

U. S. Senate Committee Finds Anti-Semitic Trend in U.S.S.R.

WASHINGTON (JTA)—Soviet dictator Nikita S. Khrushchev may be even more anti-Semitic than Stalin according to an extensive study of minority problems in the Soviet Union published by the Senate Internal Security Committee. The study was prepared by the legislative reference service of the U.S. Library of Congress.

The report detailed an anti-Semitic trend in the Soviet Union and said it was doubtful if this trend will be reversed if pronouncements and actions of Khrushchev are any index.

According to the U. S. study, Khrushchev has "a long record of anti-Semitism." The report recalled that as Prime Minister in the Ukraine, after World War II, he issued orders banning Jews from important local offices. He was the first Prime Minister of a republic to close Jewish theaters, future of Soviet Jewry. The report cited a consensus that Moscow has gone far in denationalizing but not assimilating the remnants of Soviet Jewry. "Organized Jewish communal life no longer exists in its vital form. Nor have guarantees of collective rights, or in fact individual rights, been respected," the report established.

"For the immediate future, it is difficult to foresee any great measure of relief from Soviet discrimination and abuse of power and it is equally difficult to foresee any perceptible narrowing of the gap between promise and fulfillment in Moscow's treatment of its non-Russian peoples."

The report was drawn from many sources. It dealt with minorities in the Soviet empire which was termed the "prison house of nations and races."

Rabbi Kertzer Gets Catholic Citation

ROME (JTA)—Rabbi Morris Kertzer, director of the Inter-Religious Affairs Division of the American Jewish Committee, has become the first rabbi to receive the Gold Medal of the Pro Deo Catholic University of Social Studies.

Dominican Father Felix Morlion, dean of the University, said the award had been given to Rabbi Kertzer because "nourished by the wisdom of the founding fathers and animated by the firm will to promote for God the culture of all peoples, he has been among the first to apply these principles of his heart."

Rabbi Kertzer, who is en route to Japan to address the Evangelical World Conference on Christian Education, said he had "long range optimism" on the development of Catholic-Jewish relations.

Danny Thomas Underwrites Rabbi's Medical Education

MILWAUKEE (JTA)—A 28-year-old rabbi, father of three sons, will be able to complete his final year of medical school because of the generosity of Danny Thomas, Lebanese-descended Catholic comedian who has frequently aided Jewish causes.

Rabbi Abraham J. Twerski, son of Rabbi Jacob Twerski, whom he assists at Congregation Beth Yehuda of Milwaukee, struggled through three years of Marquette University Medical, hoping to specialize in psychiatry. But trying to raise a family on the slender pay of an assistant rabbi while attending medical school started becoming too big a burden, although the bearded young Orthodox rabbi was able to finance part of his medical education by loans.

His plight came to the attention of the comedian when Thomas had lunch with officials of the University who told the comic about Rabbi Twerski's financial struggle. After some inquiries, Thomas told one of his luncheon partners,

Churchill Pleased By Israel's Growth

LONDON (JTA)—"I have been a Zionist for many years, and it is a great pleasure to me to see Israel growing so rapidly and playing a leading part in the affairs of the Middle East only ten years after its birth," Sir Winston Churchill declared at his Chartwell country home.

Sir Winston made this statement at a ceremony at which he presented a golden key of the auditorium which bears his name at the Haifa Technion to British industrialist Isaac Wolfson, Israel Ambassador Eliahu Elath and Michael Sobell, president of the British Friends of Technion.

Nothing that Israel is "faced with great difficulties," the famous statesman added: "But if you maintain your lead in education and especially in technical education, it will go along well towards improving your position. I am glad that the Technion is taking in students of all nationalities, and I am convinced that it will be a great influence for the development of the Middle East, and in the interest of all the people who dwell there."

Ambassador Elath, who accepted the key, said that "the friendly and generous words" of the British statesman "will be received with gratitude by the people of Israel who so greatly respect and admire him." Mr. Wolfson presented Sir Winston with an album of photographs taken during the opening of the Churchill Auditorium and said he hoped that Sir Winston would be able to visit Israel soon.

Religious Party Rejects Plan

New Compromise Would Clarify Categories

SPECIAL TO THE OUTLOOK BY DIRECT WIRE

JERUSALEM (JTA)—Hopes of resolving the current government crisis, which developed over the legal definition of a Jew, faded as the National Religious Party rejected a new compromise authorized by Dr. Pinchas Rosen, minister of justice.

The so-called Rosen plan was offered by Ben Gurion when he conferred with religious bloc leaders on a way out of the present impasse.

Indonesian Paper Raps Including Israel In Sports

TOKYO (JTA)—A spokesman for the Third Asian Games Organization Committee here criticized the Times of Indonesia, influential Indonesian newspaper, for suggesting that Israel and two other nations be excluded from the 1962 Asian games in Djakarta for political reasons.

In suggesting editorially that Israel, Formosa and the Republic of Korea be excluded from the games, the paper wrote: "To permit the Israelis to send their competitors here would bring to the breaking point our relationship with the Arab states. To ask Formosa would provoke an open breach with (Communist) China. As we have not established relations with either of the Koreans it would be wrong to let Seoul send its athletes to Indonesia."

Despite the fact that all three nations competed in the Third Asian games held last May in Tokyo, the Indonesian newspaper added: "It is our duty to let intending participants know who will and who will not be acceptable. It would be imprudent and in bad taste to invite Israel, Formosa and South Korea."

In Tokyo, a spokesman for the Third Asian Games Organizing Committee said, "An invitation from the organizing committee in Djakarta is unnecessary. If Israel, Formosa and the Republic of Korea want to compete, they can do so—with or without Djakarta's permission."

French Jews Welcome Soustelle Appointment

PARIS (JTA)—The appointment of Jacques Soustelle as a member of the de Gaulle Government was welcomed in Jewish circles in France. In addition to his known pro-Israel stand, the new Minister of Information has fought anti-Semitism wherever it has appeared.

M. Soustelle, chairman of the rightist Franco-Israel Alliance, has consistently campaigned for a closer military relationship between France and the Jewish State. He recently expressed his belief that the present regime here would continue France's close ties with Israel. He has visited Israel on several occasions.

For the combined "religion and nationality" category in the government-approved application for an identity card, the Rosen plan would substitute three classifications. The first would allow for an answer to combined religion and nationality to be filled in with the religion of the applicant; the second, for an applicant to make separate entries for religion and nationality—presumably Arabs, Christians or atheists would use this column; the third classification would be appropriate for those who "assumed" the Jewish religion.

In turning down this plan, the religious leaders said that it would once again set up two kinds of Jews—those who are Jewish by religion and those who are Jewish by declaration. After turning this plan down, the Religious party officials reiterated their willingness to discuss any new proposals to solve the crisis, though they again stressed their desire to return to what they called the "status quo"—the registration method in effect when Moshe Shapira was minister of the interior.

Meanwhile the Religious party and religious authorities have launched a campaign to arouse public opinion against the government regulations. Municipal councils will be the scene next week of fierce debates, as religious bloc councillors ask for a resolution urging the government to change its action.

It was learned that religious party delegates to the forthcoming meeting of the World Jewish Congress in Geneva will put forth the same demand.

The question will also be placed on the agenda of the next meeting of the Zionist Actions Committee.

String Quartet Witnesses Planting of Huberman Forest

JERUSALEM—The first trees in the forest commemorating Bronislaw Huberman, the famous violinist and founder of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, were planted in the Jerusalem Hills by the presence of members of the Orchestra and of music lovers from all parts of the country. Fittingly enough, against the background of the Judean Mountains, a string quartet played works by Mozart and Schubert at the ceremony.

The "Huberman Forest" numbers 10,000 trees.

"Villains" Plainly Jews In Soviet Publications
NEW YORK (JTA) — Anti-Jewish undertones continue to make themselves felt in the Soviet press, according to reports received by Jewish organizations here, quoting numerous articles from newspapers in various part of the Soviet Union. Anti-Jewish intent is especially noticeable in feuilletons, which are considered an important instrument for fashioning public opinion in the USSR.

A summary of feuilletons with anti-Jewish bite, published in the Soviet papers during the last 12 months, makes obvious the line which they follow. The word "Jew" never appears, but the "villain's" name is obviously Jewish, he is described as sleek and slimy, sly and mean, hard and unscrupulous, in the pursuit of his dishonorable aims, out to achieve private gain by foul means: swindle, fraud, excessive profits.

Along with the Jewish villain, there is also the Gentile villain who abets and protects the Jew. On rare occasions, a "good Jew" is counterposed to a "bad Jew."

schools, and publishing houses. He tolerated an anti-Semitic outbreak in Kiev adequately grave to warrant investigation by Moscow.

The report said anti-Semitic practices have gained ground in Russia since the mid 30's. Recent biased expressions by Khrushchev are quoted. A summary is made of anti-Semitic singling out of Jews in some cases and censoring of references to Jews in others. Jews were eliminated from the nationalities mentioned as receiving decorations and honors in a new issue of "The National Traditions of the Peoples of the Soviet Union."

"De-judaization . . . destruction of national consciousness and complete assimilation has been the ultimate aim of the Soviet Government in its policies toward Soviet Jewry," said the report. The study showed that the outbreak of anti-Semitism in the period 1948-1953 further reduced remnants of Jewish cultural life. Deportations and executions were described.

A Correspondent's Comparison:
Israel vs. Brussels Exhibition

By ELIAHU SALPETER

JERUSALEM (JTA)—The Israel exhibition, one of the main highlights of the Tenth Anniversary celebrations, opened on the western outskirts of Jerusalem, not far from the new Hebrew University campus. Though it is the largest exhibition ever put together in Israel, its 30 acres cannot compete in size and variety with the World Exposition in Brussels. Still, having toured both exhibitions extensively, this correspondent would like to make certain comparisons.

Whereas in Brussels at least half of the exhibition was not ready on opening day, in Jerusalem practically everything was set three hours before the opening ceremony.

Naturally, the Israel Exhibition, as its name indicates, is a national show, without foreign participation. It is much smaller and less ambitious. The Brussels exposition is supposed to be a "general stock-taking" of the achievements of the human race (it falls quite short of that). The Israel Exhibition aims primarily to show the achievements of this country in ten years.

The Jerusalem exhibition has three sections: national, economic and entertainment.

The Israel story is shown in the National Section, which occupies most of the huge Convention Centre and a large neighboring temporary building. Israel's roots are represented by the display of the original Dead Sea Scrolls, some of the oldest known manuscripts and prints of the Bible, illuminated maps and pictures showing the long centuries of exile and the decades of Zionist awakening, culminating in the display of the original copy of Israel's Declaration of Independence.

Reborn Israel proudly shows the reception and integration of hundreds of thousands of new immigrants, the expansion of educational, medical and social facilities, and the efforts to develop the country's economic and cultural life. Naturally, there is also an exhibit of the Israel Army, including a pictorial re-enactment of its main military operations, from its illegal days during the British Mandate through the War of Independence and in the Sinai Campaign.

A glimpse of the future is offered by the displays of the beginning of exploitation of the mineral wealth of the Negev, by a scale model of a "sun reactor" running a small steam engine, and by a model of an atomic reactor in operation.

The progress of Israel's economy in the past ten years is presented in more detail in the Economic Section, where about 400 industrial, commercial and service enterprises opened their exhibits.

For the entertainment of young people of all ages, a pocket size Coney Island has been set up at the Exhibition. Around a "water organ" or cascading colored jets dancing to the tune of organ music, the various delights of a fun park have been erected.

Entertainment of a more sophisticated nature is provided in the auditoriums of the main building, the main hall of which can seat 3,000 people. Here concerts, dance performances and films are presented alongside such international attractions as the London Festival Ballet, the Israel Philharmonic under the baton of Dimitri Mitropoulos, opera performances featuring members of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Inbal—the Israel dance theatre—etc.

All in all, about 3,000,000 Israel pounds have been invested in the Exhibition, almost three times as much as in the Israel Pavilion at the Brussels Exposition. The Israel Pavilion in Brussels is expected to be visited by at least six times as many people—almost all of them non-Israelis—as the number of visitors at the Israel Exhibition in Jerusalem, most of whom will be Israelis.

Propaganda Revisions

THE battle to win Nasser is gaining new momentum now, and we predict that greater confusion and anti-Israel sentiment can only result. While Nasser and the United Arab Republic sink ever deeper into the mire of Russian influence and control, the campaign to resurrect Arab respect in the West must necessarily grow more vigorous. Such a campaign, seemingly harmless in itself, is actually a guise for some truly treacherous operations.

To begin with, the campaign to rescue Nasser for the West is being conducted by the Arab Information Center, which has numerous functions, chief of which is to lobby against Israel. And, it is frightful to conceive the possibility that Nasser and the UAR have arrived now at the point where Chiang Kai Shek and China have been for many years; that is, Western aid, meant to serve as a rescue from Russia, only gets lost in the shuffle while the Soviet continues to consolidate her own position. For many purposes, Nasser and his empire are already something of a Soviet satellite. Even our own State Department is growing somewhat alarmed over the apparent degree of penetration by the Soviet into the Middle East.

Now, we return to the Arab Information Center, which began business a decade or so ago as spokesman for the Arab League. Today, however, the League is nearly defunct, being completely dominated by Nasser. Iraq delegate to the UN, Mohamed Fadhil Jamali recently said: "Those who know the internal story of the Arab League know that it is more or less one department of the Egyptian Foreign Office—no more, no less." It follows logically then that Arab propaganda speaks alone for Nasser and it could also explain the recent failure of the Arab League to take any punitive action against Nasser on behalf of Lebanon.

It is of more than passing interest to note, therefore, that Arab and pro-Arab propaganda forces seem to be re-grouping, as it were, and concentrating in Washington, D. C. Within the last several weeks offices have been opened in the nation's capital by the Arab Information Center, the propaganda bureau mentioned above; the American Friends of the Middle East, the leading American pro-Arab organization; and the American Council for Judaism, the anti-Zionist organization. It is estimated that the Arab Information Center, with five separate locations in the U. S., spends something over one million dollars annually. As Nasser and Russia grew closer, Arab propaganda began to rely heavily on anti-American sentiment as a policy.

The next several months should prove interesting as the true significance of the propaganda switch becomes apparent. Has Nasser, in fact, become frightened over involvements with the Soviet? In such a case, it would be necessary to restore Western prestige for the UAR. Or perhaps we are about to see the genesis of a new Arab unity effort with Nasser in complete control; such a program would also require a hard-sell job to the West. It is hardly likely that the move is simply a continuation of the status quo. Nasser is wise enough to realize that he cannot too much longer play both the West and Russia for his own ends. One thing alone is certain—that Arab propaganda pressures will be heightened and tightened in the months to come and, if the stakes are large enough, the West could initiate some snappy bargaining in such matters as Arab refugees, border infiltrations and perhaps even a permanent peace with Israel.

Israel Evaluated

LAST week, prior to his departure for Israel, Abba Eban met with UN Secretary General Hammarskjold, and together the diplomats came up with a favorable evaluation of Israel's present situation on the international scene. At the UN, none of the Western governments is thinking presently in terms of pushing toward fundamental settlement of the basic Arab-Israel dispute, but rather are more interested in consolidating the present period of relatively stable Arab-Israel relations. Inasmuch as this represents a change from universally abhorrent hostility, the present "stable relations" are probably an asset to Israel's international status. We are not in total agreement with Western logic in this matter, for, though borders may be quieter and infiltrations less frequent, those basic matters of dispute are not resolving themselves but are, rather, compounding with time into greater disagreements, permanent scars and chronic obstructions to a final, desirable peace.

On the more positive side of the ledger, the UN meeting made note of the vast improvement discernible in the relations between Israel and many governments in Europe, Latin America, Asia and Africa. The term "improvement" has reference here to many areas, ranging from economic and diplomatic, to scientific and industrial exchanges and mutual aid programs.

Of special importance to Israel, of course, is the fact that the Jewish State has recuperated entirely from the heavy loss of good will it encountered among high officials of the U.S. as a result of the 1956 Sinai campaign. An illustration of such recuperation is the fact that during the fiscal year ended last week, Israel had received from the U.S. a total of $90,000,000 in development loans, scientific aid, technical assistance and agricultural commodities.

Along with Mr. Eban and his government, we are pleased to note these items of progress. This leaves the way open, we suspect, for Israel to undertake some heavy deliberations on some weighty problems; for example, relations between Israel and American Jewry.

Montefiore Gift

THE entire community must express its gratitude to Miss Amy P. Frank of New York, a former Pittsburgher, whose one million dollar gift to the Montefiore Hospital was announced recently. The money will be used toward the projected construction of a new wing, to be known as the "Samuel and Ettie Klein Frank Memorial."

In every respect, this gift is most timely and appropriate. Montefiore Hospital, for some years now, has been functioning to fullest capacity, aware of the need for more space. New problems have brought new needs and only an ultimate expansion program could properly fulfill the new demands being exerted by the field of geriatrics, for example, and rehabilitation in chronic illness, for another example. Miss Frank's gift has given impetus and practicality to the dream of expansion.

Religious Extremists Brought Discredit to Themselves Only

By MILTON FRIEDMAN

WASHINGTON—When religious extremists demonstrated in Washington against Israel they brought discredit only upon themselves. They actually helped reinforce the popular view of Israel as a genuine democracy.

Their faces reflecting self-righteousness bordering on fanaticism, about 300 ultra-religious Jews appeared in front of the White House. They wore black frocks and ear-locks, reminiscent of 19th century Poland.

Passers-by gaped. But curiosity turned to amazement, even indignation, when the pickets hoisted placards. The signs condemned Israel in vitriolic terms. President Eisenhower's intercession was demanded against alleged "oppression" of religion by the State of Israel.

The demonstrators had been offered an opportunity to appropriately discuss their grievances. They had been invited to send spokesmen to meet with officials of the Israel Embassy. They rejected this Israeli invitation, seeking instead to create a public scandal.

Pickets identified themselves as with a so-called "World Union of Orthodox Jewish Communities" and the Neturei Karta sect of Jerusalem. Their main complaint seemed to be the construction in Jerusalem of an open-air swimming pool for men and women.

Placards carried by pickets charged Israel with "systematically eradicating the Jewish religion in its boundaries." Pickets waved banners alleging "brutality of Israel Zionists police" and asking "help us rescue our helpless jailed brethren in Israeli prisons."

Other signs alleged "new immigrants are forcibly sent to atheistic collective settlements against their will"; "parents brutally beaten and lose their jobs for giving religious education to their children"; "inquisition in the 'democratic' Israel."

Government officials ignored the pickets. One sought to enter the White House itself. He was turned away by Secret Service officers because he had not even applied for an appointment. The intent of the hegira from Brooklyn was apparently not actually to petition Mr. Eisenhower. The main object seemed the creation of a spectacle.

"What should I do?" asked a bystander. "Declare war on Israel?"

Police officers of Jewish faith were among those assigned to protect both pickets and public. Excellent police work was done. Not a single incident took place.

The pickets referred to American taxpayers "supporting" Israel, hinting at severance of U.S. aid programs. As part of their campaign to enforce conformity and promote theocracy in Israel, extremists called on members of Congress. They were reportedly informed that the United States could not interfere in the internal affairs of a foreign nation. Also, they were reminded that America believes in separation of church and state.

A study of Jewish law indicated that it is a far greater infraction for Jews to agitate non-Jews against fellow Jews than for men and women to swim peacefully in the same pool. In fact, Rabbi Judah L. Maimon, distinguished Israeli religious leader, called for excommunication of the agitators.

The United Religious Organization of America, composed of Mizrachi and Hapoel Hamizrachi, termed the demonstrators a "small, irresponsible group" whose actions verged "on denouncing Israel before the non-Jewish world."

The Synagogue Council of America, representing the major branches of organized religious Jewry, issued a statement deploring the demonstration.

Jewish Quiz Box

QUESTION: Why is it customary to serve liquor and refreshments in the synagogue on the day one has yahrzeit?

ANSWER: A number of reasons are advanced for this tradition. Some claim that on the yahrzeit (the anniversary of the death of a beloved) the soul is regarded as passing to a higher plateau in Heaven and thus the heir brings refreshments in celebration and as his token of confidence the soul has been elevated another step. Some claim that the refreshments are brought to the synagogue so that those who participate by partaking of them will wish the heir "le-chayim" (for life).

It is generally claimed that the tradition of bringing liquor to the synagogue is based on the original requirement which made it necessary for one to fast in penitence on the day of yahrzeit. Bringing refreshments to the synagogue makes the repast a feast of holiness and thus the heir is allowed to break the fast. It is claimed that originally the heir served an entire meal and that when it was realized that this would prove embarrassing to the poor, it was considered in order to simply serve liquor and cake.

ISSUES AND TRENDS: Jewish organizations—even rabbinical—are drifting increasingly into fields which are of general interest, rather than of specific Jewish interest. . . The convention of the Reform rabbis, which took place in Chicago, is the latest example. . . The rabbis adopted more resolutions on general subjects than on subjects of direct concern to Jewishness. . . The spiritual leaders of the American Jewish Reform movement have apparently not found it necessary to adopt a resolution to stimulate in this year of economic recession, maximum giving to the United Jewish Appeal or to local Jewish philanthropies. . . Nor could I find any resolution on how to bring Jews to a good year 'round attendance at Reform Temples, despite the fact that Dr. Solomon Freehof, veteran Reform leader, warned that adults should be the major concern of religious education. . . Neither did I find among the resolutions an expression of opposition to the Arab boycott against American Jews, or greetings to Israel on its 10th anniversary. . . However, there were resolutions asking the U.S. Government to halt immediately testing of nuclear weapons; to recognize mainland China; to give economic aid to India; to develop a scientific and cultural exchange with Russia, and similar resolutions which have very little to do with Jews as such, or with the Jewish religion. . . No wonder that the young American Jewish generation is indifferent to things Jewish. . . Why should it not lapse into indifference, if, instead of offering answers to the question "What is Jewishness"—often posed by young American-born Jews—the rabbis seek to stress general issues. . . They seem to overlook the fact that any Jew who wants to advocate the stoppage of nuclear weapons tests, or recognition of mainland China, or to involve himself in similar issues of American general life, does so as an American citizen and not as a Jew. . . From rabbis, guidance is expected on subjects Jewish, and not on subjects dealing with general politics which are properly dealt with by organizations open to Jews and non-Jews alike.

COMMUNITY CURRENTS: Is the growing tendency in the United States to centralize Jewish communal affairs "good for the Jews?" . . . The American Jewish Committee, which does not participate in coordinating bodies of national Jewish organizations, is publicly justifying its opposition to such bodies. . . Dr. John Slawson, one of the top AJC leaders, claims that such coordinating bodies are tantamount to "centralized control" of Jewish communal life. . . He admits that the tendencies to centralize Jewish communal affairs under governing bodies which are related to one another by certain conceptions are "gaining momentum" . . . However, he argues that the American Jewish Committee, by preferring to conduct its activities independently, is thereby rendering a service to the community by releasing the creative impulses in American Jewish communal life. . . He also claims that AJC deviations from the majority view have not been due to an addiction to uniqueness, but rather to "a passion for effectiveness". . . In his view, the nature of Jewish communal organizations in America "must correspond to the nature of American society and tradition". . . He is not exactly certain whether the American Jewish Committee was always correct when alone, but he cites certain facts which, he says, justified the AJC stand in asserting its right to be a minority. . . The entire issue was the subject of a full fledged discussion at a gathering of American Jewish Committee leaders, who seemed to approve of the views expressed by Dr. Slawson.

Building Fund Affair Held by Joint Groups

Parkway Jewish Center's Sisterhood and Men's Club will enter the "Race for Space" when they sponsor the fourth annual building fund carnival.

Set for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, July 14-15-16, the Carnival will be held on the Synagogue grounds, Princeton Drive, Eastmont. In case of rain, the festivities will be held over one additional day.

The "Race for Space" theme will be carried out in decorating the grounds, but the real meaning behind the words is the race for space badly needed by the Center to accommodate the growing families of the East boroughs.

Mrs. Joseph Levine and Mrs. Albert Herman, co-chairmen of the Carnival have announced that there will be rides for the children, various games for children and adults, and home-made refreshments.

Israeli "Cowboys" Bring American West to Galilee

By MARJORIE S. LEWIS

(Mrs. Lewis may be contacted at HAZel 1-8929)

A touch of Americana has been added to the majestic Galilee region of Israel. More specifically, it is the American West, for Israel's "sabras" or native-born have taken the profession of cowboys. Wearing wide sombreros, tight blue-jeans and cowboy boots, the Israelis swing their lassos over a stampeding herd of cattle in true American cowboy fashion. It is possibly a bit incongruous, but nonetheless a fascinating contrast to the biblical atmosphere and sites in Galilee.

In the Valley of Gennesaret, a cowboy school has been set up by the U.S. Operation Mission in Israel and the Israel Department of Agriculture. A veteran cowboy from Wyoming is the director of the school, and at present, a group of thirty Israeli members of agricultural settlements are training to become full-fledged cowboys. "Operation Cowboy" certainly should make American visitors feel quite "at home" in the Galilee region.

And while on the subject of the west, here is the travel news on some localities in the western section of the United States:

JNF Dedicates Roll Call Day to Israel's Tenth Anniversary

Judge Henry Ellenbogen, president of the Pittsburgh Jewish National Fund Council, has announced that the Third Annual Honor Roll Call Day of the JNF will be dedicated this year to Israel's Tenth Anniversary.

Judge Ellenbogen

The names of tree purchasers will be inscribed in the Pittsburgh JNF Honor Roll Call Book, which will be presented to Israel's president.

Volunteer workers who are members of the various Zionist and general Jewish women's organizations and groups will call at the homes of Pittsburgh Jewry on Honor Roll Call Day to receive Israel tree planting orders. At least 750 campaign volunteers must be recruited for this effort.

In announcing the beginning of recruitment of volunteers, Judge Henry Ellenbogen said "The Jewish National Fund is, in itself, the very symbol of the rebirth of Israel. It has given back to the Jewish people the contact with the soil of Israel and has renewed the connection of the Jewish festivals with the soil. We, in our total past and continued support, make ourselves one with the JNF in its glorious achievements as well as in what it is yet to accomplish."

JEWES IN SPORTS

By HAROLD U. RIBALOW

A New Honor for Savitt

ONE of the most difficult prizes in tennis has gone Dick Savitt's way, and the story about a trophy makes an interesting sports tale.

In 1918, the Terrace-Knickerbocker Bowl was put on the block, so to speak, and the first man who could win the annual Brooklyn men's singles championship three times would get permanent possession of it. In the 40 years since that time, many of the major net stars have won two legs on the trophy, including Vinnie Richards and Pancho Segura. Suddenly, it was realized that here was a championship trophy that no one had been able to take home—and keep.

Dick Savitt, one of the finest tennis players of our time and perhaps the greatest Jewish net star, won his first two legs on the bowl in 1949 and 1950. After his second victory, Dick won the Wimbledon championship and got too involved in top-flight tennis to compete in the Brooklyn championship, a tournament that no longer attracted the big names of the game.

Meanwhile, the years passed and Savitt went into business to emerge for the tennis wars from time to time. And a few weeks ago, Savitt told a reporter, "I wanted to go at this thing for the past seven years but just couldn't. This summer I've been free and so I came to win. I want the trophy because of the names on it and because it's one of the nation's oldest such trophies."

Apart from Richards and Segura, here are some of the other winners whose names appear on the bowl: Gregory Mangin, Leonard Hartman, Frank J. Bowden, Edward W. Burns, Ed Moylan and Sidney Schwartz.

Now, at 31, Savitt still maintains a high quality of tennis. He had no difficulty reaching the finals, and he faced Sid Schwartz, a previous winner and also one of the high-ranking netmen of the game today. Savitt won easily in three sets at the Knickerbocker Field Club, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3. Dick stayed at the baseline much of the match and slammed the ball hard and accurately at Schwartz' feet. His violent service helped him score many aces, and even when Sid volleyed the ball back into play for a series of shots, Dick usually finished him off with long, flat drives. In addition, Savitt did a good job in returning "impossible" shots, calling forth the admiration of his opponent.

So Savitt, who keeps turning down Davis Cup calls, has revealed a sentimental streak and came to Brooklyn to show it off. He now can keep a valued trophy, one that took him nearly a decade to win, and which no one else ever won before him.

Who's a Jew?

This question keeps cropping up not only in this column, but whenever sports are mentioned, in conversation and in writing as well. It rises again now, because George Vass, who conducts a sports column for the National Jewish Post, recently did a long piece on Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion of the world. He takes for granted that Sammy is Jewish, although he doesn't quite say so. But he writes about Sammy, and tells his background, and quotes him on current affairs, as though Sammy's history and views should be of special interest to Jewish readers. But it happens that Mandell is an Italian, not a Jew.

Dick Cohen

The National Jewish Post also reports that Dick Cohen, a 19-year-old pitcher with the Louisville Colonels in the American Association, is a rather pious young man and that in three years of play in a small league he never played on Saturday. He also managed not to play on the Sabbath in high school.

What now? After all, he wants to pitch in the major leagues (he belongs to the Boston Red Sox, who paid him a $12,000 bonus to sign with them), and I don't believe there ever was a situation where a guy said that he can't play on Saturday because he is an Orthodox Jew.

Young Cohen is quoted as saying, "I don't intend to play now—if I can help it. This is something that I'll have to work out for myself; there certainly is no easy solution."

Hebrew Institute

The Board of Directors of the Institute has approved the formation of a "Meah" Club, it was announced by Samuel Horelick, chairman of the Board. The name "Meah" was chosen because it is a Hebrew word meaning one hundred. The purpose of the club is to secure one hundred members each of whom will contribute one hundred dollars. These funds will be used by the Institute to reduce the mortgage indebtedness on its new school building. Walter Burke, president of the Hebrew Institute, has assumed chairmanship of the project.

Fathers' Club

Paul Labovitz, president of the newly-organized Fathers' Club of the Institute, has appointed Elkan Avner chairman of the group's constitution committee. Mr. Avner, son of the late M. L. Avner, one of the founders of the Institute, and his committee will submit to the membership a constitution for the group. Serving with Mr. Avner are Israel Chodock, Sidney Jacobson, and Martin Rubin.

Kindergarten Playground

The kindergarten play area located on the Beechwood Blvd. side of the new building has recently been fenced in and now contains a wading pool 18 feet in diameter.

The wading pool is being used by the younger afternoon campers.

Second Camping Period

The second camping period for both the afternoon and all-day camps of the Institute will begin Mon., July 21, and will continue until Aug. 8.

Serving as unit heads at the all-day camp, located near Evans City, are Rievan Slavkin, group I, LaVerne Hyatt, group II, Beverly Lewis, group III, and Bernard Siegel, group IV.

Burke's Glen swimming pool is being used by the afternoon day campers for outdoor swimming, in addition to the Forbes and West-ingham swimming pools.

As part of the over-all camp theme, "An Imaginary Trip to Israel," the 8-year olds, in the afternoon camp will conduct a special program, July 16. The 5½ year old will conduct a program Thurs., July 17, and the 7½ year olds will present a special program Fri., July 18. All programs will take place in the Rena and Walter Burke Auditorium. Awards will be distributed and closing exercises will be held on Fri., July 18. Ronald Sobel will be in charge of the closing exercises.

Foods To Remember

By LEAH W. LEONARD
AJP Food Editor

Author of "Jewish Cookery" and "Jewish Holiday Cookbook"

JULY is the month for cherries. And cherry pie is always a treat. Here's a variation of that distinctly American favorite made the easy way by using canned cherries if you can't get fresh ones.

CHERRY-APPLE PIE DELUXE

- 2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup vegetable shortening
- 5 to 6 tablespoons ice cold water

A pinch of sugar

Sift together flour and salt and cut in shortening with a wire pastry blender or two knives till the mixture forms tiny particles, like little peas at least. Add the cold water a little at a time, mixing lightly with a fork till a ball of dough is formed. Wrap in wax paper or aluminum foil and chill in the refrigerator while preparing the pie filling. Heat oven to 425 deg. F. while rolling out the chilled pastry between two sheets of wax paper to 1/8 inch thickness or thinner if desired. Place lightly over a 9-inch pie pan, press lightly against bottom and up sides. Trim off edge with a knife. Bake at 425 deg. F. for 15 to 18 minutes or till lightly browned at edge. Form remaining dough into a ball and roll out into a 6-inch circle. With a fluted cutter trim off 1/8 inch ring. Place this ring, stretched as you use, over the edge of baked pastry in the pie pan, pressing down with the fluted cutter. Brushing the pastry edge in pie pan with cold water or beaten egg-white helps the "trim" adhere nicely. Now, with the fluted cutter cut the pastry circle into 6 wedges. After filling is turned into the baked pie shell as directed, place the wedges on top with a little space between and return to oven for 15 minutes or till nicely browned on top and edges. Serve hot or cold, after cutting into 6 portions.

FILLING

- 3 cups pitted fresh cherries,

- 1/2 cup cold water then drained well (Or use drained canned sour cherries in same amount)

- 1 cup juice from cooked or canned cherries
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 3 cups diced tart apples
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca

Combine fruit juice, sugar, prepared apples, cinnamon and tapioca in a saucepan and cook over moderate heat, stirring frequently till the apples are soft and the tapioca clear, approximately 5 minutes. Turn the filling into the bake pie shell when cool, place the pastry wedges on top and bake as above. By the way, 1 cup canned pie apples will substitute for the fresh kind, just in case.

Speaking of cherries, have you ever tried stewing equal amounts of pitted fresh cherries with diced rhubarb? Wash the prepared fruits, drain and add dark brown sugar to taste after stewing in a tightly covered saucepan over low heat for 8 to 10 minutes. Not necessary to add liquid as enough water clings to the washed fruit to melt the sugar while cooking slowly. A few drops of red vegetable coloring adds to its taste-appeal, too.

The following dessert is a favorite hot-weather cooler.

HOME-MADE PINEAPPLE FREEZE

- 1 cup canned crushed pineapple, drained before measuring
- 3/4 cup sugar

- 1/2 cup ice water
- 1/2 teaspoon mint extract
- 3 drops green vegetable food coloring
- 1/2 lemon juice
- 1 1/2 cups orange or pineapple juice
- 1 1/2 cups ginger ale

Combine sugar, water and pineapple juice drained from can, and simmer 8 to 10 minutes over moderate heat. Let cool then add remaining ingredients listed. Stir and turn into freezer tray or two cube trays and freeze to the consistency of soft sherbet. Turn into a chilled bowl, beat with electric or hand rotary beater 3 minutes then return to freezer trays and turn up cold control to freeze. Serve in sherbet cups or stem glasses, topped with a sprig of fresh mint or a maraschino cherry or both. Serves 6 to 8.

Note: Makes an excellent topping for fruit salad.

Playhouse Schedules Films

A complete schedule of the all-time great films which will be shown may be obtained in calendar form by calling MAYflower 1-4445 or by writing to the Playhouse.

All accommodations afforded the adults are likewise duplicated in the Kiddie Kamp setup for the younger set, from swimming areas to riding stables, to game activities and the like.

Nevele has an extensive program of daily activities and each activity is supervised by experts.

Plan Bond Sales During Holidays

Pittsburgh joins communities throughout the United States and Canada in preparation for the High Holiday effort for Israel Bonds, advised Samuel Goldstock, chairman of the Pittsburgh Israel Bond Synagogue Council.

The High Holiday program is the opening phase of the Fall campaign for Israel Bonds, the chairman stated. Preliminary meetings with Synagogue representatives are being planned during the coming weeks, he said.

Stressing the significance of Israel Bonds in relation to the observance of Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, Mr. Goldstock referred to the words of Adolf L. Hamburger, of Baltimore, National High Holiday Chairman.

"The High Holidays are traditionally a time of re-evaluation, and rededication," Mr. Hamburger said. "The role of the State of Israel is central in Jewish life today and the purchase of an Israel Bond constitutes a most significant rededication to the future of our people."

"It is particularly appropriate that there be an intensified effort for Israel Bonds as the State of Israel enters upon its second decade. Israel Bonds have had a major role in the historic achievements of the first ten years."
