Blinn, Diana Kane and many others. Our Gang is featured in the comedy, "One Wild Ride."

EDYTHE PALMER IN DEBUT RECITAL

Much interest attaches to the debut recital of Edythe Palmer, fifteen-year-old violinist, who is being presented by Ferdinand Fillion, in Carnegie Music Hall, on Wednesday evening next, April 7th. She will be accompanied by Andre Benoist, recently heard here with Albert Spalding. The program is as follows:

Concerto in D minor, Tartini; Allegro, Grave, Presto; Allemande, Fiocco; Hymn to the Sun, Rimsky-Korsakow; Caprice, Wieniawski-Kreisler; Gartenmelodie, Schumann; Zeigeunerweisen, Sarsate; Concerto in D major, Chausson; Anime, Sicilienne, Grave, Tres anime.

String Orchestra and Piano accompaniment. Oscar L. Helfenbein, pianist.

ECONOMICAL HOME HEATING

With the thousands of new homes and buildings being erected and planned throughout the Pittsburgh district, hundreds of home owners will be interested in any plan that offers them an opportunity for substantial savings in the installation of their home heating plant. As a general rule this is an expensive affair.

The Standard Engineering and Manufacturing Company, with offices in the Farmers Bank Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., through their factory to home owner plan of selling are able to supply the home owner with modern, up-to-date heating equipment at prices and on terms that permit of worthwhile savings, while at the same time giving the home owner a home heating plant that permits of a maximum quantity of heat with a minimum consumption of fuel.

They carry a full and complete line of steam, vapor and hot water heating equipment at factory prices and supply to each buyers full and complete directions whereby he can make his own installation if he so desires. For the home or building that may require something out of the ordinary in the way of heating equipment the owner need only to send his plans to the office of this company to secure an estimate. For those who may be further interested in this improved plan of home heating the company has prepared a handsome illustrated catalogue describing its equipment in detail, a copy of which will be sent upon request by those requesting same without any obligation to buy.

MANY LETTERS COMMENDING "THE BIG PARADE" RECEIVED

The management of "The Big Parade," now in its third successful week at the Pitt Theater, showing to capacity audiences twice daily, is receiving many letters of high commendation from local citizens. Among them the following is especially interesting:

March 16th, 1926.

Manager,
"The Big Parade" Co.,
Pitt Theater,
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Dear Sir:

It was with quite a bit of pleasure, satisfaction and pride, that I had the privilege of witnessing your splendid production last evening.

Pleasure in being present at so good a production; satisfaction insofar as, that some producer had put before the eyes of the man who does not know what we went through, the comradeship that we had for each other in that great "Melting Pot," and pride in the fact that I could say "I went through scenes like that."

I heard a lot of comment from where I was sitting and it seemed to all be about the same. "Gee, I can remember when that happened to me." "The fellow that directed that picture, sure made it like it really was," and many a man nudged his partner with an "I would have given a lot to have gone through that experience."

Your treatment of the story is fine, the music was well selected and the cast was without a flaw.

In short, I congratulate you on the picture and before it leaves, I believe that I will see it again. It is not the usual war picture, but merely a chronicle of what the "overseas" chap went through.

My old Colonel, Washington Bowie, Jr., enjoyed it and so did a majority of my old officers, of the old D. C. Field Artillery, from Washington, and I recommend every ex-soldier, sailor or marine to refresh his memory with an evening's entertainment.

Very sincerely,
BURTON A. GOLDSMITH.

MERCHANTS DETECTIVE BUREAU OFFERS PROTECTION TO EMPLOYERS

In a recent interview with Mr. H. Q. Weaver, president of the Merchants' Detective Bureau, located at 1403 Keenan Building, telephone Atlantic 0651, Mr. Weaver said:

"Not so very long ago a woman entered a book shop in a downtown section of the city and purchased articles to the value of $1.75. The clerk who waited on her was also a woman of middle age, and her evident familiarity with the stock, as well as her sales conduct, was indicative of long service. She assembled the purchased articles, took two $1.00 bills in payment for them, rang up the sale on the cash register and gave the customer 25 cents in change. When she rang up the sale, however, the register indicated $1.00 instead of $1.75. The customer was quick to notice this fact, and a few minutes later the clerk was 'on the carpet' trying to explain her error. The upshot of the whole matter was a confession to the effect that she had been stealing from the store during a large part of her fifteen years service and that, in this way, she had acquired about $10,000 in cash. She also admitted that she had taken merchandise.

"Stealing by employes is not always limited to clerks. One of our cases involved the assistant manager of a store. This man, who had been employed for only nine months, was detected in failing to register a sale of $1.52. He voluntarily admitted later that during this period he had stolen $400 in cash and merchandise. In another instance an assistant buyer, employed five years, did not register a sale of $1.75. He admitted thefts totaling $2,000."

This service has proven invaluable to thousands of employers and is worthy of the investigation of every store employer. This concern specializes in secret service work.

ECONOMIC CATASTROPHE THREATENS JEWS IN ROUMANIA, AMERICAN JEWISH CONGRESS HEARS

Dr. Filderman Describes Situation in Roumania; Congressman Perlman Says Immigration Legislation Will be Passed; Re-organization of Committee of Jewish Delegations in Paris Decided Upon; Urge Co-operation in United Jewish Campaign.

New York, March 16 (J. T. A.)—An economic catastrophe is menacing the Jews of Roumania, due to the hostility of the Roumanian banks and other credit institutions, to the Jewish middle class, Dr. William Fiderman, of Bucharest, head of the Roumanian Jews, declared at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Jewish Congress at the Hotel Biltmore, on Sunday.

The all-day session of the American Jewish Congress Executive was devoted to a consideration of the activities recently undertaken by the Congress, chief among them being the efforts to bring about the lessening of the hardships of the present immigration law and the question of the reorganization of the Committee of Jewish Delegations in Paris.

The afternoon session was presided over by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, who described the recent conferences, which he, together with Mr. Louis Marshall and Judge Julian W. Mack had with Prince Titulescu, the Roumanian representative in America. Mr. Wise described his disappointment that despite the reassuring statements given by Prince Titulescu, the Jewish situation in Roumania had become worse.

Congressman Nathan Perlman, author of the so-called Perlman-Wadsworth Bill, designed to amend the Immigration Law so that near-relatives of citizens and declarants would be admitted as non-quota immigrants, gave a detailed report of the status of his bill. While expressing his belief that some measure will be adopted at the present session of Congress which will tend to humanize the Immigration Law, Congressman Perlman emphatically pointed out that it was necessary for citizens all over the country to appeal to their respective representatives in Congress to support this legislation.

Mr. Bernard G. Richards, Executive Secretary of the American Jewish Congress, reported that negotiations were under way with Dr. Leo Motzkin for the convening of a conference next Summer in Europe to be attended by representatives of the Jewish communities throughout Europe for the purpose of re-organizing the Committee of Jewish Delegations which has been functioning in Paris since 1919.

Dr. A. J. Rongy and Dr. S. Bernstein made the point that a strong democratic body representing European Jewry and acting in conjunction with the American Jewish Congress would be a great factor in improving Jewish conditions throughout Europe, and they urged that the American Jewish Congress bend every effort to bring about the proposed conference which should be attended by several representatives of the American Jewish Congress.

Acting on the report submitted by a special committee on elections, of which Mr. Max Eckman was chairman, the Executive Committee decided to hold new elections of delegates to the American Jewish Congress within the next few months. Such delegates will be elected at conventions of representatives from organizations to be held in the various cities. The rules governing the election will shortly be issued by the American Jewish Congress.

The following resolution was adopted on the subject of the United Jewish Campaign:

"The Executive Committee of the American Jewish Congress takes note of the efforts now being made by the United Jewish Campaign to raise fifteen million dollars for its Overseas Chest and more particularly of the campaign about to be launched in New York for six million dollars as part of that fund.

"The American Jewish Congress has frequently called attention to the economic distress which prevailed among our brethren in Eastern Europe, and on more than one occasion it summoned the Jews of America to renew their relief activities. It is therefore highly gratified at the resumption of the relief work and urges its delegates and its affiliated organizations to contribute of their means and their efforts to the end that the full amount sought by the campaign shall be subscribed."

PALESTINE NOT JEWISH STATE, BUT NATIONAL HOME, BRIAND SAYS ON BEHALF OF FRENCH GOVERNMENT

Paris, March 25 (J. T. A.)—A meeting of the France-Palestine Committee, which was held here yesterday, listened to a message from Aristede Briand, French Prime Minister, who expressed the French Government's sympathy with Zionism.

Briand stated in his message that the French Government considers Palestine not a Jewish state but a national home, on condition that the rights of the Arabs are safeguarded.

Messages were also received from President Doumergue, honorary president of the committee, Paul Painleve, Herriot and Leon Blum.

BECKERT'S SEED STORE GIVES ADVICE REGARDING CARE OF LAWNS.

One of the readers of the Criterion wrote Beckert's Seed Store some days ago, asking if they could advise whether any better fertilizer than lime could be applied to the lawn. Through the kindness of the editor, their reply is printed for the benefit of all readers.

The use of lime, either in the spring or fall, has come to be regarded almost universally as a cure for every known defect to be corrected in a lawn. This practice has probably grown out of the general use of lime on agricultural land, where, when properly worked in, it will improve the texture of a heavy clay soil. But the amount of lime which can be applied to a lawn is insufficient to be of much value in this respect. Some of the worst lawn weeds, such as crabgrass and white clover, are benefited by lime.

We recommend the use of two or three pounds of a good commercial fertilizer per 100 square feet of lawn applied at the first sign of greenness in the spring, which will give the grass a quick, vigorous start and furnish a luxuriant and velvety lawn early in the season. Apply when the grass is dry and wet down thoroughly after making application. Lighter applications of one to one and one-half pounds per 100 square feet made every six to eight weeks during the spring and fall season will maintain the lawn in a beautiful and thriving condition.

We have several good brands of fertilizer on hand at all times and will be glad to furnish the amount you need if you will send us the dimensions of your lawn.

REORGANIZATION OF BUREAU OF JEWISH EDUCATION ANNOUNCED

Reorganization of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Pittsburgh was announced recently following a meeting of committees representing the Bureau and the Hebrew Institute.

The plan of reorganization was accepted following its presentation by Prof. Israel A. Abrams, principal of the Hebrew Institute. Under the plan of reorganization, the Hebrew Institute and all other Jewish schools in Pittsburgh will unite under the banner of the Bureau of Jewish Education for the promotion, improvement and co-ordination of Jewish educational opportunities in Pittsburgh. The object of the Bureau also is to develop a community-wide program with the Bureau representative of the various points of view.

The Bureau is not to create new schools or educational organizations without the aid of or through the present existing organizations, under a special provision of the plan of reorganization. Its main function, primarily, is to promote Jewish education through mass instruction, plays, lectures, holiday celebrations, a library, pamphlets, etc.

At a meeting Tuesday evening, it was decided to name a committee of professional advisors consisting of professional heads of the various institutions and schools. This committee is to study educational conditions and to suggest to the Bureau such measures as will improve the status of Jewish education in Pittsburgh. Prof. Abrams was named director of the committee.

By not creating schools or educational organizations without the aid of or through the present existing organizations, the Bureau of Jewish Education is not in conflict with the purposes of the Hebrew Institute. In addition to promoting the tenets and practices of traditional Judaism and fostering a knowledge of Jewish history and ethics, the Hebrew Institute is empowered, by its charter, to maintain educational institutions and schools.

The committee on reorganization, representing the Hebrew Institute, follows: Charles Rosenbloom, George Goff, A. C. Teplitz, Morris Neaman, D. Livingston and Prof. Abrams. A committee representing the Bureau follows: Mrs. C. J. Fechheimer, Mrs. Edwin Zugsmith, Dr. Eitan, Dr. L. B. Bernstein, Mrs. A. H. Vixman, Rabbi Lichter and Rabbi Hailperin.

PASSOVER RECIPES

Walnut Cake

Yolks of nine eggs, one-half pound powdered sugar, creamed, grind one pound walnuts (measured before shelling).

To yolks add sugar, two tablespoons well sifted matzos flour, pinch of salt, one teaspoon flavoring and mix in ground walnuts. Fold in between whites. Bake three-quarters of an hour.

Matzos Shilo

Six matzos, six eggs, one cup sugar, two tablespoons fat, one cup chopped nuts, one-half cup matzos meal.

Soak the six matzos, then squeeze out the water. First mix into six yolks, add sugar and fat. When well mixed, add the matzo meal and nuts. Lastly fold in the well beaten whites. Put in greased pan and bake in moderate oven.

Matzos Spice Cake

To every egg add one-half tablespoon matzos meal and one-half tablespoon sugar. Sift five times, mix with sugar one-half tablespoon ground ginger, one-half tablespoon cinnamon, one-fourth tablespoon cloves. Mix with well beaten yolks and fold in stiffly beaten whites.

Matzos Cake

Two cups sugar, three-fourths cup butter, six eggs, one cup milk, one cup matzos, cinnamon, two teaspoons allspice, one-half cup chopped nuts, citron, one-half cup raisins.

Cream sugar and butter, add yolks of eggs. To this mixture add one cup milk, the fruits mixed with the flour and lastly the beaten whites. Bake in bread pan. When cold, ice with chocolate icing.

Matzos and Potato Kremsel

Five eggs, two tablespoons sugar, three tablespoons mashed potatoes, six tablespoons matzos meal.

Separate eggs, mix yolks with sugar; add potato and work well together. Beat whites stiff and add to yolks, then fold in flour slowly. Take one cup chicken or goose fat or butter. Put in deep pan, let it come to a boil; then drop batter from tablespoon into hot fat like a doughnut and fry brown on both sides. Drip off fat and sprinkle with powdered sugar while hot. Ready to serve.

Marrow Dumplings

One tablespoon marrow creamed. Add pinch of salt, little nutmeg, yolk of one egg mixed in gradually, some finely chopped parsley and then enough matzos meal to hold. Wet hand and roll mixture into small balls. Add to boiling soup and boil fifteen minutes.

Matzos Knaidal

Four eggs well beaten, two heaping tablespoons chicken fat, season with salt and pepper, one glass cold water.

Add matzos flour to make a loose batter and let stand for fifteen minutes; then make balls and put into boiling soup and cover with lid. Let boil for three-quarters of an hour.

Matzos Sponge

Three eggs (mix yolks with pinch of salt), one and one-half teaspoon matzos flour.

Beat whites and fold in. Pour all off into boiling soup, cover immediately and boil ten minutes. Cut with spoon into serving portions.

PLOT TO INSTIGATE RITUAL MURDER ACCUSATION DISCOVERED IN RADOM

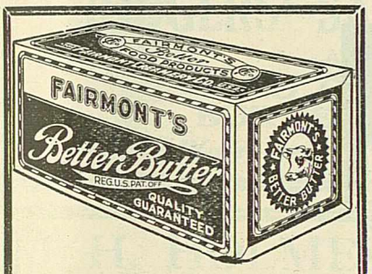

Warsaw, March 24 (J. T. A.)—A plot to instigate a ritual murder accusation against the Jewish community in Radom was discovered in the nick of time last night when two Christian Poles were seen attempting to leave the body of a dead Christian boy in a Jewish matzos bakery.

The two Poles were carrying the sack containing the body when they were arrested by the police.

The Jewish population considers it a miracle that the plot was discovered, thus preventing any Passover riots.

Days of preparations, planning, bustling.

What a wedding that was!

Never to be forgotten, because it came at the period which was the turning point in their lives, because it was woven in gold against a background of black.

Because Baba Goldstein was the first pilgrim bride in the Holy Land.

The wedding was held in the house of an Arab, where Baba and her parents were then living. The forty odd families all assembled in the large, spacious "liwan," which is the Harem or private salon of a Moslem household. Such merriment, such rejoicing when the bride entered, wearing a cream colored gown she had brought from Roumania. It set off to advantage her blue eyes, brown hair and fair skin. A Frank rabbi, a native Oriental Jew with swarthy features, who wore a red fez and a sarawell, something that resembled a divided skirt, married them. The wedding ring was a silver band an Arab goldsmith had made especially for the groom, because there was no gold among them.

The guests sat down to a feast which included soup, fish, a roast, and potatoes. This was the most sumptuous repast they had had since their arrival. Then the colonists exhibited their presents. There was nothing new, for money had long since vanished from their midst. But there were charming gifts. Ear rings from the woman who had been a jeweler's wife in Roumania. Rich silk from the pack the former merchant had brought with him. A chair, a few fancy dishes, gleaming pots and pans from housewives, a lace scarf. Every woman gave the bride something of her own treasures, and with it a bit of herself in the spirit which Lowell describes as "'tis not what we give, but what we share, for the gift without the giver is bare."

There was even a honeymoon for the young bride and groom. Although the families were busy packing and making preparations to leave Haifa for the colony, Goldstein and his bride were given two weeks of holiday. Each day they roamed throughout the countryside, drinking in the beauty of Mt. Carmel and the Mediterranean. At night they returned to their single room in the Arab's house. But soon they were to have a home of their own. What mattered these four walls that hemmed them in an alien household?

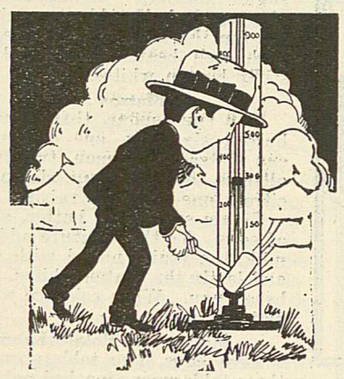

But not so soon were the bridal couple to have a home. When they arrived at Zicron, all the colonists started erecting shelters. Baba Goldstein's father was the oldest man in the colony. He could not be expected to carry water, mix lime, and work for hours in the sun. So Baba and her sister took it upon themselves to build their parents a home. They were young and strong, and went about the task eagerly. Her husband could not help because, all day long he was in the fields. In the few hours before darkness set in, he was hard at work helping his brother-in-law build a home for his sister and her children.

But finally, within a few weeks, came the day when those homes were finished and then Baba met her husband at sundown and worked with him on the long, low building that was to be their nest. Every day, in those few hours before the rose colored sun sank slowly behind the majestic Carmel, they worked and soon the dream-house became a reality. True, it was divided into two rooms, one for them, and the other for the oxen and the cows. But it was home—their very own home—tucked away in the heart of the colony.

It was usually here, that the other colonists came evenings, when their day's work was done and the simple repast over. Here they talked about the affairs of the day, read aloud the letters that had come from Roumania and they talked of the time when the colony would live on its crops and be independent. Perhaps the day would come when they could even arrange to repay the Baron for his financial investment—how could they ever repay him for his kindness and inspiration?

These were the strains that ran like overtones through their meetings at the home of Baba Goldstein. They were drawn there by the magnet of young love. Perhaps there they saw the vision of life in the true spirit of the Holy Land. This was all they wanted. Not wealth nor luxuries, but simply to once more plant roots in the land of their fathers.

Not for their own sake were they undergoing these physical hardships. They realized they would not reap all the harvests. But it was for their progeny, for the seed which the Lord had promised Isaac would be multiplied as the stars in Heaven, for the seed out of which He had said nations would spring and kings come, to whom He forever would be God.

ANTI-SEMITES PREPARE TO REIGN IN ROUMANIA, CUZA STATES

Would Introduce Numerus Clausus for Trade and Commerce

Jassy, March 24 (J. T. A.)—The anti-Semitic party in Roumania is preparing to take over the government for the purpose of extending its anti-Jewish crusade, according to Alexander Cuza, leader of the Roumanian anti-Semites, in an address he delivered here last night.

"If we form the government, we will make radical changes. We will take particular action against the Judaization of the cities in Roumania; we will expropriate the houses owned by Jews and give them to the Gentile population. We will introduce a numerous clausus for trade and commerce Cuza declared."

The universities of Bucharest and Jassy, closed by the government temporarily because of the continuation of the strike of the anti-Semitic students, will be opened on April 15th, it was learned here today.

When the universities are reopened, every student will have to sign a declaration as to whether or not he will attend the lectures. In case a majority of the students declare their readiness to attend, the lectures will be held, and those not signing the declaration will be excluded.

VICTORY OF THE HAKOAH SPORT CLUB IN ENGLAND

By A. Starkman

On April 25th, the first match between the football team of the National Jewish Sport Club Hakoah of Vienna, and picked players of the Southern New York Football Association will take place at the Polo Grounds, in New York. This will be one of the three games which the Hakoah team will play in New York. After that will follow games in other cities. The eleven white-blue football players with the Mogen-David on their chests, will measure their strength and skill with the best American teams throughout the country.

This news which has appeared recently in the press, has called forth considerable interest in the American sport world and especially in Jewish circles; many, no doubt, shrug their shoulders and ask: who are these Hakoah fellows, where do they come from and what gives them the courage to come to America, the land of football, and challenge the American teams.

The readers of the Jewish papers are more or less familiar with the Hakoah and its aims. They know that this Jewish Sport Club, which differs from other sport organizations in that it is based on an ideal—the physical development of the Jewish masses—came into existence seventeen years ago as a football club and in the course of the last few years, since the war, it has grown in significance so that today it is one of the most important national sport organizations. As regards football playing, the Hakoah team is today not only the champion team of Austria, but actually the champion of Europe. The Jewish football team has played and won in Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary, in Poland, in Palestine, in Switzerland, Sweden, Germany and England. Backed by this record, the Hakoah has come to test its strength in America. In coming here they have the same purpose as they had everywhere they played—that is to strengthen the idea of physical development among the Jewish masses and to land the sport-movement among the American Jewish youth a national Jewish character.

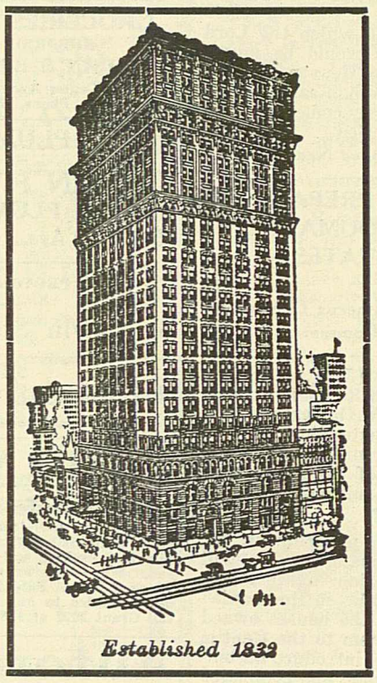

Of all the successes which the Vienna Jewish Sport Club achieved, there is one which perhaps more than all the others combined justifies the Hakoah in challenging the Americans. That is the victory won by the Hakoah team in the fall of 1923 over England's champion team, "Westham United." This event was one of the most interesting chapters in the history of the Hakoah. That victory of the Jewish players resounded throughout Europe and was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm in Vienna.

For many years the Austrian football players cherished a deep desire to display their prowess in England. Their teams acquired considerable fame playing in various parts of Europe, but there was one country—England, the motherland of the sport—where the Vienna players had never played. Such a trip, from Vienna to London is connected with difficulty and large expense, and no Vienna sport club could undertake it even in the pre-war days, not to speak of the after-war period. So this desire remained unfulfilled until one day at the end of the summer of 1923 when the Vienna sport world was suddenly astonished to learn that the football team of the Jewish Sport Club Hakoah, was preparing to go to England.

The players of the "Westham United" had been in Vienna several months before that and becoming familiar with the activities of the Hakoah, invited the Jewish football team to play in London. This was a difficult and costly venture for the Hakoah. Besides, the chances of a victory over the English football champions were quite slim. The circumstances were such that any other sport club in Austria would hardly have accepted the invitation.

But the Jewish football players did not hesitate long and accepted the invitation of the British, for with them the question of winning or losing was of minor importance. The main thing was the publicity which such a trip to England would create for the Hakoah and its aims.

The Hakoah team started out on its trip to England August 29th, 1923. Arriving in England the eleven Jewish football players were met by several sport representatives as well as a number of representatives of the Zionist players, whose guests the Jewish players were. The British press did not make much fuss over the whole affair, giving but a few brief items about the arrival of the Jewish sport club and the game which had been arranged with the Westham team. It was obvious that the English sport world did not regard the forthcoming contest very seriously; it was almost taken for granted that the English Champions, would triumph over the Vienna players. As a matter of fact even in the circles of the Hakoah itself and its followers, there was little optimism. There were only two in the group of Jewish players who held out some hope of possible victory. All the others prophecied defeat. It was only a couple of days before the historical game that the Jewish players, witnessing a contest between the Westham and Sunderland teams concluded that the British were not so undefeatable as had been thought.

The great day came at last on September 3rd, 1923. Thousands and thousands of London sportsmen went to Westham to witness the game between the Hakoah players and the British champions. Naturally there was a large number of Jews among the public, who awaited impatiently the outcome of the contest. The game began promptly at 6 in the evening and the beginning was not at all a pleasant one for the Hakoah. The Westham players made a stormy attack with the evident purpose of bewildering the Jewish players at the very outset and it seemed like a sure defeat for the Hakoah. However, the Hakoah men did not lose their heads, playing deliberately and with calculation, and about 6:20, that is, 20 minutes after the game had begun, one of the Jewish players scored the first point.

A jubilant outcry resounded over the field and the white-blue banners were waved by the Hakoah enthusiasts. The vast mass of English fans remained indifferent. Everyone felt that within a few minutes the Westham men would re-assert themselves and beat the Jewish players. But soon the Hakoah scored again and then a third time. The cheering began to grow louder and louder, but the English fans still hoped for a Westham victory.

Their hopes were futile, however, the British players were losing. They exerted all their power but every effort was frustrated by the remarkable maneuvers of the Hakoah men. The result was 5 to 0 in favor of the Hakoah.

This victory had hardly any parallel in the history of Austrian sport. It was without a doubt the greatest event in the career of the Hakoah and what this meant for the prestige of Austria can be understood from the statement which the Austrian ambassador in London made at that time:

"Through this football victory," he declared, "the Vienna Jewish Sport Club Hakoah has enhanced Austria's prestige in England more than all the efforts of the Austrian statesmen."

All England was excited over this event. The victory of the Jewish football players over the English champions reechoed throughout Europe and when the Hakoah men returned to Vienna they were greeted with a high and enthusiastic demonstration in which thousands of violet Austrian patriotic and anti-Semites participated. Hakoah has become a name of which every Austrian, no matter how narrow-minded and Jewish he may be, is proud.

SABBATH ANGEL

THE BLUE BOX

By Dov Kimchi

(This story happens in Palestine. If you remember, Silvercoin has just parted with the little schoolgirl, his friend and playmate, Annie. She has dropped him into A Blue Box. Now hear what adventure he meets with next.)

Silvercoin is the "Union of Forgotten People," or the Story of

A String of Pearls

"Coins! Coins! Shalom!" With this greeting of "Peace!" I fell into the Blue Box—the Redemption Box.

"Klip. . . Klip. . . Klip. . . Shalom, Shalom." Thus I was greeted by my new friends in the Blue Box. Then everything was quiet. We knew that we were in a school, and must not make a noise. And so each crouched in its corner.

Looking around me immediately after my arrival, I picked out from the heap of my comrades, a small coin which glittered and glistened like me —though he had not been polished in Annie's hand. He had rolled in from one of the colonies and was called the "Country-coin." I drew near to him softly. It was so hard for me to be silent. I said to myself, "As soon as night falls, we shall be telling our adventures. I must get to know them all, first." I glanced around and saw another companion; he was quite black and he squeezed himself into a corner like a naughty child. It was enough to make one feel afraid of him. Then I saw how they arranged themselves, in groups and rows, and in the different corners. It was only later, at night, that I found out that those coins which came from the same neighborhood, did not want to be separated here. One group was called the "American Group." They had all rolled in from America. Another group—the "African Group." And besides, there were many more from foreign lands—from Poland, Roumania, Turkey, Russia—from the four corners of the earth. Then I saw one lonely, unhappy fellow at one side—a sad, rusty coin, if ever there was one! It seemed as if tears had at one time flowed down his cheeks—tears which had dried up.

As I was thus examining my companions, a bell rang. The last hour had come to an end. The girls went home, and it was soon as silent outside our box as inside.

Night fell. In front of the third class window, the birds were chirping their last song and looking for their nest. Then we began to speak and to tell about our adventures. The time passed very pleasantly, except for one thing. As each of us spoke, our black friend, there in his corner, grumbled something to himself, in a strange foreign language, which we could not understand. We did not know what he was saying, but his grumbling voice frightened us. However, we continued to talk, until, about midnight, a silence fell. Then it was our sad friend's turn—the lonely and rusty coin, down whose face tears had at one time flowed—tears that had dried.

"I was once a string of pearls," he began. We all looked at him, in wonder, and couldn't understand. "Yes, I was a string of pearls, once. . ." he repeated. "A string of pearls belonging to a Jewish family in the Ukraine. The pearls were a hundred years old. They had come down from generation to generation, from mother to daughter, and from daughter to granddaughter. At one time, they were sewn around the head-covering of the rabbi's old wife; then they were made into a necklace for her granddaughter, the young wife of a young rabbi, after she was married. And once—" our friend gave a deep sigh— "once."

And it seemed to all of us that he would be choked by tears,—by the tears which had dried up.

"Once—the Jews were murdered in this Ukrainian city. Only a few managed to save their lives. Among the latter were the rabbi and his wife, and they took the string of pearls with them. They had fled into a forest and were hiding there. Suddenly, they heard revolver shots. The rabbi was killed. And the poor old woman fell down in a fainting fit.

"When she woke up in the morning, she found two Cossacks standing in front of her, with their revolvers pointed. The old woman took the string of pearls out of the bag which she carried in her bosom, and gave it to them. They took the pearls, and threw a bundle of crushed bank-notes to the old woman, for her traveling expenses."

Deep silence. We knew that the story was not yet over. Our black friend made a groaning sound. A shudder went round among us.

Copyright, 1921, by JUDITH ISH-KISHOR

"The old woman went to Palestine, where she changed what was left of her crushed bank-notes, and received for them a golden coin. She took the coin in her hand and stroked it, and night and day her tears fell upon it. She wept for her murdered sons, for her husband who had been killed before her very eyes." The bright, sparkling coin from the colony shuddered from head to "tail." It was the first time that he had heard such a frightful story, and he asked in a voice that could hardly be heard:

"And how did you get here?"

But the mournful, rusty coin didn't answer immediately. Once again, it was quite silent in our box. One star stood just in front of our window. I knew that, because a narrow, silver splinter of light came in at our slot.

"The old woman looked after this coin, rusty with tears, as if it were the apple of her eye. She knotted it in her handkerchief, and hid it away as if it were some costly treasure. . . .

"Then came a bright, sunny day in Jerusalem. It was the 15th day of Shevat, the New Year of the Trees.

"School girls went around with Blue Boxes, to collect money. They came to every house, and so it happened that they knocked at the door of the old Rabbi's wife.

"Who's there?" asked the old woman from her bed, which she never left now.

"It is we—" and the two girls rattled their boxes.

"Oh, come in," said the old woman, from her dark room. The girls entered. The old woman sat up, and a soft, sweet laughter lit up her face. She had laughed like that when she was a very young girl. She said:

"I want to give you the string of pearls———" Then she raised the pillow which was behind her head, took out the handkerchief, and with trembling hands carefully undid the knot. Then she took the coin and threw it into the box."

Once again all was quiet. And for many hours after the rusty coin had finished his story, we saw the old rabbi's wife and the string of pearls.

(Silvercoin finds out, next week, why Annie abandoned him; and why the rabbi's old wife parted with her precious coin. And the Black Coin frightens him again—though for the last time! What is that Black Coin worried about? We'll see next week.)

LORD ROTHSCHILD'S ANSWER.

In England, where Lord Rothschild lived, there was very little anti-Semitism. King Edward VII was often a guest at his house. But, when he traveled in Europe, Lord Rothschild would sometimes meet with Jew-haters, who tried their best to make things as unpleasant for him as they could. But the English Jew was very witty, and they could get little satisfaction out of him.

One evening, at a dinner party, one of the guests was telling about his travels to the Island of Madagascar. Lord Rothschild's neighbor turned to him and said:

"They say that there are neither dogs nor Jews on that wonderful island." Quick as a flash came Rothschild's answer:

"In that case, we could both go there!"

RIDDLE BOX

Yes, Gertrude Schlesinger was telling the truth. When you took the first letters of her Jumbled name Puzzle, they gave the name of a great Judge, who—in this case—was "Deborah." These are the successful Seekers after Truth: Mildred Burstein, 243 East Broadway; Bessie Leve, 9 West 114th Street; Hazel Friedman, 1200 Madison Avenue, New York City; Sol Moskowitz, 1787 Bergen Street; Arthur Lyons, 2104 Eighty-second Street; Henrietta Blaustein, 809 Halsey Street; Sam Carliner, 1436 Forty-second Street; Sylvia Liebman, 142 South Ninth Street, Brooklyn; Ida Singer, 64 Lafayette Avenue, Suffern, N. Y. (Hello, Ida! What have you been doing this long while?) And another welcome guest! Dorothy Nadler, 440 West Fourth Street, Plainfield, N. J.; and Theodore Engelman, 306 Ophelia Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Esther Abelsky, 276 South Pryor Street, Atlanta, Ga.; and Alfred Katz, 1215 Maplewood Avenue, Birmingham, Alabama. Newer friends who succeeded are: Harry Pearlman, 481 Twelfth Street, Sarasota, Florida; and Esther Lefkowitz, 4259 Saline Street, Pittsburgh, Pa. (No, I can't say I love Hamantashen, Harry. But I like a Hamantash. You see, I can never eat more than one! —But I like the other things you mentioned fine!)

Now, we come to the answer of the Purim Puzzle. The name "Esther" means a "Star." That is one reason why I gave you a Star Puzzle for Purim.

1. The first letter in the name of the first Shepherd was.....	A	(bel)
2. The title of a learned man is.....	R A B B I
3. A desert south of the Dead Sea was the Wilderness of.....	Z I N	or (Sin)
4. The father of the Purim heroine—Esther's father was.....	A B I H A I L
5. One of God's creatures	M A N	or (cat)
6. A verb from Chap. 4, verse 1, in the Book of Esther.....	C R I E D
7. The last letter in the name of the first shepherd	L	(Abel)

....Now you see that the Name "Abihail" goes down the middle of the Star, as well as straight across it. That's the trick, in making a Diamond or Star Puzzle. Our Mildred worked it out—(Burstein is her other name, as I think you know)—also the sturdy Solomon Moskowitz; and Theodore Engelman, and Esther Lefkowitz again, and Esther Abelsky—(trust Esthers to get after this!) and Harry Pearlman. Also Sylvia Liebman and Grace Schwarzchild, 1359 Fifty-first Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. (The addresses of the others are in the first list.) I'm sorry that Marcia Gorchoff, Chicago, answered the "Dan" puzzle too late. Try again, Marcia.

OUR MAIL

I must tell you that Esther Abelsky is to be the reporter of School News for her School to the "Journal," one of the three daily papers in the City of Atlanta, where she lives. That's an honor and a responsibility—No?

An interesting letter has just come from Felix Rosenthal, 214 Innis Street, Oil City, Pa. It is full of news—though it couldn't have been good news.

Dear Miss Ish-Kishor:

This is my first attempt at writing letters for publication and I hope it will be a success. I live in Oil City. You have probably read about the flood there. On Shabbos night, the ice moved out and got gorged at a place ten miles below Oil City, called Brandon. The gorge backed the water up sufficiently to flood the power house, thus putting three generators and a turbine out of commission. As a result, we had no lights for three days. The candles were lit on Shabbos night, so we had light for that night, and the rest of the time we got on with flashlights and gas lights. The large stores are putting their goods up on shelves, high above the floor level, so if another flood does come, they will not lose any more goods. Two days ago there was a slight movement of ice, and it gorged above a railroad bridge, and the water backed up and flooded the pump house. We still haven't got any water that is fit to drink. A "prof" from McGill University is here with a chemical called "Thermit." It is supposed to melt the ice and weaken it so it will move out on the next raise of water.

The answer to Sylvia Liebman's acrostic is *. If it isn't right, I guess it is my hard luck.

Yours

Felix Rosenthal.

P. S.—I am thirteen years old.

(You'll see pretty soon whether you got that puzzle right, Felix, but I didn't want to give the game away now, and I liked your letter so well I wanted to print it complete—or almost complete!)
