

A Story Of Russians—A Soccer Game—And A Miracle

By RINNA GROSSMAN

JERUSALEM (AJP)—Though Middle Eastern tensions still compete with the U. S. political news in the headlines of the world press, and although Suez is almost as loaded a word at this writing as it was last week, perhaps we may be permitted to turn our attention to a more diverting and far pleasanter story—for a change. This time, let us deal with the rare commodity of International amity, and with the facts of peace and of fair play.

The curtain rises. The date: July 11, 1956. The Place: the great sports Stadium in Moscow. The starring actors: Russia's stellar soccer team and Israel's counterpart to it. The occasion: a match the results of which would determine which teams would play in Melbourne, when the Olympic Games open in November. The Olympic Committee, having decided that soccer would be one of the competitive games at Melbourne, had divided the world into four areas. Each of the four areas, having eliminated all but winning teams, would then contribute these teams for the final matches.

No one could beat the Russians. Everyone knew that day at the Moscow Stadium that no great drama would be enacted. Israel was playing on foreign soil against world champions. It was enough for the crowd almost to watch the entre'acte. The people of Moscow had stared curiously, some even longingly at the Israelis, at their flag which flew over the Stadium, and listened curiously to their national anthem. Not many of the ordinary folk of Moscow get a chance to see foreigners, and these were more exotic than most.

A Good Game Played

This was a Jewish team from that strange, controversial little country somewhere near the Suez Canal. No, no one thought they would win — and they didn't, but it didn't matter much. They comported themselves, as all Israel knew they would, like good sportsmen, playing the game for the game's sake. And for Russia's Jews, this way . . . well, who really could guess what it meant to them to catch a glimpse of the rugged, bronzed men from the Holy Land, or to hear their blunt, familiar Hebrew. It was a big event. Bigger than most such matches, involving more than the fans, somehow disproportionately more important for everyone concerned.

The Israelis came back home and started to work. They trained and prepared themselves to be hosts to the Russian team. And all Israel, knowing that Israel could not win, hoped against hope that the five to nothing score of the Moscow Stadium could be changed, just a bit.

That day, that exciting, never-to-be-forgotten day, the uninformed visitor walking through Israel's streets might have thought it almost a day of national mourning. Worked stopped that afternoon. Everyone who could not pack into the crowded Stadium at Ramat Gan sat near a radio. 50,000 people sat under the boiling sun at the Stadium, but thousands more sat at home, in cafes,

Senator Lehman Will Retire From Politics

NEW YORK, (JTA) — Efforts were being made by top leaders of the Democratic and Liberal Parties, as well as by labor leaders, to induce Senator Herbert H. Lehman to reconsider his decision not to seek re-election to the U. S. Senate.

In announcing that he intends to return to private life, Sen. Lehman emphasized that he reached this decision "with a very heavy heart." His announcement came as a surprise, although he has repeatedly hinted during recent months that he would not seek the Senate seat again.

Leading American newspapers devoted editorials evaluating the 30-year record of Sen. Lehman's public service, especially as Governor of New York State, and as a member of the U.S. Senate. They also emphasized his activities as Director General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration after World War II, and pointed out that, as chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, he was responsible for raising $75,000,000 for Jewish relief purposes.

In his announcement, Sen. Lehman said: "Public service has been my life for nearly thirty years. Despite the frustrations and disappointments attendant in every field of activity, I have found it a deeply rewarding experience. I have enjoyed my work and I hope that I have been able to make some contribution to my state and to the nation. I am grateful for the friendships I have made, and for the opportunity of participating in measure in making important decisions affecting not only the welfare of my own state, but of the entire free world. I have given to my work everything I have."

Shaare Torah Greeted By Eisenhower On Occasion Of Dedication Ceremony

President Eisenhower sent a personal message to the Shaare Torah upon the occasion of the forthcoming Dedication Ceremonies and Banquet to be held this coming Sunday, August 26 at 4:30 p.m. marking the completion of its Edifice. The President's message reads:

"A Policy of Impartial Friendship"

Republican Party Approves Israel Platform Plank But Omits Issue of Arms

SAN FRANCISCO, (JTA)—The Republican National Convention unanimously adopted a platform plank which includes a pledge "to support the independence of Israel against armed aggression," but avoids any mention of supplying American defensive arms to Israel, needed to balance the arms obtained by Egypt from Communist countries.

The adopted plank put the Republican Party under obligation to "support a policy of impartial friendship for the peoples of the Arab states and Israel to promote a peaceful settlement of the causes of tension in that area, including the human problem of the Palestine-Arab refugees." At the same time, the plank emphasizes that the Republican Party "regards the preservation of Israel as an important tenet of American foreign policy" and is "determined that the integrity of an independent Jewish state shall be maintained."

Objection Voiced

Strong objection to the phrase "Jewish state" used in the Republican platform plank was voiced by the American Council for Judaism, in a telegram sent to the platform committee. However, the objection was ignored. The Council maintained that the term "Jewish state" implies the national attachment of all Jews to the State of Israel.

The fight against the plank was led by Alfred Lilienthal, spokesman for the so-called "National Committee for Security and Justice in the Middle East," who complained that the Republicans draft was little better, in his viewpoint, than the Democratic platform adopted in Chicago.

The New York Republican delegation had sought the inclusion in the platform of a pledge for defensive arms for Israel, similar to the pledge made in the Democratic platform. Attorney General Jacob Javits of New York, noted Republican, defended the proposed Republican platform. However, he indicated that it did not go as far as the New York Republican delegation had wanted.

The Plank Statement

The Republican plank on Israel is a general restatement of previous positions taken on the Israel-Arab issue by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The text reads as follows:

"We recognize the existence of a major threat to international peace in the Near East. We support a policy of impartial friendship for the peoples of the Arab states and Israel to promote a peaceful settlement of the causes of tension in that area, including the human problem of the Palestine-Arab refugees.

"Progress toward a just settlement of the tragic conflict between the Jewish state and the Arab nations in Palestine was upset by the Soviet bloc sale of arms to Arab countries. But prospects of peace have now been reinforced by the mission to Palestine of the United Nations Secretary General upon the initiative of the United States.

"We regard the preservation of Israel as an important tenet of American foreign policy. We are determined that the integrity of an independent Jewish state shall be maintained. We shall support the independence of Israel against armed aggression. The best hope for peace in the Middle East lies in the United Nations. We pledge our continued efforts to eliminate the obstacles to a lasting peace in this area."

The platform made what might possibly be meant as a reference to Saudi Arabian discrimination against U.S. Jews, but Saudi Arabia was not mentioned by name. The platform said: "We approve appropriate action to oppose the imposition by foreign governments of discrimination against United States citizens, based on their religion or race."

Suez Not Mentioned

The platform omitted all mention of the Suez situation. Referring to the Middle East, a preamble to the platform said the Republican Administration had "maintained and will maintain friendly relations with all nations in this vital area, seeking to mediate differences among them, and encouraging their legitimate national aspirations."

Republican advocates of U.S. arms for Israel have tacitly accepted the decision of the Platform Committee to omit reference to arms, and are hailing the platform as the best that could be obtained under the circumstances.

Canaanite Caves Found

NAHARIYA (IST) — Construction in Hanita, in northern Galilee, has uncovered a set of burial caves of the Middle and Late Bronze Periods. The caves were hewn in rocks. Complete pottery articles of superior workmanship were also discovered at the site.

A number of burial places of the Roman-Byzantine Period were also discovered in the area. Skeletons found in them were in excellent condition, and a number of bracelets, pins and other jewelry were found alongside the skeletons.

Agreement With Saudia Arabia Reached On U.S. Dhahran Airbase Lease

WASHINGTON, (JTA) — State Department made known that an "informal agreement" has been reached with Saudi Arabia to indefinitely extend the right of the U.S. to use the Dhahran Airbase, even though the formal lease expired early last month. It is understood that the same conditions will apply until negotiations to renew the five year lease are completed. Dhahran Airfield, with facilities for 1500 United States airmen, will continue to bar U.S. Jewish servicemen from the base.

Want To "Strike It Rich"? Just Ask Walt Framer How

NEW YORK, (Special to The Outlook)—Whatever Walt Framer hoped for when he came to New York about fifteen years ago has happened—PLUS. The hustling, bustling Pittsburgher has one of the most popular TV production outfits in the nation, one of the plushiest offices this side of the Gateway Plaza, and THE most successful of formulae—dynamic drive.

One has just to talk with Mr. Framer for a very few moments, and she (Bea, in this case) is overwhelmed with the tremendous personality of the originator of "Strike It Rich" and "The Big Payoff." He knows the radio-TV picture inside, outside and in-between; his phones ring constantly, to see if he could get a mill job.

Walt Framer

Impressed By Story

The story particularly impressed Mr. Framer, who had been used to hearing all kinds of joking, joshing remarks, and he made a mental note of the fellow's plight, thinking that there must be hundreds, if not thousands of other persons walking around under such depressing circumstances. The results of that mental note did not pay off for Walt Framer alone: they have helped scores of unfortunate individuals find employment through a monetary boost on one of TV's most popular shows, "Strike It Rich."

Mr. Framer's other top show, "The Big Payoff," was also based on a local show, in which contestants won prizes for friends or relatives. With Bess Myerson and Randy Merriman at the helm, and a group of glamorous models as crew members, here's another vessel which ought to be sailing around for quite a while — Framer's feature again!

See now why Walt Framer believes in making a production of every thing?

No Problem In Air Force

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Israel has enough trained flying personnel and ground crews to man whatever modern planes she obtains, Brigadier Dan Tolkowsky, commander of the Israel Air Force, declared at a press conference here. He said that the quality of Israel's military manpower is "good." Asked if the Air Force plans to protect Israel's cities against air attack, he said that Israeli planes would retaliate against any enemy attacks by hitting his cities, "which is the only way to protect our cities."

GI's Study At Nazi Estate

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, (JTA) — About 400 American Jewish soldiers and officers are now spending a five-day religious retreat in the hunting lodge which formerly belonged to Hermann Goering, top Nazi leader. The lodge is at the disposal of military chaplains of all demoninations, as a "religious retreat house" for servicemen of the U.S. armed forces.

Study sessions, devoted to fundamentals of Judaism, are being conducted at the retreat by Lt. Col. Meir Engel of Heidelberg. The American Jewish servicemen attending these sessions have come from U.S. Army, Air Force and Navy installations throughout Europe. Strict kashruth is adhered to in the kitchens.

Survey Of Job-Seekers Reveals Discrimination

NEW YORK, (JTA) — For the second successive year, a survey of Jewish job-seekers has shown that fair employment practice laws apparently have reduced discriminatory questioning of applicants about their religion, by both employers and commercial employment agencies. Such questioning is still widespread, however.

The survey covered the experience of 2,319 applicants registering at Jewish vocational service agencies in 15 cities in the United States and Canada during March 1956.

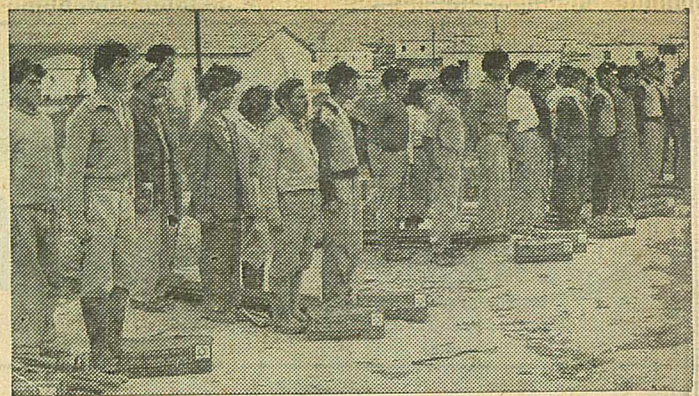

The report reveals that in U.S. cities not covered by state or local fair employment laws, 45 per cent of those who had also registered with private employment agencies had been asked about their religion. In cities protected by Fair Employment Practices laws, only 4.4 per cent had been asked such questions at private employment agencies.

Similar, but less striking differences were found in the case of those who had applied direct to employers. In cities without FEP, 17 per cent reported they had been asked about their religion, as compared with about 8½ per cent in FEP cities. The percentages are almost identical with those found in a similar survey in March, 1955.

Contrary to the common assumption that minorities tend to be overly sensitive and to suspect discrimination where it does not exist, the survey suggests that many applicants neither recognize nor complain of discrimination, even when they encounter it. Less than one out of five of those who were asked about their religion by commercial employment agencies felt that they were discriminated against "in any way."

Israel Shows Its Wares At Annual Fair In Turkey

IZMIR, (JTA) — More than 150 Israeli firms are represented with exhibits at the annual Izmir International Fair which just opened. This is the fifth year of Israel's participation in this major commercial event. In one of the most attractive pavilions on the Fair Grounds, Israel this year is displaying cement, tires, chemical products, construction materials, drugs, irrigation and agricultural machinery, and electrical appliances.

FIRST-AIDERS UNDERGO A REFRESHER COURSE at a border village. Their first-aid kits and stretchers were recently rushed to Israel by American Red Mogen Dovid, Israel's Red Cross.

Dulles Hit For Bias

WASHINGTON, (JTA) — Rep. Emanuel Celler of New York accused Secretary of State Dulles of not only dodging the issue of alleged Arab discrimination against American Jews but also of excusing the Arab behavior.

In a statement issued by his office, Rep. Celler said the Secretary's pledge to take "formal diplomatic action" to curb Arab discrimination against American Jews is "meaningless in the Arab setting." He said "standing alone, it will not give equality to our citizenry in those countries."

Secretary Dulles wrote to the B'nai B'rith last week pledging diplomatic action aimed at ending discrimination against U.S. citizens in the Arab states. He said "U.S. envoys were directed to 'emphasize the equality of all Americans.'"

Mr. Celler asserted that "instead of implementing the Senate resolution and the congressional declaration, he dodges both. He even offers excuses for these Arab outrages. One would think that he was seeking to defend the Arab action."

The Senate, by formal resolution, opposed Arab discrimination against Americans of Jewish faith and American business firms owned by Jews.

Jew Leaves JNF Money

SAN FRANCISCO, (JTA) — A San Francisco Jew, Frederick Burstein, who had never made any contribution to the Jewish National Fund, left $75,000 to the organization in his will, with the provision that the money be used for helping children in one of the JNF border villages in Israel.

A check for $55,960 on account of the sum bequeathed was handed over to JNF officials by the Bank of America. The remainder will be paid later. Mr. Burstein, who was a beauty salon owner in this city, died last year. He was childless.

Radio Network Plan Vetoed

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Plans for the licensing of a commercial radio network in this country, to parallel the government-owned Voice of Israel, were rejected by the Cabinet, despite earlier approval by Joseph Burg, Minister of Posts and Telegraph, and several other members of the Cabinet.

The proposal for establishment of a commercial radio set-up, made by American companies, which had held out to the government promises of sizeable revenue from such licensing, was opposed by the Cabinet as a whole on the grounds that commercial radio would operate outside government control. Voice of Israel is under control of a special Advisory Council, comprised of representatives of all sectors and groups in the Israel population.

Heart Disease Top Killer

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Israel's number one killer is coronary disease, it was reported here in a study covering causes of death in 1953 and 1954. The survey was issued by the Central Statistical Bureau. The survey covered only Jewish citizens of Israel, as adequate statistics for other sectors of the population are still unavailable for that time period. The tuberculosis death rate which stood at 151 for 1953, was reduced to 141 in 1954. The incidence of polio was reduced from 130 to 89 in the same period. The figures for coronary disease showed that it had been responsible for 1,240 of a total of 9,227 deaths in 1953, while it accounted for 1,380 of a total of 9,635 the following year.

Dear Friends and Depositors:

We announce with pride that M. A. Cancelliere, President of the Western Pennsylvania National Bank, has purchased a controlling interest in the capital stock of the Washington Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The rapid growth and progressive policies of the Western Pennsylvania National Bank has been the talk of banking circles. The Washington Trust Company has been successful because of its unique personalized banking service that has won it the loyalty and confidence of many of the district's leading businessmen. Now, the newly-forged financial link between these outstanding and progressive banking institutions is certain to strengthen both, and will enable us to serve our depositors more conveniently and with expanded financial and physical facilities.

Mr. Julius Halpern will continue to serve indefinitely as Chairman of the Board and President of the Washington Trust Company, and its officers, personnel, and Board of Directors remain substantially unchanged. Mr. Halpern wishes to express to the many depositors of the Washington Trust Company his deep appreciation of their friendship and trust, and to emphasize that he is still deeply interested in them and is eager as always, to meet with them personally and discuss their problems. Mr. Cancelliere, of course, is anxious to make his entry into City of Pittsburgh banking an auspicious and successful one, and knows that he can best serve and please the depositors of the Washington Trust Company by continuing the successful practices and principles that have distinguished that institution in the past. In short, the Washington Trust Company will move ahead along the path charted during the past ten years, and that path will be improved by additional services, fine new banking quarters, and other progressive steps. The same kind of service, but more of it, is to be the keynote of the Washington Trust Company's future.

Study of plans for a merger of the two institutions is under way, but such a step, if made, would affect only the details of corporate structure, and not the operating practices of either organization.

We thank our many friends for the consideration you have shown us in the past, and hope, through even better service, to merit your continued loyalty.

The Fun Of Learning Hebrew Is Like "Falling In Love"

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

WHILE Israel must keep one hand on the gun, defending itself, and another on the plough, its head is also busy—learning Hebrew. The language of the Bible is becoming a workaday language again. Everybody seems to be taking a Hebrew course. I read an advertisement in one Israeli paper of a course "derech raglayim" (through the feet.) This course combines folk dancing with Hebrew lessons, so you get your language practice as you swing your partner, painlessly and even joyously.

There is something about learning a new language which is akin to falling in love. Everything becomes a little different when learning a new language, as it does when romance begins to creep through the chromosomes. The bread is no longer bread but "lechem" and the water has suddenly become "mayim." It's the same thing, you say; yes, but it's also different.

There is fun in the process. "Fish" becomes "dog" in Hebrew and even sexes are changed. The word "he" in Hebrew means "she" in English.

An American girl working at the fish research station in Haifa asked the chief of the institution for the Hebrew word for "efficiency." He replied quickly, "dayag ba-yam" (fish in sea.)

Translating Problem

When the British ruled Palestine, the name of the main Jerusalem thoroughfare was changed to King George Ave. There was something of a dilemma as to how it was to be translated into Hebrew. "Rahob" is the Hebrew word for street, but there seemed no equivalent for avenue. Then a wit suggested that King George Ave. might be translated into "Avenue Malkenu" (the well known prayer, Our Father, our King).

The scholarly Nahum Sokolow, who was at home in a half dozen languages, once told this writer how he had learned English. He used a Bible as a textbook. Taking an English Bible, he followed it easily, knowing the original. This saved him the trouble of looking up the words in the dictionary. Anyone who has ever tried to learn a new language must know how much time is consumed in locating one or another word.

A beginner in Hebrew might start by learning the Hebrew in English names. The Puritans liked to name their children after the Old Testament patriarchs and prophets. Thus, we find the old American names were mostly Hebrew: Daniel Webster, Noah Webster, Benjamin Franklin, Cotton Mather. Later they switched to naming them after politicians and statesmen, but much of the old stock still survives and all these Hebrew names are combinations of Hebrew words. The "Dan" of Daniel means judge, the Ben of Benjamin means son, Noah means repose. Cotton means small or junior. (Cotton Mather was the son of Increase Mather.) Increase Mather is the Anglicization of the Hebrew Joseph. Incidentally, Cotton Mather knew Hebrew and he is on record as deploring the time his countrymen spent in smoking tobacco, when at the same time, he said, they could be learning Hebrew.

Yiddish Helpful

Those who have a knowledge of Yiddish have a broad base to start acquiring Hebrew. A Hebrew dictionary published in 1912, compiled by Dr. C. D. Spivak in collaboration with the Yiddish poet Yehoash, contains some 300 pages of Hebrew words and phrases used in Yiddish. A glance at this dictionary will show Yiddish speakers that they know much more Hebrew than they thought, and this should reduce the "tsores" in acquiring the language. And "tsores" is an example. It is good Yiddish, but it is of Hebrew origin. It would seem that Jews generally reverted to Hebrew down through the ages.

You fall in love. A "shidduch" is arranged with a "Kalleh" and you go under the "Chupeh." After marriage, let us say, you are "mistoman gevaren" and, God forbid, you get a "get." The second "get" meaning divorce in Hebrew.

Realizing as you do from this dictionary that you already possess an extensive Hebrew vocabulary, should you not pursue your studies further, it would be a "charpeh" and that too is a good Hebrew word.

The best of all methods for acquiring Hebrew is to be a child in Israel. Then it's no trouble at all. The little daughter of a UN official (non-Jewish) attached to Israel, remarked to her father that she supposed the Queen of England spoke Hebrew too. No, replied her father, that was not the case. "Well," asked the child, "what does she speak, Yiddish?"

Isaac Caramel on his last visit from Israel told the story of an Israeli child who was holding forth to a playmate about the various stages of man's life.

"First, he is a child and goes to the kindergarten.

"Then he goes to school and gets educated.

"Then he goes to work and gets married.

"And finally he gets old and speaks Yiddish."

Farband Camp In Its Annual Seminar

The 15th Annual Seminar, District 6, Farband, will be called to order at the Farband Camp in Chelsea, Michigan, on August 26.

A large delegation from this district has made reservations to attend the series of lectures which will highlight the week-long Seminar. Berl Hearshen of Detroit is chairman of the Seminar, and Oscar J. Freedel of Pittsburgh is secretary.

Highlight of the Conference will be an address by Shamay Zvi Laor, Vice Consul of the Israel Consulate in Chicago. Mr. Laor immigrated from Poland to Israel, then Palestine, in 1935 and received his education in Poland and Jerusalem.

During the War of Independence Mr. Laor served in the Israel Air Force and was released from service in 1949 with the rank of Major. Upon his release, Mr. Laor joined the Foreign Office. He served as Vice-Consul in Rome in 1954.

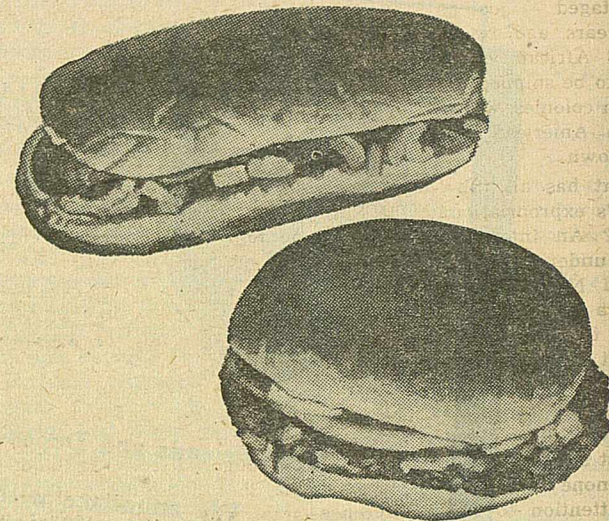

Dr. Aharon Kessler, executive director of the Pittsburgh Council for Jewish Education, will be among the featured speakers at the Seminar.

Labor Zionist leaders from western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan who attend the Seminar will also hear Ephraim Auerbach, Yiddish poet, Masha Benya, Yiddish folk singer, and Yehuda Bleich, actor, comedian and monologist of the Yiddish stage.

"Foods to Remember" will tempt your taste every week in The Outlook.

Suez Issue Creates Question Of Arab Slavery Practices

By SAUL CARSON

IN certain parts of the world, slavery—or what the UN calls “practices similar to slavery”—still plagues the world’s conscience. In Saudi Arabia, there is the suspicion that there may even be markets for the sale of chattel slaves which are transported to foreign lands. “Debt Bondage” is common in a number of Arab lands. Serfdom still exists in many of the states represented in the Arab League. Ships plying the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf still carry slaves. Many of them very young children. In some places in this “modern” world, slave raids are still staged — just as they were 250 years ago by traders, who raided African villages for captives to be shipped into slavery in British colonies, which later formed an American government of their own.

What has all this to do with Egypt’s expropriation of the Suez Canal? An international conference under way right now at United Nations Headquarters in Geneva shows the connection between the Suez and slavery.

That Geneva conference was called many months ago. Except for Britain, which had sponsored a new International Treaty against slavery in the United Nations, none of the big powers paid any attention to that conference call. The United States had announced its indifference. The Soviet Union had opposed Britain’s new treaty proposal. Saudi Arabia, one of the chief sinners, simply stayed aloof. Egypt, in an effort to save Saudi Arabia’s face, led the fight against Britain’s proposal. The new Republic of Sudan, a member of the Arab League, where slavery is still practiced according to some reports, had agreed to attend the Geneva conference, probably in an effort to brazen things out. Israel, which has often denounced slavery here, was very definitely committed to participation.

Large Attendance Indicated

Up to three days before the Geneva meeting was to open, only 11 countries had indicated that they would be represented, Israel among them. Suddenly, over a week-end, notifications of attendance started pouring in from other UN members. The USA changed its mind. The Soviet Union did the same thing. It was obvious that, in this fight between western morality and Arab slave practices, the powers had decided to take a hand. The west wanted to use slavery as a stick with which to beat the Arab world. The Soviet Bloc, despite its profession of advanced liberalism on a subject like slavery, wanted to be sure that its Arab friends did not get hurt too badly.

It is well known here that Saudi Arabia is the world’s last remaining center of slavery. One of the clauses in the new treaty proposed by Britain would brand as “piratical” any ship caught transporting slaves. And pointing the finger directly at Saudi Arabia, that clause designates the sea areas where that rule should operate — a zone including the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf.

The suspicion about the existence of slavery in Sudan was pointed up here some months ago, when the Sudan applied for admission to membership in the United Nations (a plea since approved by the Security Council). A Sudanese diplomat was holding a press conference, when a correspondent asked the diplomat whether slavery still existed in his country. The answer was long and complicated — but it came down to this: In one part of the Sudan, slavery was outlawed a long time ago; he said nothing about other parts of the Sudan.

Israel’s delegation chief, Abba Eban, brought Saudi Arabia’s and Yemen’s slave practices to the fore once, last winter, in the Security Council. Mr. Eban had simply tired of hearing the Arab League spokesman posing as advanced thinkers and, for once, pointed up their backwardness by recalling that practices, which went out of mode in the western world in medieval days, were still in vogue in some Arab lands.

It is ironical that, because of the Suez issue, the big powers have suddenly adopted the slavery issue as one worth arguing.

Friends And Friends

THE two-week circus-type convention-eering, an event peculiar to the American scene, has concluded. The noise and oratory of the Democratic and Republican confabs, after two solid weeks, become a head-splitting blur of sounds which the discriminating listener must sift carefully to separate platitudes and puns from sincerities and solemnities.

A focal point of interest at both affairs was, naturally, the party platform, whose planks will serve as ammunition to ambitious politicians and party spokesmen in the weeks to come. From our particular frame of reference, an interesting comparison of the two parties may be made. This would be in the matter of foreign policy and the promises made on behalf of the Middle East and Israel specifically. We prefer the Democratic platform in this matter, for their foreign policy plank pledges "defensive weapons" for Israel and U. S. adherence to the Tripartite Declaration. The Republican platform, while not unfriendly to Israel, nowhere expresses such a strong assist to the Jewish State.

Before we discuss the planks' significance further, we must inject here a tidbit which should be of interest to local readers. At the pre-convention platform hearings of the Democratic Convention, Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, a member of the Platform Committee, exerted a very significant influence on the deliberations regarding a final stand on Israel. Mayor Lawrence, in an attempt to refute the testimonies offered the Committee by Clarence Coleman, Jr., president of the American Council for Judaism, and Alfred M. Lilienthal, spokesman for the "Committee for Security and Justice in the Middle East," defended Israel and boasted of his own honorary chairmanship of the United Jewish Appeal. Observers noted that the condemnation of anti-Zionist lobbying by Mayor Lawrence, Platform Committee Chairman Rep. John W. McCormack, and other members, constituted the strongest repudiation of anti-Zionist agitation in American political history.

The fact that no such vigor emerged from Republican deliberations is not too astonishing in view of the cut and dried nature of the Republican gathering. The unfortunate fact is that even the strongest of platform planks is of very limited significance. As we pointed out some weeks ago, when Congress was rushing to adjournment, legislators rejected the opportunity to act on some of the very matters which have emerged anew in the shape of campaign pledges. Civil Rights is probably the most pertinent example of the fleeting political promise.

In fact, by now, the very phrase "Civil Rights" is almost an empty, slogan-like rallying call; it provided one of the competitions, however slight, between the two party meetings. The Democrats hollered and shouted long and loud over the semantics of a Civil Rights plank to deal with the Supreme Court desegregation decision. The Republicans, by their choice of a slightly bolder language, gained an edge over the opponents on this issue. But, in both instances, equivocation was the outstanding feature of the deliberations.

A cautious study of both conventions shows that we have friends in all corners, and partisans for all our causes. But there are friends and there are friends, and it is impossible to evaluate recent political bravado separately from recent Congressional procedure. Once we do this, though, we are bound to project any campaign oratory into future action, on either a legislative or executive level. At this point, whether Israel or desegregation is the issue, we are unable to reconcile words with deeds and must pray that intent this time is firm and sincere. There will be a lot of words spoken in haste during the pre-election pleas to voters; the matter of significance, though, will be the ultimate translation of those words into political action.

Senate's Loss

ONE item in the Democratic platform, of which we made no mention above, was a pledge to liberalize this country's now unfair immigration laws. Should such a liberalization ever take place, it will stand as a tribute to one of the nation's legislative giants—Senator Herbert H. Lehman of New York, who has long been a liberal force in various areas of political endeavor. At the convention Senator Lehman stood up to plead for the minority Civil Rights plank, a stronger pronouncement for desegregation than the majority plank which was adopted. In effect, that Convention appearance was Herbert Lehman's swan song in active political life.

The seventy-eight year old politico, who began his public career in 1928 as Lieutenant Governor of New York, announced this week that he was retiring and would not seek renomination for the Senate post. His announcement, not altogether unexpected, signals the end of a career which has been admirable in its vigorous defense of certain very precious ideals.

Senator Lehman will not easily be replaced. His consistent and fearless advocacy of some principles will be sorely missed in the Congress and from numerous platforms. One of his most recent statements will provide a superb example of the fearlessness we mean; on July 31, Senator Lehman issued a declaration on the Suez crisis. It read, in part: "Three years ago President Eisenhower sent to the chief of the Egyptian State, by the hand of Secretary Dulles, the gift of a gun. Today, General Nasser is holding that gun to the heads of the Western Powers. He is pointing it from the Suez Canal and at last we are aroused . . ." Rare oratory for these troubled times.

In addition to his political activities, Herbert H. Lehman, for more than half a century, has been active in behalf of more than a score of Jewish and non-sectarian philanthropies. He has taken a very special interest in child welfare institutions, especially those located in his own state. Somehow, it is easiest to characterize this man by recalling his own words; one of his outstanding addresses was delivered over a year ago at a Carnegie Hall celebration of the American Jewish Tercentenary. On that occasion he pleaded for the development of "inspired leadership" to guarantee peace and social justice; he said "I sense a kind of twilight, a heavy murkiness settling around us. Ideas and ideals have lost their clear shape . . . the burning fire of positive conviction is no longer evident . . ." Thus, he precisely defined the times we live through.

Senator Lehman's career has been a massive one, and we join in paying tribute to his many endeavors.

Puerto Rican Delegate Is Ardent Admirer Of Israel

By MILTON FRIEDMAN

CHICAGO (JTA)—A vigorous fighter for Israel emerged at the Democratic National Convention in the person of Jose A. Benitez, chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Puerto Rico.

The Platform Committee saw the surprising spectacle of Benitez, a Catholic, supporting Israel in argument against the anti-Israel propagandist, Alfred M. Lilienthal, of Jewish origin. Benitez was a Puerto Rican delegate to the convention. Lilienthal, who has identified himself with Republican right-wing thinking, came to testify before the platform committee against Israel. The feeling of the committee was that Lilienthal intruded with provocative intent to agitate against the Jewish State.

Benitez listened in alarm at Lilienthal's testimony. The extremism shocked him. When Lilienthal finished, Benitez gained recognition of the chairman. Speaking in a voice reverberating with emotion, Benitez expressed the admiration of the Puerto Rican people for Israel and Zionism. He emphasized that Puerto Rican delegates would vote against any anti-Israel plank urged by Lilienthal.

An idealist, whose admiration of Israel is seemingly unbounded, Benitez said later that he plans to visit Israel next year, "unless the Arabs attack and I have to go sooner—as a volunteer."

A Similarity to Israel

Benitez sees Puerto Rico, an underdeveloped land striving toward progress, as similar to Israel. To him, the Zionist concept is meaningful. He feels, too, that Jewish Puerto Ricans have contributed much to the island.

Years ago, a Chicago friend, knowing of the affinity felt by Benitez for Israel, invited him to speak at an Israel Bond dinner in Chicago. Not only did he speak, but he pledged $50,000 in Bond purchases by Puerto Rico. He returned to San Juan, helped organize the first Israel Bond dinner there, and raised about $60,000. James Grover MacDonald, first U.S. Ambassador to Israel, flew to Puerto Rico to speak. Benitez saw five friends, selling each a $5,000 bond. Subsequently, Benitez visited the Virgin Islands to advance bond sales there.

Today Benitez is an "Honorary Citizen" of Israel. This distinction was conferred upon him by Israel diplomats. He was invited to Israel by Moshe Tov, Israel specialist on Latin American affairs. Israel Minister Reuven Shiloah Pinchas Lavon, and others have noted his efforts.

Benitez is looking forward to visiting Israel, despite his many activities in Puerto Rico. Apart from his chairmanship of the Democratic Party, he conducts a radio and television program in Puerto Rico. He also is an unofficial "Ambassador" between Puerto Rico and Puerto Ricans living in New York. He maintains an office in New York.

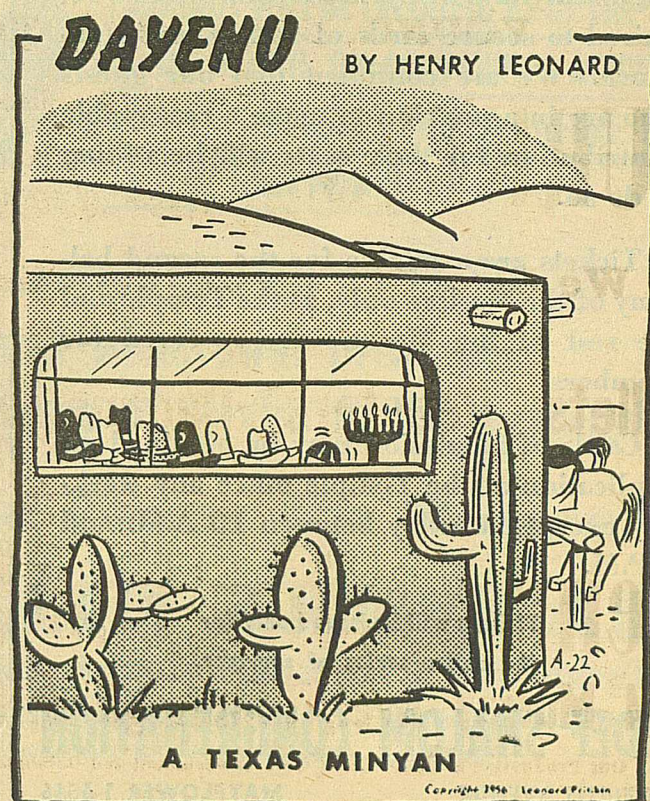

To him Zionism is consistent with good Americanism, because he knows that the love of Puerto Ricans for their island in no way impairs their patriotism as Americans. Benitez served in World War Two as a staff sergeant in the U.S. Army. He loathes totalitarianism. He appreciates the aid rendered by many Jews to a fellow minority that suffers varying measures of discrimination in the United States. Of Lilienthal, the individual of Jewish birth who works against the Jewish State, Benitez has little to say. He merely shakes his head.

Testimonial

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister David Ben Gurion received a testimonial parchment, depicting a giant map of Norway and Israel, with clasped hands in between, from the fifteen-man Norwegian Labor delegation which visited Israel recently.

With the inscription: "Israel must be strong! Long Live Israel," the testimonial to Mr. Ben Gurion declares:

"In a world crushed by bigness, you showed us greatness. Where values change and borders move, you stood firm. Where greed and envy destroy, you displayed constructive brotherhood. From multiplicity you created unity."

Panorama

Jewish Pioneers Important
In Early American History

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

AMERICAN JEWS reading the newspapers, seeing television, know something about the way Jews figure on the American scene. They know Mr. Lehman is the Senator from New York, that Oregon has a Jewish U. S. Senator, that Lewis Straus is head of the Atomic Energy Commission, and so on. However, few American Jews know much about the corresponding scene in early America. Ask them and the majority have a vague impression that they have heard that Columbus might have been a Jew, and there was a Haym Salomon, but their knowledge almost stops there.

To dispel this ignorance, I can recommend Harry Simonhoff's newly published "Notable Jews in America." His book is a compilation of short biographies of Jewish pioneers in America during "the four score and seven years" between the founding of the republic and the outbreak of the war between the states.

At the time of the American Revolution, there were only some 3,000 Jews in the thirteen original states, but the country's whole population was only some three millions. Three thousand in three millions is still small, but the Jewish contribution cannot be measured purely by the yardstick of numbers.

There was Aaron Lopez of Newport for instance. Dr. Ezra Styles, president of Yale, called Lopez the most important merchant in America. Lopez owned some thirty trans-Atlantic sailing vessels, and more than 100 coastal vessels. When we realize, as every student of American history must, the significant part the Navigation Acts played in the American Revolution, we grasp his importance.

An Exotic Element

The Jew was important because he was out of the periphery of most of the settlers. The American population at the time was homogeneous, mostly anglo-Saxon, save for the black slaves. The Jews, on the other hand, represented an exotic element, bringing fresh ideas from various parts of the world, and having connections in all parts of the world. Thus, the Sephardic Jews were responsible for introducing castille soap making, which they brought with them from Spain, and their connections with dispersed Jews in all parts of the world made them valuable in the expansion of America's world trade.

The fact that the Jew was a religious non-conformist was also important. America is today the exemplar of religious freedom. Yet it is wrong to think that the idea of religious liberty did not have to fight its way in America. We find Quakers discriminated against in early Massachusetts, Baptists in colonial Virginia. Jefferson and Madison battled against this discrimination, but the Jew, because he represented an extreme challenge to the test, helped in the more complete enunciation of the principle of religious liberty.

Mr. Simonhoff tells of the Yiddish speaking Jonas Phillips (he could speak English too, of course) addressing the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia in protest against a provision in some of the state constitutions which required a man taking office to swear to a belief in the Old and New Testaments.

Met In Secrecy

The Convention that made the Constitution, as every school child knows, met in the greatest secrecy. No one other than delegates—not even reporters, was permitted. They even barred clergymen from opening the sessions, apparently for the same reason.

Simonhoff reveals that one outsider did address the convention, the aforesaid Jonas Phillips.

Washington was chairman of the Constitutional Convention and he was a friend of Phillips. There is even a legend that Washington attended the wedding of Phillips' daughter, Zipporah, but we may be sure the Constitutional Convention did not allow Phillips to address it on that account. The delegates regarded the point he raised as very important. It helped to make the Constitution as we know it today.

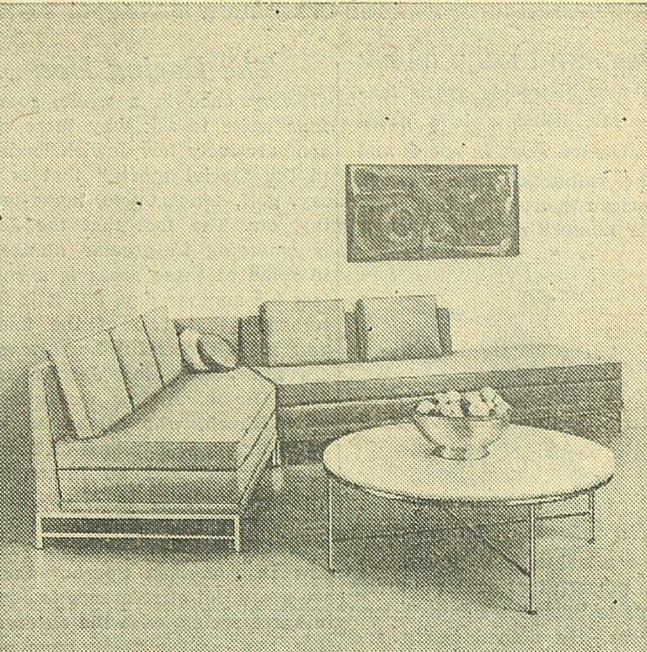

A number of histories of American Jewry have recently appeared in connection with the tercentenary celebration. None have been entirely successful, because the Jewish contribution is a very dispersed one, and easily gets lost in the main streams of American history. Simonhoff's book serves to recapture much of the "golden ore."

JEW IN SPORTS

By HAROLD U. RIBALOW

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a new bi-weekly sports feature. Mr. Ribalow is a noted authority on Jews in sports and is the author of "The Jew in American Sports." He has written a number of other books.)

The Greenberg Saga

He was a husky awkward boy, with powerful muscles strong enough to propel a baseball long distances. He fielded badly and had to work many hours of overtime to pick up some of the tricks of playing baseball. He had an obviously Jewish name and he came from the Bronx of immigrant parents.

Yet today, Hank Greenberg is in baseball's immortal Hall of Fame. He expressed it humbly and well himself when, in his little speech at the ceremonies at Cooperstown, he recalled his beginnings and paid tribute to the United States for the tremendous honor that had come his way.

At this time, one can expect the sports journals to recall Greenberg's feats, and to quote the 58 home runs he hit in one season, which was beaten only by Babe Ruth and equalled by Jimmy Foxx. Statistics flow easily from the typewriters of the sports writers who have at their elbows the basic record books of the sport.

Yet, I like to think of Greenberg's elevation to the Hall of Fame as a tribute not only to the strong Jewish boy who made himself a baseball hero, but to the spirit of America which, in the final analysis, does eventually recognize sports ability — and honors it — regardless of race or religion . . . Sometimes, we are appalled by the cruelties, the little snubs, of so-called men of good-will. But, more often than not, we have a Greenberg story — and it makes up for the rest.

The Racing Man

Every once in a while, sports fans write to ask why there are comparatively few Jewish leaders in the "social sports," that is to say, golf, tennis, polo, horse-racing, etc. The fact that the Jew is emerging in greater numbers in some of these areas is a subject for another day, but it is interesting that two of the finest and most successful horse-trainers are Jews, Max Jacobs and Max Hirsch. A few weeks ago, Max Hirsch, who celebrated his 76 birthday, won reams of newspaper space, and an interesting three columns in the New York Times.

In this columnist's book "The Jew in American Sports," there are a handful of reference to Jews in horse-racing, with the observation, that, so far, there have not been discovered any Jewish horses. But Max Hirsch has done so well with horses that one can argue that his special touch might have some Jewish meaning.

Hirsch was born in Texas, and at the early age of 10 he started to work around horses because he dreamed of being a jockey. In time, he did develop into a jockey and as long ago as 1897 he became a trainer. Three of the nags he has trained have been Kentucky Derby winners, and he names Assault, who won the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont, as the finest horse he has trained. Citation is the greatest horse he has seen, he says and Eddie Arcaro the best jockey.

Bias In Sports

It should be stated that one of the reasons adults take such an intense interest in sporting events is that the sports world, in capsule, reflects the tensions, the joys the conflicts of the outer, greater world. Nothing in sports, for example is all rosy-red as one might like to believe. There is more to the game than the score, or the way it is played.

For instance, a few months ago, some readers were shocked to discover that the staid and impressive New York Athletic Club, one of the city's ornaments, bars Jews and Negroes from its teams. Local New York politicians claimed they knew nothing about such bias, although the secretary of the Club, Alfred Foster, admitted that the Club had no Jews or Negroes on its teams. Considering that New York's Jewish and Negro populations are heavy, and that Negro and Jewish athletes have proved their abilities over and over again, it is a peculiar situation — and, one might even say, with ugly undertones.

Robert Cohen Quits

The aggressive little fighter who had won recognition not long ago as world bantam weight champion, Robert Cohen of France, has quit the ring, following a knockout and a loss. It is a pity, for Cohen was not only one of the few outstanding Jewish ringmen, he is also an observant Jew whose demeanor on a trip to South Africa won for him the applause of his fellow Jews in Africa and elsewhere. Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring magazine, first called attention in the United States to Cohen's abilities. But the little fighter burned himself out before he could come to the United States and show his wares. Now a career is finished, and we have not had the pleasure of seeing the boxer at his best. And he is only 25.

COMMUNITY INVITED

The Rabbi, Officers, and Board of Directors of the Shaare Torah Congregation extend a cordial invitation to the Jewish Community of Pittsburgh to participate in the Dedication Ceremonies and Banquet marking the completion of the new Shaare Torah Edifice in Squirrel Hill on Sunday, August 26. Dedication Ceremonies in the Main Synagogue at 4:30 p.m. and the Banquet in the Samuel and Esther Horelick Hall at 6:30 p.m.

The principal guest speaker for the occasion will be the distinguished president of the Yeshiva University and the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Dr. Samuel Belkin. The Hon. David L. Lawrence, Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh, will head the list of civic and communal leaders participating in the ceremonies.

AIR-CONDITIONED

The Congregation is pleased to announce that the entire edifice, including the Main Synagogue, the Samuel and Esther Horelick Hall, the Morris Neaman Beth Hamidrash, and the Classrooms are completely air-conditioned. Thus, the newly installed permanent bodiform chairs in the Main Synagogue coupled with the air-conditioning will afford our worshippers maximum comfort.

HIGH HOLIDAY SERVICES

High Holiday Services will be held in the Main Synagogue and in the Samuel and Esther Horelick Hall. Youth Services will be held in the Morris Neaman Beth Hamidrash and in the Sol Wolk Lecture Room.

Cards of admission for the High Holiday services may be obtained in the office of the Congregation daily, Mondays through Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sundays from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

HEBREW AND SUNDAY RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

Enrollment of old and new students at the Shaare Torah Hebrew and Sunday Religious Schools is being held daily at the office.

In keeping with the continuous growth and improvement of the Shaare Torah Schools, a highly qualified staff of instructors has been retained and engaged for the new academic year.

Classes in the Hebrew School will be resumed on Tuesday, Sept. 4 at 4 p.m.

All classes will be held in the newly completed modern spacious classrooms of the RABBI SIVITZ MEMORIAL TALMUD TORAH BUILDING.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

The Cemetery grounds of the old and new Shaare Torah Cemeteries, located in Carrick, Route 51, will be open for the annual pre-High Holiday visitations on Sundays, August 26 and September 2 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Cemetery committee, the Gaboim, the Cantor, and the Sexton will be available for the Memorial Services.

Outlook On Books

"The Professor And The Fossil"

By MAURICE SAMUEL

Maurice Samuel, the distinguished author and lecturer, has strongly attacked the "confusions, prejudices, and intellectual distortions" in Arnold J. Toynbee's A Study of History. In his new book, The Professor and the Fossil, just published, (by Alfred A. Knopf, New York 268 pages.) Mr. Samuel vigorously challenges the bias, inaccuracies omissions and distortions about the Jewish people and Jewish history occurring throughout the much-acclaimed 10-volume history of world civilization.

It is a curious fact, Mr. Samuel points out, that Professor Toynbee is completely silent regarding the important Jewish spiritual and intellectual contributions to Western civilization during the last 2,000 years. Missing from the pages of all ten volumes is any mention of such names as Maimonides, ibn Gabirol, Spinoza, Yehuda ha-Levi. "Nor is there any allusion," Mr. Samuel says, "to the Talmud, or the Mishnah, or the Midrashim; or to the singular Yiddish literature that has lately made something of a stir among non-Jews. Chassidism, which is being widely recognized as a religious episode of high importance, is not mentioned."

For Professor Toynbee, Mr. Samuel asserts, "the Jewish people is spiritually and intellectually a fossil, an inert and petrified form devoid of any living juices... He knows of no moral, intellectual, spiritual or any other kind of superior value that the Jewish people has created since ancient times."

History Suppressed

Professor Toynbee's suppression of 2,000 years of Jewish history, and his confused and hostile treatment of Jewish values form only part of Mr. Samuel's case against the British historian. Far more reprehensible, in Mr. Samuel's view, is Toynbee's treatment of contemporaneous events.

A Study of History, Mr. Samuel says, goes further than suppressing the truth. In his treatment of the "expulsion" of the Arabs from Israeli-held Palestine territory, Professor Toynbee continuously brackets the actions of the Jews with the Nazi crimes against the Jews. He builds up, Mr. Samuel contends, the association, "Jew is to Arab what Nazi is to Jew." Toynbee's lumping the Jews of Israel in their actions against the Arabs, with the Nazis in their actions against the Jews is, Mr. Samuel charges, "unheard-of vilification."

The Meaning of History

The Professor and the Fossil is considerably more than a "reply" to A Study of History, or a correction of the record, or an eloquent defense of the Jewish people. Mr. Samuel devotes 13 out of 16 chapters to such broad areas as the meaning of Jewish history, ancient and modern; the nature of the Jewish spirit, and Jewish techniques of survival. In taking issue with Professor Toynbee's judgment that the Jewish people has been a "fossil" for two millennia, Mr. Samuel recounts the achievements and contributions to human history of this allegedly lifeless folk, not the least of which was the creation of a language and a body of literature. His style—familiar to millions of Americans who have read his previous books, attended his lectures, or heard him on the radio program, "Words We Live By"—is brilliant, witty and deeply stirring. This book revives a type of controversy which has been absent from present-day critical writing too long, a fact noted recently by Harvey Breit of The New York Times Book Review, in a comment about The Professor and the Fossil.

Mr. Samuel has just returned to America from one of his periodic trips to Israel. During this last visit, he delivered a series of major lectures, based on The Professor and the Fossil, under the sponsorship of Yad Weizmann, the memorial foundation to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Israel's first President. Top Government officials, members of the Cabinet and Knesset (Parliament), the diplomatic corps, as well as leaders in Israel's cultural and intellectual life, were among those who attended the lectures, which were widely reported on in the Israeli press.

Mr. Burke asked for assistance for underprivileged children; for aid for agricultural, industrial and vocational training schools; assistance to the back-to-the-land movement to assure the settlement of immigrants, and promotion of a common national culture based on the education of children and adults for living in a modern, democratic, enlightened Jewish State.

JEWISH TEEN AGERS: Is our young generation Jewish-minded? ... A study conducted by B'nai B'rith among 200 teen agers — all of them members of the B'nai B'rith Youth Organization — offers a very gloomy answer to this question ... The youths, 120 boys and 80 girls, were selected at random from a group of more than 2,000 adolescent members of the BBYO residing in an area from Ohio to the Rocky Mountains ... They were questioned about their interest in nine types of activities ... Interest in athletics turned out to be first among boys, and interest in "Jewish content" activities turned out to be last ... Among the girls, social activities took first place in interest, while "Jewish content" activities was eighth, one removed from the bottom ... The definition for "Jewish content" was given as projects or activities focused on developing Jewish consciousness, Jewish knowledge, or pride in Jewish culture and way of life ... The boys rated the following quite low: discussing books with a Jewish theme, listening to Jewish music, singing Jewish folk songs, taking dates to a Friday evening service ... The girls rated the following among the lowest items: discussing books with a Jewish theme, a quiz program on Jewish history, listening to a lecture on Jewish customs ... Both boys and girls rated Jewish cultural activities relatively low ... Both boys and girls were interested in "discussing Reform, Conservative and Orthodox Judaism," however, neither group seemed interested in "hearing a rabbi discuss some phases of Jewish life" ... The younger boys and girls seemed somewhat more interested than the older boys and girls in "participating in synagogue or temple services" ... In answering questions about their interest in community service activities, the boys and girls listed the following high: collecting toys and clothing for the needy, a party for orphans, a show for old folks in homes ... At the same time, they rated "soliciting pledges for the U.J.A." at the bottom of their lists. ...

SOVIET ECHOES: From all reports presented by the numerous American rabbis who have returned from visits to the Soviet Union, a picture emerges that the Soviet government leaders took no notice of the rabbinical delegations ... None of the delegations succeeded in obtaining any government statement, or were even received by high government officials ... They came, they saw Moscow Rabbi Solomon Shliefer, and they left without even being able to enter a single Jewish home in Moscow, or in any of the other cities they visited ... Actually, they were treated as tourists, and not as representatives of religious Jewry ... They were permitted to visit cities which only tourists can visit, and to enter only those institutions which are open to sight-seeing parties, including the few synagogues in existence.

Jewish Firm Experiments With Acceptance Of Jews

DUESSELDORF, (JTA) — An experiment by a Jewish couple to see whether Germans here have really developed to the point of accepting Jews back into their midst, seems on the way to success. The experiment was attempted by Kurt Israel, who had spent three years in Auschwitz. His wife had been in concentration camps four years. Now they operate a women's specialty store on Koenigsallee, this city's "Fifth Avenue," where some of the most luxurious stores are located. And their store bears openly their Jewish name—"Modehaus Israel."

Jewish, as well as non-Jewish friends had advised the Israel's before they opened the shop against using their own "very Jewish" name in connection with the shop. But the Israels felt that was the only name they wanted to use. Friends warned them they would not be able to hire German help. Among their 80 employees now, many are Germans. There have been no overt or even hidden demonstrations against Israel. They have received much mail — only one letter, from an anonymous writer, was hostile.

But the venture is still an experiment. Mrs. Israel feels. The Israels are willing to continue to keep their shop open under their own name. If it should ultimately fail, they say, they would forsake Germany for good and move to Holland.

Behind UN Scenes

Democratic Party's Support Of Israel Has Impact On UN

By DAVID HOROWITZ

UNITED NATIONS (AJP)—The impact of the Democratic Party Convention was felt most strongly in this world organization. While the Foreign Ministers of the leading maritime states found themselves entangled in London over the Suez crisis, delegates and newsmen in this sensitive hub—forgetting the UN for the moment—sat glued to TV sets watching the hectic and dramatic proceedings in Chicago.

What impressed most of the UN viewers was not so much the question of candidates as the platform—more particularly the plank on foreign affairs and the Middle East. They all knew that the ultimate results would directly affect the future affairs of this organization. What astonished them most was the complete and overwhelming victory the convention spelled out for Israel. One observer put it this way: "The people of Israel will now emerge from a state of depression engendered by years of border clashes, as well as frustration in Washington, with a new feeling of hope and confidence."

The Democratic platform plank on Israel—calling for the resettlement of the Arab refugees in Arab lands; pledging to supply arms "to redress the dangerous imbalance of arms in the area created by the shipment of Communist arms to Egypt," and promising "to take steps including security guarantees as may be required to deter aggression"—marked a complete departure from the administration policy of virtual strategic abandonment of the Jewish State. To UN delegates—those who know that in Washington military assistance is invariably ideological—this signified that Israel is once more being recognized as an outpost of American democracy, a position which it held until John Foster Dulles reversed it. To UN delegates this was an indirect admission that the three-year old policies of appeasing the Arabs had not "paid off," except in the case of the Suez Canal. These UN delegates have now become fully conscious of the fact that the fight for free navigation through the canal was first initiated by the State of Israel in the Security Council. It is doubtful now that Mr. Dulles, who did not then go out of his way to implement the Security Council resolution in support of Israel will be able to win his present case on the Suez crisis as conclusively as Israel won her's.

A Conviction Emerges

From all this emerges the conviction here that it is not so much "Zionist pressure," as the Arabs and their friends of the Middle East would have Americans believe, as Israel's superior wisdom of the whole Middle Eastern situation, which encouraged the Democratic leaders to adopt such an all-out pro-Israel plank.

The question, of course, is: will the Democrats be elected? This question, UN observers recognize, is not as crucial as it sounds. In the first place, it is a foregone conclusion that Democratic strength in the Congress will certainly not lessen. It is expected to increase. Congress today is a bi-partisan factor in foreign policy. Therefore, whether Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver are elected or not, one thing is certain from the platform: Mr. Dulles' pro-Arab policies will never enjoy the bi-partisan support he seeks. The Democratic platform should compel a change in the Republican policy to be formulated at San Francisco. If it does not, the Republicans will have to measure the consequences in terms of votes. The Suez challenge has created a new situation. Now the highest commercial interests of the American people are tied up in common partnership in the highest security interests of Israel.

The American people spoke when the Middle East plank of the platform was written in Chicago.

Society Calls Meeting

The first board meeting of the 56-57 season of the Bickur Cholim Society of Pittsburgh will be held at Cappy's Restaurant, Murray Ave., August 28, 12:30 p.m. Mrs. Sam Rosecrans, chairman of the board, will preside. She requests that all board members be present. Plans for forthcoming fund raising projects will be discussed.

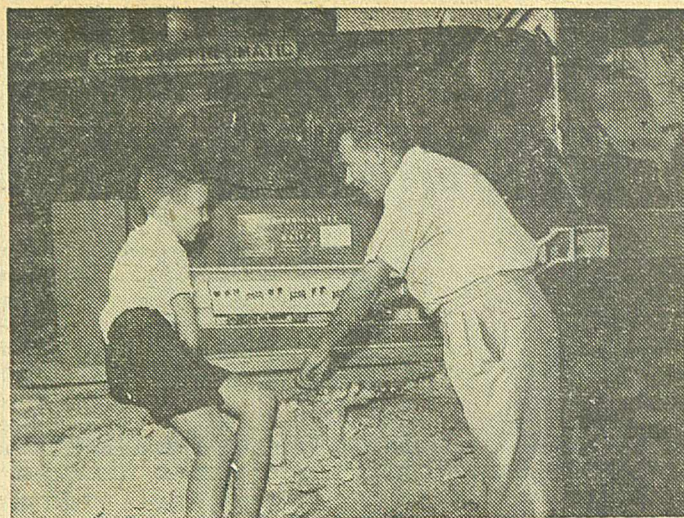

The regular monthly meeting of the Society will take place on September 11, 1 p.m., at the Shaare Tefilah Social Hall. Mrs. Hyman Zeidenstein is the president.

Israel Living Cost Drops

JERUSALEM, (JTA)—The cost of living index tumbled five points last month, the sharpest drop in the inflationary trend registered in the last few months. July's index stood at 244 against a June index of 249.

If the decrease in the index does not turn out to be merely an indication of the seasonal food glut, it may be the long hoped for turn in the direction of economic stability.

The question of Israel's economic stability is one of the major points on the agenda of the Mapai Party's convention which will be held in Tel Aviv.

U.S., Israel To Open Exhibit

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Israel and the United States will open a joint "atoms for peace" exhibition here next month. Marshall Berg, manager of the exhibition to be presented by the U.S., told a press conference that Israeli government bureaus and scientific institutions will cooperate on the Jewish State's portion of the exhibit.

This is the first time the two countries are cooperating to such an extent in a display, Mr. Berg said. The U.S. section will picture the use of atomic energy for agriculture, industry, power production and medicine in the U.S. Israel will stress the country's achievements in the field of atomic energy.

Synagogues Prepare For The High Holiday Bond Sale In Pittsburgh

The roll call of Pittsburgh synagogues which have agreed to conduct Israel Bond appeals during the forthcoming High Holidays includes almost every congregation in the city, announced Samuel Goldstock, chairman of the Israel Bond High Holiday Appeals.

Mr. Goldstock stated that the following synagogues have agreed to conduct Israel Bond Appeals:

Chaim Synagogue; Rabbi Pincus N. Gross, Parkway Synagogue; Rabbi Herman Hailperin, Tree of Life; Rabbi Morris A. Landes, Adath Jeshurun; Rabbi Wolfe Leiter, Machzikei Hadas; Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter, B'Nai Israel; Rabbi Pincus Miller, Beth El; Rabbi Bernard A. Poupko, Shaare Torah; Rabbi Joseph Shapiro, Poale Zedeck; Rabbi Abraham B. Zilberberg, Shaare Zedeck; Rabbi Joseph Leifer, Ahavas Israel; Rabbi A. Ilson, Temple Sinai; Rabbi Solomon Oppenheimer, Adath Israel Synagogue; Rabbi Solomon Moseson, Beth Shalom; and Rabbi Joshua S. Weiss, B'Nai Emunoh.

Meanwhile, all the Rabbis in Pittsburgh issued a joint statement urging the Jewish people of Pittsburgh to purchase Israel Bonds during the forthcoming High Holidays.

The statement stated in part: "These are the gravest months Israel has lived through since the critical days of 1948. Yet, even under their heavy burdens, Israel's people do not know fear or despair. Let us, at the very opening of this New Year give heart and hope to Israel's people in their hour of trial. The Israel Bonds in which we invest today are the clearest the strongest the firmest way to reassert our faith in freedom and in the future."

Rabbis who signed the statement include: Rabbi Seymour J. Cohen, B'Nai Israel; Rabbi Harold Silver, Temple Emanuel; Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof, Rodef Shalom Temple; Rabbi Metz, Torah

Teen-Agers Enjoy Camp Experience

NEW YORK—Over 1,500 teen-agers will have participated in a program of religious, cultural and recreational activities at encampments sponsored by the United Synagogue of America during July, August and September, it was announced by Rabbi Manuel Saltzman, chairman of the National Youth Commission of the United Synagogue.

The camps are conducted for members of United Synagogue Youth groups in Conservative congregations throughout the United States and Canada. They offer the teen-agers inspirational experiences in Jewish living and study, and train them as leaders for congregational youth groups.

Ranging in duration from one to three weeks, the camps are distributed throughout 11 sections of the United States and Canada. Camps were held in Conover and Webster, Wis.; Windsor Locks and East Hampton, Conn.; Hendersonville, N.C.; Lake Winnipeg, Canada, and Hancock, N.Y. Future sites are now being selected for the areas of Michigan, New England, California and Lake Erie.

The camping program is but one of the extensive activities of United Synagogue Youth, numbering over 317 chapters with a total membership of over 17,000 teen-agers. This teen-age arm of the United Synagogue is one of the most active and fastest-growing units in the Conservative Movement. During the current year, 900 USY'ers attended a national convention in Cleveland, Ohio, and 3,000 attended week-end study institutes sponsored by the United Synagogue in every section of the country.

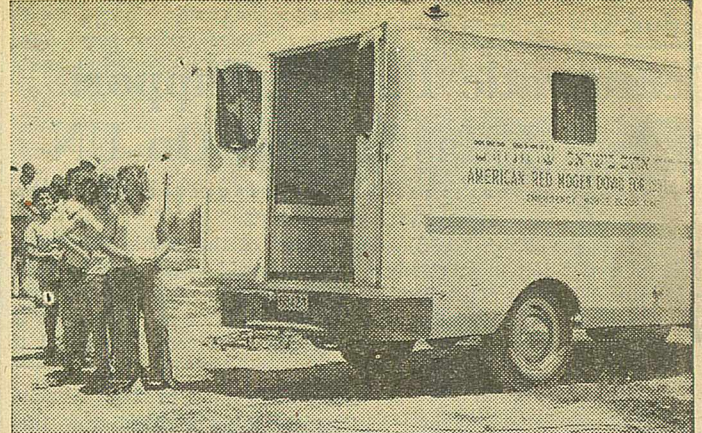

National supervisor of the USY program is Dr. Morton Siegel, director of the United Synagogue's department of youth activities.

16 Governments To Ease Refugee Formalities

LONDON, (JTA)—Sixteen governments have indicated willingness to participate in an international conference for the drafting of an international convention to reduce or eliminate future statelessness, the Agudas Israel World Organization was informed. Among the 16 nations which would come to the parley, whose site and opening date would be set by this year's United Nations General Assembly, are Israel, France, Switzerland, Belgium, Netherlands and Spain.

The Agudah, which has long been concerned about the problem of statelessness, has also been informed that West Germany has advised the Council of Europe that it is prepared to waive unilaterally visa requirements for persons holding refugee travel documents.

The Agudah has asked the Council of Europe that similar facilities be afforded by all member states of the Council. This would give stateless persons and refugees with resident status in one country or another, the same right to travel without a visa between those countries which do not require travel documents of each others' nationals.

Israelis Eat 2860 Calories

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Official figures released here show that the average Israeli consumed 2,860 calories a day last year, approximately the same as he did the year before. Slightly higher than the average for Greece and Italy, it was lower than that of the United States and England. The figures for Israel are about 20 per cent higher than those for Egypt and 40 per cent higher than India's rate.

Hospital Gets Machine

BOSTON, Mass., (JTA) — The first autotemperature — a machine used to lower the temperature of the body — to be shipped to this country has arrived at Beth Israel Hospital here from Sweden. Dr. Jacob Fine, surgeon-in-chief, said that its use will be studied in the hospital's surgical laboratories before it goes into general service. The advantage of the machine over ice baths or refrigerated blankets is said to be that all parts of the body can be cooled equally.

S.S. Israel Docks With Record Passenger List

NEW YORK — The 10,500 gross ton S.S. ISRAEL, of the ZIM American-Israeli Lines, docked at her pier in Brooklyn with 309 passengers from Haifa, Naples and Gibraltar, just four berths short of total capacity, and a West-bound record for the ship. The passengers included 24 high school students from Bloomfield, Michigan, who are returning home from a six week tour of Europe.

Ambassador Discusses Middle East Problems

WASHINGTON, (JTA) — Israel Ambassador Abba Eban held a general review of Middle Eastern problems with Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert D. Murphy. Mr. Eban refused specific comment on questions discussed with Mr. Murphy when he saw reporters after their meeting.

Asked whether he talked about Israel's interest in the current Suez Canal crisis, the Israeli envoy replied, "You can assume we have discussed everything of interest in the area." He made no comment on the United States proposal for the Canal's operation by an international agency tied to the United Nations. He also declined to comment on the possibility of an Israel canal as an alternative to Suez.

Taxes Cut Consumption

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — Israel's sales tax policy may have important effects on both consumption of certain products and on her foreign currency budget, it was pointed out by the Jerusalem Post's economic correspondent. Analyzing the report of the Bank of Israel for the first four months of the current year, he noted such developments as a drop in consumption of heavily-taxed liquor by 4 per cent, with a demand for cheap wines, which are less heavily taxed. Similarly, consumption of cigarettes using Virginia tobacco declined by 20 per cent, and expensive oriental brands by 4 percent, while cheaper oriental brands jumped by 28 per cent.

Istanbul Jews Abandon Synagogue Donations

ISTANBUL, (JTA)—The Jewish Community Council of Istanbul ruled that the public announcement of donations to the Jewish community and other Jewish causes will no longer be made in synagogue during the services.

This practice, in effect for generations, made it compulsory for a member of the congregation to announce his donation when he was called up to the Torah to read. This led to a form of bidding for the right to read from the Torah, and the virtual elimination of all but the richest members of the congregation.

In addition, the privilege of taking the Torah out of the Ark was also given to the congregant pledging the largest contribution. A form of bidding developed about this practice, to which many congregation members objected.

Under the new system, no public announcement of pledges will be made, nor will there be any bidding honors. As each man steps up to the Torah he will hand a filled-out pledge card to the sexton.

Israeli's Juvenile Program

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — A widespread overhaul of Israel's methods of handling juvenile offenders has been recommended in a 77-page report on juvenile delinquency, handed down by a special committee which had been set up to consider the problem.

Recommendations included raising the age of male offenders, who come under juvenile court jurisdiction, from 16 to 18; increasing the number and quality of probation officers, bettering educational facilities for the rehabilitation of offenders; expansion of the foster parent program and increase of youth hostel facilities; and changes in the law to raise the age, at which criminal proceedings can be instituted, from 9 to 12. Noting that 84 percent of juvenile offenders came from Asian or African countries, the report asked for greater understanding by the general public of the problems of youth from such backgrounds.

Negev Now Under Research

BEERSHEBA — Prime Minister David Ben Gurion presided over an initial meeting of the Scientific Council which discussed the functions of the newly-created Institute for Negev Research, now under construction in this Biblical city.

Israel Builds New Road

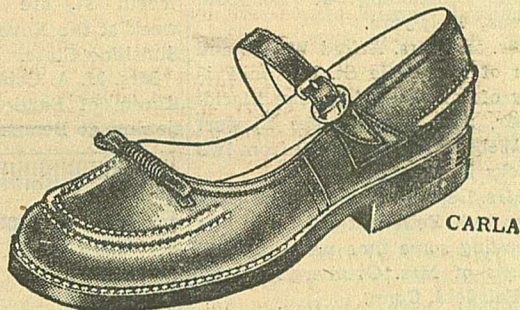

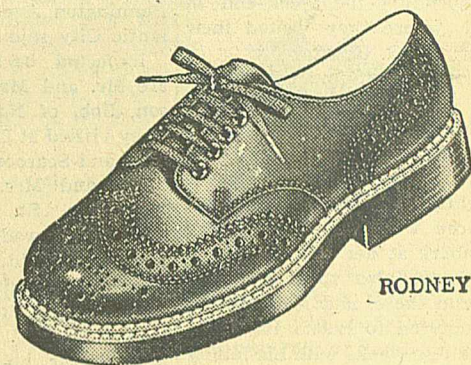

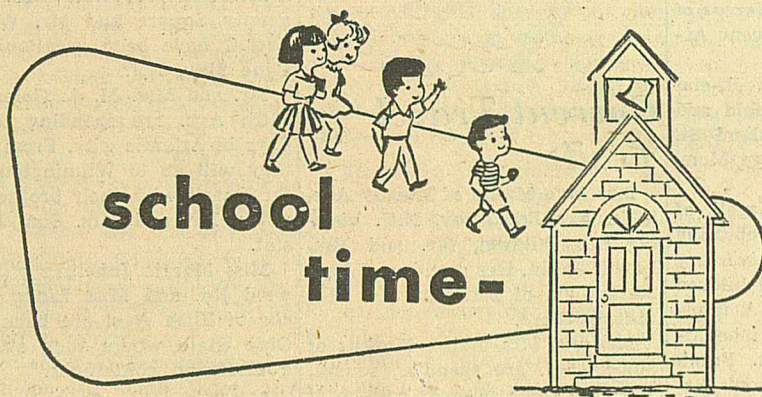

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — An eight mile section of Israel's "security road" between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv is nearing completion.

The road, an alternate to the highway which was shelled and overrun by Arab Legion troops during the War of Liberation, is set so far back that it cannot be brought under artillery fire from Jordan-held territory. It can only be put out of commission by invasion and conquest. The route traverses some of the wildest and most rugged terrain between the capital and the coast.

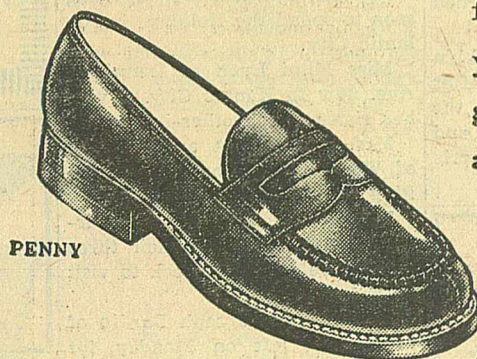

Builders Decry Credit Lack

TEL AVIV, (JTA) Despite the building activity prevalent in Israel, private builders meeting here charged that Government policy of withholding credit from them had cut building by 30 per cent in the first half of 1956. The charge of discrimination by the Ministry of Finance against private builders was made at the Conference of the Builders and Contractors Association. They also charged that despite extensive activity in the past eight years — over 200,000,000 pounds was spent in 1955 alone — the housing situation was difficult.

Dr. and Mrs. Milton Goldsmith returned recently to their apartment in the Dithridge after visiting Chautauqua, N.Y.

Back from a week's visit in Canada are Mr. and Mrs. David Fingeret and daughter, Susy, of Beechwood Blvd.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Marcus of Bennington Ave. were recent Atlantic City sojourners.

Expected back this week-end are Mr. and Mrs. Al Teifeld and son, Bob, of Northumberland St. They visited at Lake George, Montreal and Scaroon Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Levy Segall of Wightman St. are celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary with their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. A family dinner on Sunday will be attended by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marcus, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Segall, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. David Edelstein, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Segall, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gerson, and their children.

Visitors Here

Mr. and Mrs. Nat York of Phoenix, Ariz. spent six weeks visiting relatives and friends in the city and have now returned to their home town.

Mrs. Oscar Shapiro of Brooklyn will leave this week-end after spending three weeks as the houseguest of her sister and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Hirschfeld of Melvin St.

Mrs. Barbara Morris and son, Michael, of Chicago arrived on Wednesday to visit with the Louis Steinbachs of Beechwood Blvd.

In the city for the Katzen-Morris nuptials last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wolfe of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rosenberg of Cleveland, Mrs. Mildred Katzen and family of Chicago, and Mrs. Eli J. Levy and son, Bobby, of Los Angeles. Guests also attended from New York, Harrisburg, Baltimore, Sykesville, Reynoldsville, Dubois and Punxsutawney.

Mrs. Philip Braverman and children of Muncie, Ind. are guests of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Harold Hendel of Northumberland St.

Current Travel Trails

Mrs. Etta Mallin of Murray Ave. is in Far Rockaway, N.Y. visiting her children, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mallin. Her grandson, Lloyd Mallin, Jr. of Pittsburgh, is also visiting there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Markus of Seibert Rd. are spending several weeks at their summer cottage at Bracebridge, Ontario, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Levison and sons of Barnsdale St. have been vacationing at Rehoboth Beach, Delaware.

Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Weisz and son of Barnsdale St. left on Friday of last week for Lake Placid.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart of Webster Hall returned from two weeks in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Leonard Grinberg and children of Bellerock St. will be spending some time next week as guests of Mrs. Grinberg's family in Fairfield, Conn.

Mr. Blair Jacobson of Monitor St. is spending the week in Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Schmuckler of Morris, Pa. will be departing soon to spend the Holidays in Atlantic City.

Miss Mimi Lyon of Denniston Ave. flew to Kansas City to visit her sister and brother-in-law.

Education Is Factor Behind Criminality

GENEVA, (JTA)—A study of the case histories of 100 young, adult criminals in Israel shows that 26 were practically illiterate, 72 did not complete more than five grades of schooling, while no more than half knew how to read or write the country's language, Hebrew. The report was given at the United Nations Conference on Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders by Dr. Zvi Hermon, Israel Commissioner of Prisons.

The Israel prison official found that extreme poverty does not seem to be the chief factor behind the criminality of the sample of 100 studied. At least 75 of the offenders came from homes where the economic situation of the families was "at least adequate." However, lack of education or illiteracy seemed an important factor contributing toward a social behavior, according to Dr. Hermon. He found further that, of the 100 offenders studied, at least 58 had been delinquents at as early an age as 14.

Admiral Arouses White Councils Against Jews

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (JTA)—An attempt to arouse anti-Jewish sentiment in the South, by charging that the Jews are responsible for the fight to end segregation, was made here by a retired admiral in an inflammatory speech before a White Citizens Council rally.

The speaker, John G. Crommelin, who retired from the Navy as a Rear Admiral in 1949 after a public reprimand, told the roaring crowd that the anti-segregation fight was sparked by (Justice) "Felix Frankfurter, a Jew, Arthur Spangler, a Zionist Jew, and Senator Herbert Lehman, a Marxist Jew." The speaker did not identify "Spangler" further.

"Don't you know it's their kind of people behind this whole mess?" Crommelin shouted at his audience of 300.

Pleading for retention of the clause in the Alabama constitution on segregation, he exclaimed, "We've got to keep this last frontier of the real Anglo-Saxon race and if I am wrong, my name's Finkelstein."

Political Analyst To Speak At Dinner

Dr. Nasrollah S. Fatemi, professor of Social Science of Fairleigh Dickinson College, will be the principal speaker at the Kick-off Dinner of the American Zionist Fund Dinner Committee. The Dinner will be held August 30, at the B'nai Israel Social Hall. This will be the official opening of the 11th Annual AZF Campaign of the Pittsburgh Zionist District and Western Pennsylvania Zionist Region.

Persian-born Dr. Fatemi has an active career as diplomat, author and political analyst. As a diplomat, Dr. Fatemi represented Iran at the United Nations, and in 1948 he was the Iranian delegate to UNESCO. He was also a member of the Iranian Parliament, and one-time Governor of the Iranian province of Fars.

Prior to his present position, Dr. Fatemi was a professor at Princeton University. He is the author of several books on the Middle East, and publisher of a daily newspaper in his native Iran. Dr. Fatemi is an authority on Middle Eastern affairs. The subject of his address before the AZF Dinner Committee will be an analysis of the present crisis in Israel, and the Suez controversy as it affects Israel and the West.

Samuel Saul, Jr., is the Dinner chairman. The AZF Campaign will culminate on October 7 with the 11th Annual AZF Dinner at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel ballroom.

CARD PLAYING IN A RUSTIC SETTING is an important leisure time activity for senior citizens at their annual outing at Emma Kaufmann Camp. The oldsters leave on August 27 for their nine-day camp trip.

Communities Warned Of Shortage Of Educators

NEW YORK, (JTA) — The shortage of qualified teachers is the major problem confronting the communities in developing adequate Jewish education programs, Philip W. Lown, president of the American Association for Jewish Education, declared in a statement issued through the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds.

Mr. Lown warned that the problem is becoming "increasingly grave and complex" as the Jewish school population continues to rise, while the number of teachers continues to shrink.

"The study of educational personnel has not only failed to keep pace with the rising enrollment in the Jewish school, but there are even indications of a decline of interest on the part of Jewish youth to enter Jewish education as a profession." Schools for Jewish educators are "not graduating even one-third of the number of teachers required to meet the growing needs of the Jewish school movement," he added.

Pact On Property Ratified

DUSSELDORF, (JTA) — A final agreement on the division of pre-Hitler communal property between the re-established Jewish communities in the British Zone of Germany and the Jewish Trust Corporation, the successor organization for heirless Jewish property in the British Zone, has now been formally ratified by both parties, more than a year after it was concluded.

It is expected that a similar agreement pertaining to the American Zone will be ratified early in the Fall. This would bring to a close, since West Berlin arrangements have already been concluded, a long and bitter intra-Jewish dispute.

Jewish Weeklies To Merge

NEW YORK, (AJF) — The Brooklyn Jewish Examiner, published by Rabbi Louis Gross and his brother Bert Gross, will soon merge with The American Hebrew, published by George Stern and Jesse Hirsh. The new publication, aimed at national circulation, plans to drop the word "Jewish" and "Hebrew" and take on the name "The American Examiner."

Israel Soccer Team Gets Bid To Compete In Olympics

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Israel's soccer team has been invited to compete in the Olympic Games in Melbourne, but it may not be able to go because of the high cost involved. The invitation, received here by the Israel Football Association, came about when several of the nations which had already reached the final pool of teams to compete, notified the Olympic Games Organizing Committee that they could not attend. For this reason, other teams which did well in the preliminaries — including Israel and England — have been invited to fill in.

The problem of costs will have to be licked first though, before the team can go to Australia. It had originally been planned to send 18 sportsmen to the competitions, including a basketball team, swimmers, marksmen, and track and field athletes.

Movie On Ethiopian Jewish Children Made

NEW YORK — The first film, as far as is known, on members of the "Lost Tribe" — the Jewish community of Ethiopia — is now in production, it was announced by the Mizrahi Women's Organization of America.

Twelve dark-skinned children, the first contingent of Falasha, or Ethiopian Jews, to arrive in Israel, are featured in the film being shot in Raanana, Israel, by John Roy Carlson.

Scripted by Marc Siegel, the film tells the story of the arrival in Israel of the youngsters, and the development of their relationships with children of 25 different national origins at the Children's Village, which is sponsored by American Mizrahi Women.

The film will be premiered at the organization's forthcoming 31st annual national convention in Atlantic City, on October 22.

Israel Denies Pipe Report

JERUSALEM, (JTA) — The Israel Government has denied reports from London that the government was participating in negotiations with foreign oil companies for the laying of an oil pipeline between Elath, on the Gulf of Akaba, and Haifa. The projected pipeline, the reports had it, would serve as an alternate route to tanker traffic through the Suez Canal.

Israel Project Begins For Desalting Water Plant

NEW YORK, (JTA) — The Israel Government has granted a 150,500 pound contract for the building of a pilot plant for desalting water and using the fresh water for irrigation of the Negev, the Jerusalem press reported.

The contract has been awarded Alexander Zarchin, 59-year-old engineer who fled a Soviet forced labor camp in 1947. Mr. Zarchin worked out the process for the Soviet Union years ago, and in 1931 registered the patent in the USSR. The Soviet Union used it in Turkestan desert areas for its military installations and has guarded the process as a military secret. Before he was sent to the labor camp, Mr. Zarchin worked out and registered a score of different patents.

The process which he will develop for Israel involves the freezing of salt water, with a crystallization of the water away from the foreign minerals and salts in it. A by-product of water desalting would be the production of various chemical salts. Mr. Zarchin, who sees his process as a substitution for piping water to the Negev from the Jordan River, estimates that it will take two to three years to build a plant large enough to produce 350,000,000 feet of water annually. The pilot plant should be ready in six months.

B'nai Israel Adds Rabbinical Student

B'nai Israel Congregation announced that Sanford Shanblatt, an upper classman of the rabbinical school of the Jewish Theological Seminary, will lead special collegiate youth services in the congregation's new chapel, during the forthcoming High Holydays. This service has been instituted as a special activity for the college and high school youth of the congregation and community, especially geared for the younger worshippers. It will be guided by Mr. Shanblatt, a former member of the faculty of the B'nai Israel Religious School. A graduate of the University of Michigan, he is presently completing his rabbinical training in New York. During the past academic year, Mr. Shanblatt participated in a special program of studies in Jerusalem conducted by the Jewish Theological Seminary. He was under the guidance of Dr. Abraham Goldberg, a native of our city, now a resident of Israel. Tickets of admission for the youth service have been mailed to members of the congregation. Those planning to attend may apply to the office of the synagogue for further information.

Israeli Red Cross Becomes A Civil Defense Agency

NEW YORK, — The Israel Red Cross has been named by Prime Minister Ben Gurion as an auxiliary civil defense agency. Its task, in the event of a national emergency, will be to give first-aid to the victims of air attacks and artillery bombardments. This development was announced by Colonel D. Resheff, Commanding Officer of the Israel Defense Corps, in the course of an address to Magen David Adom (Israel Red Cross) personnel in Tel Aviv.

You'll smile tomorrow if you pay your United Jewish Federation pledge today. Support the 1956 campaign.

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Two inventions important to Israel's economy — one to increase vastly the yield of oil from bitumene stones in the Dead Sea area, the other to reduce greatly the cost of extracting precious magnesium from Dead Sea minerals — were announced here. They have been developed by Alexander Zarchin, the engineer who fled a Soviet forced-labor camp in 1951 and who was announced as the inventor of a method of desalting water.

One of Zarchin's latest inventions, according to the Israeli Inventors Association, will yield as high as 25 per cent oil from millions of tons of bitumene stones. The other Zarchin improvement, concerning magnesium, would reduce the price of this mineral from $2,000 a ton to about 250 Israeli pounds for the same quantity.

Chairman Named For College Association

Mrs. M. H. Fisher has been named to serve as women's chairman for the Association of Friends of the College of Jewish Studies.

Mrs. Fisher will conduct a series of important functions for the College of Jewish Studies, with a view toward developing active membership for the group.

The College of Jewish Studies, which was organized by the Council on Jewish Education, has been established for teenagers, high school and college youngsters. Dr. Aharon Kessler is Dean of the College. The College of Jewish Studies gives the youngster an intensive Jewish experience during the decade in his life when he is usually away from the Jewish community.

David Gold, who is Chairman of the Association has stated that an increasing number of individuals have taken out membership in the Association.

Working with Mr. Gold are: Maurice Rudin, Sam Caplan, Dean Hirschfeld, Harry Berlin, Jerome Solomon, Daniel Neuman, Samuel Bluestone, Harry Eisenfeld, Dr. Joseph I. Greenberger, Oscar Freedel, Ed Steinfeld, Dr. I. A. Lichter, Harry Kamin, Ben Wald, Arthur Fidel, Joseph Lazier, Paul Kossis and Harry Katz.

Tree Of Life Tunes To "Country Fair" Capers

The Annual Country Fair will be held at the Tree of Life Synagogue on August 28 and 29, announced Mr. N. Ralph Recht, general chairman.

Jack Copperman, David Edelstein and Morris Merwitzer have transformed the Social Rooms into gayly decorated booths. All the personnel under the direction of Milton Goldberg, Gene Feldshue and Alvin Holzer will be in authentic costumes in keeping with the Country Fair theme.

The food will be under the supervision of the Mesdames Ralph R. Kartub, Jack Morgan, Samuel Reichman, David Edelstein, and Aaron Young. Fruit and food baskets have been made up under the direction of Charles Farber and N. Ralph Recht.

Junior Council Sets Dance

The Junior Branch of the National Council of Jewish Women will hold a pre-seasonal dance on August 26. The affair is appropriately titled "Campaign Capers." The stag dance will begin at 9 p.m. at the Council Lounge, 5824 Forbes St.

The tri-chairmanship consists of Sandy Boris, Vivian Levine, and Libby Ash. The committee includes Barbara Beerman, Terry Perlow, Tibie Slivkin, Ruth Nayhouse, Billie Westerman, Irene Kaplan, Marion Weiss, Gloria Silverman, Racille Shrut, Maxine Kruger and Sippie Muskul.

Appoints ADL Chairman B'nai B'rith District

Alex Marcus, former director of Alcoholic Beverages Commission for the Scranton area, and a former All-American football player, has been appointed chairman of Anti-Defamation League chairman for B'nai B'rith District Grand Lodge 3, Milton Berger, president of the District Grand Lodge No. 3, announced.

Marcus, the Anti-Defamation League chairman in Scranton, will coordinate activities involved in the League's field activities in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and West Virginia.

Marcus is past president of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Regional Council, B'nai B'rith, a charter member of the Pennsylvania Anti-Defamation League, and leader of the Junior Olympics in the Scranton area.

He is a founder of B'nai B'rith Baseball Night in Scranton, the proceeds of which are distributed to local charities.

Hebrew Institute

FACULTY NEWS: Mr. Menachem Rottenberg, who was formerly principal-teacher at the United Hebrew School in Brunswick, N. J., will join the Hebrew

Mr. Rottenberg Institute staff this September. Mr. Rottenberg taught for the past two years at the Hillel Academy.

Mr. Rottenberg will teach in the elementary Hebrew School, and the Sunday Bible and History classes. Together with Rabbi Szaul Rowner, he will head the Hebrew Institute Junior Congregation on Saturday mornings.

Mr. Rottenberg's wife, who is also a professional Hebrew teacher, substituted at the Institute during the past spring semester.

FACULTY LIST: The Hebrew Institute week-day faculty will be composed of the following members for the new school year: Israel A. Abrams, executive director; Dr. Solomon Abrams, educational director; Joseph Bayer, elementary Hebrew; Henrietta Chotiner, school secretary and elementary Hebrew; Gilbert Davis, elementary Hebrew teacher-in-training; David Gild, elementary Hebrew teacher-in-training; Mrs. Sarah Goldberg, elementary Hebrew; Rhonda Hoechstetter, kindergarten; Simon Kantarof, Hebrew High School and Teachers Training School; Mrs. Jean Krieger, kindergarten and elementary Hebrew; Mrs. Pauline Milch, kindergarten and elementary Hebrew; Mrs. Gertrude Nachman, kindergarten and arts and crafts; Rabbi Benjamin Nadoff, Hebrew High School and Teachers Training School; Mrs. Mildred Ostrow, kindergarten; Menachem Rottenberg, elementary Hebrew; Rabbi Szaul Rowner, elementary and Hebrew High School; Rev. Israel Spector, Bar Mitzvah; Mrs. Leah Szklinski, kindergarten and elementary Hebrew; Celia Tanner, registrar and elementary Hebrew; Chaim Taub, elementary Hebrew; Mrs. Sarah Weiner, music teacher; Evelyn Weiss elementary Hebrew teacher-in-training, and Rose Trattner, librarian-in-training.

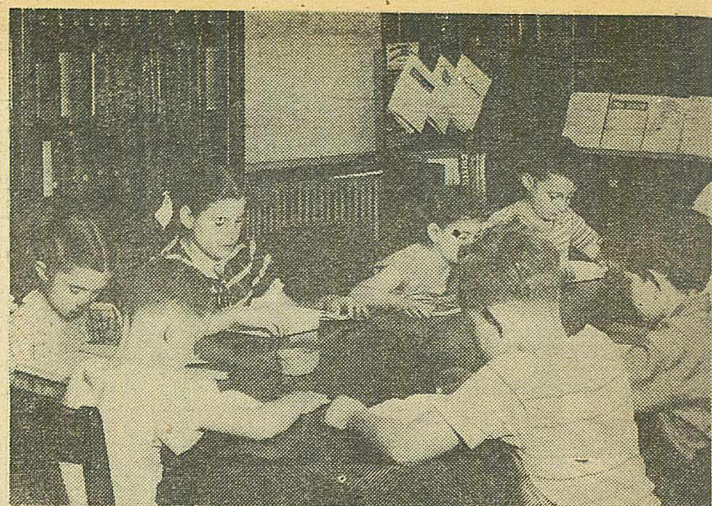

Four of the faculty members have extensive musical backgrounds. One is first violinist with the Pittsburgh Symphony. This background is valuable in the teaching of Hebrew music.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENTS: Six departments of the Hebrew Institute are ready for the opening of the new school year. They are: daily kindergarten; week-day elementary Hebrew school; Louis I. Aaron Hebrew High School; Sol Rosenbloom Teachers Training School; school library, and the activities which include Junior Congregation, Keren Ami, and the breakfast minyan.

The Sunday Bible and History classes, unlike the other departments, will begin on September 23, while the adult classes start early in October. Aside from the classes in these departments, 28 separate class groups will open the school year on September 4.

Also ready for the school opening is the fleet of school buses which will transport students who live in the Squirrel Hill, Oakland, Shadyside and East End areas.

TUITION: The fees at the Hebrew Institute are determined by

THE ROSENBLOOM LIBRARY, part of the Hebrew Institute, will be open to the public on September 4, when the school year begins. The Library contains thousands of volumes of Judaica, both in English and Hebrew.

the board of directors upon recommendation by the school administrators. They are fixed with the purpose of enabling parents of all economic groupings to provide their children with an intensive Jewish education. Where parents are able to pay the full tuition fee, they are expected to do so. Where circumstances make this impossible, a sliding scale becomes operative. In this manner, no child need be denied a Jewish education.

A family rate has been in existence for some years, where two or more children from a given family attend classes.

Through its annual grant, the United Jewish Federation enables the Institute to provide many students with scholarships for a Hebrew education which they might otherwise be denied.

Torath Chaim Sunday School Ready For Registration

The Torath Chaim Sunday School, under the Southwestern District Supervision, will start taking registration on Sept. 16, 9:30 a.m. at the Torath Chaim Synagogue.

This Sunday school has been in existence for the past seven years and is managed by its chairman, Mrs. Max Tucker. The superintendent is Mr. Stanley Makaroff, who has been associated with the Torah Chaim School for the past three years.

For information, please call the Mrs. Tucker at Hiland 1-0648. Her co-chairman this year is Mrs. Kirshenbaum.

Rabbi Begins Sixth Year

Rabbi Benjamin Nadoff is commencing his sixth year as a member of the Hebrew staff of Hillel Academy. He received his early education at Herseliah, Central Hebrew High School and the College of Jewish Studies of Chicago. He attended the Hebrew Theological College and concluded his studies for smicha at Yeshiva Torah Vodaath.

Two German Sightseers Are Shown Pittsburgh By B'nai B'rith Women

Two young German women saw the sights of Pittsburgh recently, as guests of the B'nai B'rith Women's Council of Greater Pittsburgh.

The women, Ria Schneider, a teacher from Munster, Germany, and Inge Angermann, a theology student from Hanover, Germany, are working at the Lillian S. Taylor Camp of the Kingsley House where they met Robert Weiner, a summer counsellor there.

Bob, a past president of the B'nai B'rith youth group Sinai A.Z.A., relayed to his mother, Mrs. Albert Weiner, president of the B'nai B'rith Women's Council of Greater Pittsburgh, the wish of the two foreign visitors to see Pittsburgh before their return to Germany. The Council then undertook the sponsorship of the trip to Pittsburgh as part of its Citizenship and Civic Affairs Program.

An interesting fact behind the visit of the women is that this is the first time, since World War Two, that the United States Government and the West German Republic have worked out a plan together to bring 25 young Germans into the United States. These two women are part of that group.

New Teachers Added To B'nai Israel Staff

Three additions have been made to the staff of B'nai Israel weekday Hebrew School for the 1956-57 season:

Mr. Moshe Amitay, a native of Israel, is a graduate of Balfour College of Tel-Aviv and the Israeli Conservatory of Music. He is, at present, continuing his studies at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Mr. Edward Jacobs is a graduate of the Teachers Institute of Yeshiva University. He received his M.A. degree from Southern Methodist University, and is preparing for his Ph.D. in psychology at Penn State and the Leech Farm VA Hospital.

Mrs. Mildred Jacobs holds a B.S. degree in Education from the State University of New York. She spent a year of study in Israel under the Leadership Seminar sponsored by the Jewish Agency.

Council Of Jewish Women Sets Luncheon And Play For Fund-Raising Campaign

Mrs. Leo Levy, chairman of 1956 fund raising for the Pittsburgh Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, has launched the group's fund raising campaign by announcing plans for a buffet luncheon to be followed by a matinee performance of "My Affair Lady" at Carnegie Music Hall on October 31. There will be 36 aides and 36 hostesses.

Backstage excitement has already begun, with the gathering of the show's backers and "angels" at the home of Mrs. M. Weisenthal, on Fifth Ave. At that time the advanced gift fund raising began.

Highlighting the afternoon was a "sneak preview" of "My Affair Lady." Mrs. Meyer Sachs and Mrs. Leonard Leiby presented the story in outline and sang some of the numbers from the show.

Party For Campaign's Close

The Pittsburgh Council of Pioneer Women, Club One, will hold its annual closing party of the Child Rescue Campaign on August 28, 1 p.m., at 6328 Forbes Street, the new Labor Zionist center.

Mrs. B. Clair will report on her trip to Israel. Mrs. I. Rosenfeld will also bring regards from Israel. Mrs. I. Michaels is Child Rescue chairman.

DEADLINE NOTICE

Any news, or publicity for the High Holidays edition must be into the Outlook's editorial office no later than Thursday morning, August 30, at 10 a.m. Because of Labor Day weekend copy will absolutely be unacceptable after that hour.

Sisterhood Messages Ready

Mrs. Jay Weinthal, the Uniongram chairman, has announced to the members and friends of the Rodef Shalom Sisterhood that Uniongrams are now available for their New Year's messages.

Those wishing to purchase them may do so at the Rodef Shalom Gift Corner, or by calling Mrs. Weinthal, HAZEL 1-1986.

Rabbi To Give Speech At Opening Meeting

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Rabbinical College of Telshe will feature at its first meeting of the season Rabbi Solomon Oppenheimer, spiritual leader of the Adath Israel Congregation and an alumnus of the College. The meeting will be held on Sept. 10, 8:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Hyman Milch, 5846 Douglas St.

Rabbi

S. Oppenheimer The importance of Box Collections will be discussed, and plans for the coming year will be formulated.

Plea Issued For Teachers

LOS ANGELES, (JTA) — The Bureau of Jewish Education sent out 15,000 letters to individuals active in education and social work, in an attempt to recruit 700 teachers needed to staff the city's Jewish Sunday schools. The Jewish education system here faces a critical shortage this fall.

New Art Created By An Israel Bricklayer

NEW YORK, (AJP) — Po'el Shmuel Toker has shown that Israel is a land of miracles in more than one way. Toker arrived in the pioneering Palestine of 1920, from Russia as a lad of 17. Losing no time, he joined a group in Haifa as a bricklayer, the most-honored and respected "profession" of that time. Israel needed builders, and Toker took to construction as a duck takes to water.

The miracle? Well, bricklayer Toker developed into one of Israel's greatest artists—and not just an ordinary artist. He invented a new formula of art in his creation of marble. He began to experiment with various mixtures and paints. Year in and year out he experimented, until he finally succeeded in creating a new finely-polished stone which looked like real marble. But here was not just a stone slab. Toker, through some chemical process which is his own secret, found himself able to blend all sorts of artistic designs into the stone which gave the semblance of a marble mural.

The play of his colors in the marble patterns creates the effect of relief and expresses features clearly. The shading appears to give the material the look of natural texture, almost like grains of sand. The great success of Shmuel Toker's creations led to an invitation to come to America. The miracle "bricklayer" has arrived with some of his finest stone creations which are being exhibited in New York.

Bond Luncheon Brings $20,000 To Campaign

"An Afternoon In Israel," spent this week by the Pioneer Women of Pittsburgh, resulted in the sale of at least $20,000 in Israel Bonds, according to Mrs. Irving Elbling, president, Pittsburgh Council, Pioneer Women.

The "Afternoon in Israel" was a luncheon held to highlight the 1956 Israel Bond campaign by Pioneer Women. Mrs. Amos Comay is Israel Bond Chairman for the Council and Mrs. Samuel Fuss is co-chairman.

Highlights of the luncheon was the presentation of special pins to six Pioneer Women who attained recognition for their sale of more than eight Israel Bonds since April 15. They were Mrs. Harry Slawkin, Mrs. Aaron Spivack, Mrs. Abe Dunn, Mrs. Max Balsam, Mrs. Joseph Wiseman and Mrs. Lester Nolan.

"Faces Of Israel" To Be Shown On TV Series

"Faces of Israel," a series of five, 15-minute documentary public service programs, each of which contains an introduction and closing by a Hollywood star, will debut on KDKA-TV on Sunday, August 26, at 12:30 p.m.

Famous actors and actresses to be featured in the series include Eddie Cantor, Jack Palance, Shelley Winters, Melvyn Douglas and Frank Sinatra.

Each program presents a profile of an important segment of life in Israel, through a human interest story of an Israeli citizen who has become integrated into the life of the country.

The first presentation, introduced by Eddie Cantor, tells of a veteran farmer who leaves his home temporarily to help instruct new immigrants.

Subsequent programs will be telecast on September 2, 9, 23 and 30.

Localite Awarded Grant

NEW YORK, (JTA) — Five Jewish scientists and scholars shared in grants for the second quarter of 1956, announced the Rockefeller Foundation. Grants to the individuals totalled $11,475. One of those awarded a grant was Dr. Arthur I. Mirsky, chairman of the Department of Clinical Science at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine. Dr. Mirsky will receive $2,675 for a visit to research centers in Europe.

Sex Of Chicks Determined

NATANYA — An optical instrument which can determine the sex of newly-hatched chicks was a highlight of the recent poultry exhibit here. Developed in Israel, the instrument indicates the scientific approach of the country's poultry breeders toward the improvement of egg and fowl production.

Uptown Bank Stock Purchased By Group

Mr. M. A. Cancelliere, president of the Western Pennsylvania National Bank, announced that he and others closely associated with the Western Pennsylvania National Bank have purchased a large block of stock in the Washington Trust Company of Pittsburgh. Study is being made of plans for a merger of the two banking institutions and of plans for new quarters for the Washington Trust Company. The present building is slated for purchase by the Urban Development Authority as part of the Civic Auditorium Development Project.

Mr. Julius Halpern, chairman of the Board and president of the Washington Trust Company, will continue indefinitely in these capacities, and he and Mr. Cancelliere emphasized that the personnel and operating policies of that organization will not be changed.

C. W. Metcalf, vice president of the Washington Trust Company, has been elected vice president and a director of the Washington Trust Company.

Western Pennsylvania National Bank, which recently announced preliminary approval of a consolidation with the Farmers' and Merchants Bank of Sharpsburg, which will be an addition to the eleven offices now in operation, reported total resources of $108,825,207.20 as of August 17, 1956. The Washington Trust Company listed its assets on that same date as $39,256,533.51.

B'nai B'rith Gets Letter From Dulles

Starlight, Pa. — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles advised B'nai B'rith that the State Department will take "formal diplomatic action" in an effort to curb Arab nations from imposing discriminatory restrictions on American citizens of the Jewish faith.

A U.S. Senate resolution last month, which called such discrimination incompatible with American principles, and demanded "every reasonable effort" by the U.S. Government to seek equal treatment abroad for its citizens," has offered the Department of State the opportunity to continue its efforts to impress on the Arab States the sentiments of this country," Mr. Dulles declared in a letter to Philip M. Klutznick, President of B'nai B'rith.

The same resolution, the Secretary added, has been circulated to U.S. Missions in Arab States where American representatives "have been directed to take every appropriate opportunity to emphasize the principle of equality of all Americans, and to seek its compliance by the Arab States."

The Secretary's enunciation of present State Department policy and his assurances that the foreign service was "alert to the necessity of protecting the rights of American citizens throughout the world" were contained in a 700-word statement to B'nai B'rith. Mr. Klutznick presented the statement to the B'nai B'rith Administrative Committee, opening a two-day meeting at Camp B'nai B'rith here.

In The Mail...

To The Editor:

It has come to our attention that letters from the Council of Churches of Allegheny County have been received by many boys and girls who are about to enter high school. This communication urges the students to sign up for Released Time religious classes during the coming season.

We have received inquiries about this. It seems to us desirable to remind the Jewish families in this area that the Jewish community has officially taken a stand in opposition to Released Time classes. None of the synagogues and religious schools in this area will conduct such classes and, therefore, Jewish students should not sign up for them.

May we at the same time state that the opposition to the use of required school periods for religious education is based on our adherence to the principle of Separation of Church and State, which is expressed in the Constitution. We repeat again our conviction that the teaching of religion is the privilege and responsibility of the home and the synagogue. We respectfully urge Jewish families to avail themselves of the excellent educational resources which are now available in our several institutions of Jewish learning.

Sincerely yours,

Lillian A. Friedberg
Executive Director,
Jewish Community
Relations Council

To The Editor:

I would greatly appreciate your publishing the following letter:

May I gratefully acknowledge to my many friends their kind expressions to me when I was recently honored by the Jewish Theological Seminary of America with a Doctor of Divinity degree. I received so many tokens of love and devotion that I find myself unable to answer each one individually as I would have liked to have done.

I will assure my friends in the community that I shall continue to serve them as I have done for so many years in the past.

May God in His infinite wisdom watch over you and your dear ones in the coming New Year, and may He inscribe you into the Book of Life, Health and Happiness.

Sincerely,

Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter

Travelers Given Reception

The Labor Zionists of Pittsburgh will welcome home Mr. and Mrs. Baruch Clair at a reception at the Farband Educational Center, Forbes St., on Sept. 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair, who have been in the forefront of Labor Zionist activity for many years, have just returned from their first trip to Israel, and will give a report on their impressions.

Oscar J. Freedel is chairman of the event, and Aaron Spivack is secretary.

Localite Attends Training Camp With National Guard

Private Harvey Chodock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Chodock, of El Paso St., is undergoing two weeks of field training with the 107th Field Artillery Battalion at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, according to Captain Angelo N. Lombardo, commanding officer of Battery A.

Pvt. Chodock is a student at the University of Pittsburgh where he is in his junior year.

TWO FOUNDERS' DAY EVENTS, marking the 113th anniversary of the founding of B'nai B'rith, are being planned by the Pittsburgh Council. Herman D. Greenberg, Council president, has appointed Herman Fineberg to head the Founders' Day Dinner on October 28, and Jacob Kushner as chairman of the Founders' Day Supper-Dance on October 22.

Mr. Fineberg (right) and Mr. Kushner (standing) are conferring with Judge Samuel A. Weiss, Supreme Lodge vice-president, at a meeting of the Founders' Day committee.

Golf Tournament Scores With $35,000 In Bonds

A unique event culminated this week when more than 60 golfers competed against Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the National Open Golf champion, in a tournament arranged by the Sports Committee for Israel Bonds.

Judge Samuel A. Weiss, chairman of the event, announced that $35,000 had been sold in Israel Bonds in conjunction with the tournament.

Dr. Middlecoff played an 18-hole exhibition match, and was followed by all participants, and five local professional golfers, who participated in the tournament. Following the exhibition, Dr. Middlecoff presented trophies to all the golfers who defeated him.

Keep posted on organization activities. Read "Outlook for Clubs."

Minister Says Not To Fear Israeli Reform Movement

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — Religious Jewry and Israel does not need to fear the Reform movement, Minister of Religion Moshe Shapira declared in a speech before the second national conference of the Poale Mizrahi Women Workers' Association.

Mr. Shapira, a leader of the Religious bloc in the Government coalition, referred to current attempts to establish a Reform temple in Israel. He said that the Reform movement had no footing in this country. The cabinet member stressed that religious Jewry must give a hand to the important task of strengthening Israel and to the ingathering of the exiles.

Foods To Remember

By LEAH W. LEONARD
AJP Food Editor

Author of "Jewish Cookery" and "Jewish Holiday Cookbook"

ONE of our neighbors is of Italian extraction—we like to call her "third generation American" of Italian background. We frequently exchange "ideas" on food customs of different peoples, and invariably the culmination of our visits are an exchange of "yichos recipes." For instance, an Italian family favorite of hers is the following which we recommend these days of bountiful harvest, especially of eggplants, green peppers, tomatoes, etc. You'll want to serve it with almost any menu, especially fish main dishes. We find it most convenient to have this appetizer on hand at all times, for cold suppers of left-over chicken, and/or sliced sausage, or smoked tongue from the delicatessen. Here's how to make

ITALIAN CAPONATA (Versatile Eggplant Relish)

- 1 to 1½ pound eggplant, cubed unpared (1-inch cubes)
- 1 large onion, diced fine
- 1 cup diced celery, leaves included, packed tight for measuring
- 1 cup diced green peppers, tightly packed for measuring
- 4 tablespoons olive oil (or other salad oil)
- ½ cup thinly sliced pimiento stuffed green peppers
- 1 tablespoon salted capers (bought in glass jars at food stores)
- 1 cup thick tomato puree (fresh or canned kind)
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- 4 tablespoons dark brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon each oregano, basil and marjoram (or equal amount mixed herb seasoning)

Combine diced eggplant, onion, celery and green pepper and stir into hot oil in a deep frying pan over moderate heat till lightly browned and tender. Cover and continue cooking over lowered heat for 5 minutes, then add the other ingredients listed, stirring to blend. Cover and simmer 10 minutes longer, removing cover to stir once or twice to prevent scorching. Cool and store in covered glass containers. Keeps well in refrigerator for 2 weeks.

Here are a few "refresher" courses for youngsters as well as oldsters (of all ages) that take into consideration low fat intake as well as the up-grading of necessary calcium in the diet.

VANILLA MILK-SHAKE

- 1 cup dry skim milk
- 4 cups cold water
- 1 tablespoon vanilla flavoring
- Sweeten to taste with honey or sugar

Stir together and chill in a covered quart jar. Serve with a cube or two of ice and a sprig of fresh mint, and/or a maraschino cherry. Straws in each tall glassful, of course.

Serves 4 or 5.

PINEAPPLE FIZZ

- 1 cup dry skim milk
- 4 cups cold water
- 1 cup sweetened pineapple juice
- ½ cup canned crushed pineapple
- Plain soda in each glassful, just enough to fizz

Stir together, all except the soda which should be added to each glassful just before serving.

Serves 4 to 5.

BUTTERMILK BLITZ

- 1 quart fresh buttermilk
- 1 cup frozen orange juice (or 1 can)
- Lemon soda as desired

Combine buttermilk and frozen orange juice in a pitcher and keep in the refrigerator till serving time. Place a cube or two of ice in each tall glass and fill ¾ full then add the chilled lemon soda to make it fizz, brimful.

Serves 6.

CULINARY CUES

Corn off the cob scatters when cutting? Stick the point end of the ear of corn into the well of your angel-cake pan and with a sharp knife, slice down. The corn kernels will fall into the pan . . . no waste, no scatter.

Savor-flavor for fried fish can be achieved by dipping each cut of filleted fish first into a sauce made of 2 tablespoons lemon juice to each ¼ cup of French dressing (commercial or home-made), then in fine dry bread crumbs or Matzo Meal, seasoned with salt and pepper or paprika. This amount is sufficient for 2 pounds of fish. Fry as per usual, or arrange on a greased baking pan and bake till brown, then turn and complete the browning.

Recipe Booklet Available

Our Cook's Concoctions

MRS. LOUIS SPIELBERGER, of Beacon St., whose recipe we're featuring this week, is a perky woman who delights in talking about her "wonderful" husband and her two "terrific" grandchildren. Who can blame her? But Mrs. Spielberger is also a teacher, and, undoubtedly, a very good one at that. Before her marriage she taught history and math at the Braddock, McKeesport and Pittsburgh schools. She is now Principal of the Academic Dept. of the Yeshiva Achei Tmimim School, with whom she has been affiliated for the past 13 years.

The Outlook is on the lookout for local recipes to share with our readers. Any homemaker who would like to submit their favorite dishes is welcome to do so. The recipes must be type-written and double-spaced. Be sure to include some biographical material to go with it. We like to know what our reader-cooks are like. Mail to The American Jewish Outlook, 1037 Forbes St., Pittsburgh 19, Pa.

Mrs. Spielberger also has some very strong, and, we might add, convincing arguments on the so-called progressive education that is being employed in today's schools. She says that teachers are returning to the "old" methods again, because they have proved the most reliable in the long run.

And returning to our recipe,

Mrs. Spielberger says that her recipe is not only completely reliable, but provides a very festive look to a very quick, and easy dessert.

GRAPE DELIGHT

- 1 cup grape juice, heated
- 20 marshmallows
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ pint whipping cream
- 18 lady fingers

Melt marshmallows in warm grape juice. Cool. Add lemon juice. Place in refrigerator tray and freeze until firm. Turn into chilled bowl. Fold in cream that has been whipped until stiff, blending well. Return to tray, and to freezing compartment. Freeze until firm.

To Serve: Line sherbert glass with 3 ladyfingers and spoon in grape delight.

Yield: 6 servings.

best wishes for the future of your congregation."

The Congregation also received a message from Governor George Leader.

Heading the list of prominent religious and civic leaders participating in the Dedication Ceremonies at 4:30 p.m., and in the Banquet at 6:30 p.m., is the distinguished president of Yeshiva University, Dr. Samuel Belkin, one of the nation's foremost rabbinic scholars and educators.

The Hon. Mayor, David L. Lawrence will bring greetings on behalf of the City of Pittsburgh.

Rabbi Eliezer Poupko, venerable Dean of the Orthodox rabbinate of Philadelphia, father of Dr. Bernard A. Poupko, will speak at the ceremonies on behalf of the Agudath Harabonim — the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, while Dr. Poupko will introduce Dr. Belkin.

Committee Announced

Dr. Asher Isaacs, chairman of the Dedication Committee, will preside during the Dedication Ceremonies, while Samuel Goldstock will be the toastmaster at the Banquet. Serving with Dr. Isaacs as co-chairmen of the Dedication Committee are Dr. Samuel J. Altman and Dr. Louis M. Kochin.

Bennie R. Neaman, president of the Congregation, has announced that Jacob Wolk, chairman of the Dinner Committee, will be assisted by the following co-chairmen: Philip J. Miller, Samuel Baskind, and Jacob Siegel. Hymen L. Leff is the treasurer and Emanuel Epstein is the secretary.

Serving with Morris Merenstein, chairman of the Ticket Committee, are Leo Greenberg and Harry Sisselsky as co-chairmen, and Mrs. Bennie R. Neaman, Maurice Wheeler, Mrs. Fannie Beigel, and Joseph Fine.

Irving Schiffman, chairman of the Arrangements Committee, is assisted by Theodore Davidson and Hyman Fireman as co-chairmen, and Julius Milmeister, Murray Hoffman, Isadore L. Birnkrant, and Cantor Wm. Hofstadter.

Serving with Frank Mandel, as chairmen on the Reception Committee, are Mrs. George Cofsky, Daniel Loundy, Mrs. Morris Newman, and Al Rubenstein as co-chairmen. Cantor Wm. Hofstadter and the Shaare Torah choir will provide liturgical selections during the festivities.

Dedication Sabbath

The Sabbath of August 25 has been designated by the Congregation as Dedication Sabbath. Rabbi Eliezer Poupko of Philadelphia will address the Congregation at 7:30 p.m.

Story of Soccer Game

on the streets and listened. There was perhaps no one old enough to know what the word "soccer" meant who was not tense, waiting for the game to start. Even the Russians gave way to excitement. Their own broadcasts, transmitting to Russia, seemed to know that all the way across the continent, millions would be concerned with this game.

Russian Luck

The Russians made their first goal. Luck seemed to be with them, in addition to superb abilities. In the first few minutes of the game, Israel's goalie was hurt. The Israelis played one man short. The suspense mounted. The first half ended. Then Russia scored. And then the miracle happened. Or so it seemed, out there in Ramat Gan. Israel scored a goal. Against the best players in the world. Against real champs with a long tradition and the best of training. Ten minutes before the end, the Russians scored again. It was two to one. The people all over Israel went a little mad with pride, and with relief, and with sheer joy. And not far away, the seismographs in Damascus and Beirut recorded a mild tremor. Israelis wondered later if the sound of 110,000 feet stamping in the mad rhythm, caused by the miracle, had shaken the delicate instruments, or perhaps, the sourer members of the community decided, perhaps it was just a coincidence.

There was an epilogue, of course. Later, after the cheers died away and the Russians went back home. Yugoslavia dropped out of the soccer games scheduled for Melbourne and a replacement was needed. Israel's performance made its impression in remote places, and the Olympic Committee, looking for a replacement, invited the Israelis. Come and play soccer with the world's champions, they wrote. And in November the Israel team will be in Melbourne with all the other champs. Not a very significant story. No politics. Just a tale of two cities, and 22 soccer players, and lots of national pride. A story we thought you might like to read.

Lease Agreed On Airbase

month. A thirty day extension of agreement has expired, but King Saud is reported to have extended indefinitely — although informally — American rights to operate and use the Airfield until negotiations are completed.

American officials are reported confident that the lease will be renewed, once monetary differences are worked out with the Saudis. It's also understood that the State Department desired to merely indefinitely extend, rather than renegotiate a lease in order to avoid Congressional attacks, in this election year, acquiescing to Arab discrimination against American Jews.

TAKES TOO LONG WAITING AT GREEN'S?

We Regret we can not offer you:

Quick Service

Why it pays to take your time - and ours - in buying your shoes or your child's shoes:

IMPORTANT

1) In everything we pride ourselves on prompt service to wrap your purchases, cater to your "double parked" attitude, and have you on your way.

NOT SO, however, where fitting your child's shoes are concerned. They are far too important to his future.

Perfect fit and exacting requirements of the individual child's foot needs, are the most important facts we must ascertain before we can "wrap up." Nothing else your child wears has as much potential influence on his natural growth and future efficiency as the shoes you buy him now.

IT TAKES TIME

2) Competent fitters fit and check. Individual permanent records are made and checked everytime you visit our store. When necessary, fitting consultations are held. All of this takes time — our time — your time. We pride ourselves on over twenty-five years of accomplishments in this specialized work, and feel it is time well spent, when children we fitted over a quarter of a century ago are bringing their children to "Bennie Greens" for fitting. The responsibility of fitting your child is a trust, we conscientiously strive to deserve. This can not be measured by the standard of "hurry up" commercial transactions.

AND OUR SHOES

3) They count too. They too are worth waiting for CHILD LIFE SHOES, in normal and in "Arch Feature." The best shoes human "know how" can devise to follow the natural contours; and to conform natural contours of growing feet. These shoes too are made by men who place humanitarian benefits above everything in their manufacturing of Children's Shoes.

ONLY LEATHER

4) Too, in keeping with our principles of only all-leather shoes (absolutely no synthetic or composition soles or poorly tanned materials), "Child Life" offers the best of materials and workmanship; suitable for a child's present and future comfort, and good foot health.

THERE IS YOUR REASON WHY WAITING AT GREEN'S IS WORTH WAITING FOR
